Commission Favors West Over Maher In Clegg Case

Unanimous Action In Ordering Trial For 3 Police Stops Resignation Threat

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Official tempers at the District Building were back to normal yesterday after a dispute in which the key post of corporation counsel was at stake.

Danger that Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West and other members of his staff would resign was averted by a decision of the three District Commissioners Tuesday that three policemen will go before a trial board on charges by Julius Willie Clegg, 26, that he was unlawfully arrested, detained for 35 hours and beaten August 2.

The Commissioners, it was reported, sided unanimously with West against the recommendation of Daniel B. Maher, recently appointed special assistant corporation counsel, that the Clegg case be dropped. It was emphasized that Commissioner John Russell Young, who turned the case over to Maher for review, voted on West's side before publication of The Washington Post editorial saying that Young was scheming to whitewash the case.

Legislators Move to Intervene

Young said he had no intention of whitewashing it. He said he had assigned West to prosecute the case personally before the trial board. Attorney Charles E. Ford, who is defense counsel for two of the policemen, said he would challenge an assistant corporation counsel's sitting on the police trial board when the head of his office will be the prosecutor.

Similar cross-currents of dispute churned around the forthcoming trial of Fire Chief Clement Murphy on charges that he disrupted the morale of his department. Members of the House District Committee were moving to enter the situation.

House District Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) said he was having a study made to help him decide whether the corporation counsel's report to the Commissioners should be made public.

He said the issue had been called to his attention by [illegible] member of the committee.

"If it's in the public welfare, and if there is no possibility that publication of the report would be prejudicial at some future time, I rather think it could be made public," Dirksen added.

That the Commissioners have no present intention of releasing the Murphy report for publication was underscored yesterday by a letter they sent to William J. Rowan, attorney for Fire Capt. Joseph W. Conroy, head of the local Firemen's Association, and author of the original protest that Murphy was demoralizing his department.

To Name More Witnesses

The letter, signed by Geoffrey M. Thornett, secretary to the Commissioners, said that the Commissioners felt it would be "improper" to grant Rowan's request for a copy of the statements made to the Corporation Counsel's office by various witnesses during the investigation. They said he could have a copy of a statement made by Conroy on July 1, if one was available. They also turned down Rowan's request to enlarge the scope of the inquiry beyond the 12-month period after Murphy took office as chief. The request had been turned over to Maher for study.

Rowan said he is planning to submit names of more witnesses to Maher who is preparing the Murphy charges. Maher said he expected to have the charges by the end of this week.

Rowan said the members of the Firemen's Association "are keenly disappointed by the Commissioners' decision."

He said they feel "that the Commissioners have made a great mistake of judgment in deciding not to broaden the scope of the Murphy trial, in that they have thereby excluded much of the material cov-

List of Organizations Exp[illegible]ed

Loyalty Board to Get Report On Subversive Groups Today

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Attorney General Tom C. Clark today will send the Loyalty Review Board his official report on subversive groups.

The board expects a list—of clubs, committees, societies and associations—and possibly a few words on what it is that makes a group subversive, and how you can label one without hearing evidence about it and giving it a chance to talk back.

The Justice Department has been busy for weeks getting up the report. So far both the report, and what it is based on, have been department secrets.

There are no standards set up by law, or even by executive order, which say what a doubtful or subversive group is. And if any organization has had notice of what the department has been doing, or has been given a chance to be heard, it has joined the department in keeping the matter wholly quiet.

The public will first learn of the Clark report from the review board, or the Civil Service Commission. Board Chairman Seth W. Richardson said last night that one or the other would give out the report, maybe today.

Then Federal workers—possibly including some already fired—will get their first clue to what it was, or was not, safe and loyal for them to belong to.

Chairman Richardson declared his board was not going to be bound by Clark's report, saying the attorney general was providing it only for the guidance and information of the members. The chairman said that in hearing appeals the board would take all proper factors into account.

The review board held its first meeting at its new offices in the Apex Building yesterday. The session was spent mostly in setting up an organization and working out rules for handling appeals. There were no cases taken up, and there probably will be none today.

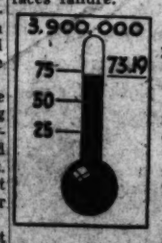
Most of the board meeting today probably will be spent on the Clark report.

The Justice Department last night confirmed the fact that the report was going to the board, but there was no other comment. A spokesman said the Attorney General felt that anything given out ought to come from the loyalty board.

Chest Drive Faces Failure, Leaders Say

More Than Million Still Needed, With Only 9 Days to Go

Because residents have not given or given enough, the 1948 Community Chest Federation campaign faces failure.



That blunt warning came yesterday from the campaign executive committee. More than a million dollars must be raised in the next nine days to push the campaign through to success, and leaders are afraid this won't happen.

The committee announced cuts in the budgets of some of the 125 Chest-supported agencies now appear inevitable. This means next [illegible] to help all those who need help in Washington and its environs.

To date the drive has produced only $2,854,751 toward its goal of $3,900,000. Campaign Chairman Edward H. Foley, jr., expressed his "keenest disappointment" at results of the campaign so far.

But both Foley and other campaign leaders said final success is still a possibility if prompt action is taken by the 20,000 volunteer workers still soliciting gifts and by every resident of the National Capital area.

"If we want to avoid real suffering in the community, which failure clearly means will come to many of our friends and neighbors dependent on Red Feather services, we can each do our best to meet the needs of the agencies in the next week," the campaign committee declared.

In that event, the committee added, "we may not need to make the budget reductions that we now believe must come."

The committee, which conferred yesterday on the campaign's outlook, urged contributors to turn in their pledge cards immediately and called on business firms and Government units to speed up solicitations.

The ninth report meeting of the campaign will be held at 12:15 p. m. tomorrow at the Burlington Hotel. Principal speaker will be the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Sheerin, pastor of Epiphany Episcopal Church and chairman of the Chest Federation speakers' bureau.

Loves Children

O'Boyle Has Devoted Self To Charity

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

New York, N. Y., Dec 3.—As its first Catholic archbishop, Washington gets a man who has added high-powered administrative ability to a life dedicated to charity.

Named yesterday as archbishop—designate for the archdiocese including the Capital and five Maryland counties, 51-year-old Patrick A. O'Boyle comes to his new task from 17 years devoted to the service of children and to the guarding what he considers one of their most precious traits—their individuality.

Interviewed at Colors

Interviewed today in his office here—until his elevation to the [illegible] of Washington he was executive director of the vast Catholic Charities organization of New York—Monsignor O'Boyle chose to talk mostly of those children and of "the happiest days of my life" when he worked with them. As for other issues, the social and political and human problems which will fall to his lot to handle in his new post, he decided not to discuss them until he faced them.

Round-faced, quick to smile, and with the demeanor of a successful businessman, Monsignor O'Boyle sat behind a desk loaded with congratulatory telegrams and reminisced about the happy days—six years of them—when he was director of the Mission of the Immaculate virgin at Mount Loretto, on Staten Island.

His charges were about 1000 children at all times, with a turnover of about one-third every year.

"Alumni" Come Back

"In these days," he said, "when there is a tendency not to admit humble antecedants, the greatest satisfaction was to see the 'alumni' of Mount Loretto come back on visits, proud of the fact that they came from a home for dependent children, and then turning to help the children that were still there.

"That's the way it should be."

The institution was a "testing ground," Msgr. O'Boyle pointed out, to prove that the "individualization of each child" could be protected. It was done, he believes, through the vocational schools, the modern child guidance clinics, athletic competitions and the feeling, on the part of every member of the 265-person staff, that:

"This was a home for the children, not for themselves."

Aid Debate Opens Today In House

Rules Committee Votes for 12 Hours Of Talk, Opens Way For Amendments

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The House Rules Committee last night cleared the stopgap foreign aid bill to the House floor after a grilling, day-long examination of supporters of the program.

The potent Rules group, dominated by GOP critics of emergency and long-range aid, finally voted unanimously for 12 hours of House debate, starting today, on the measure.

The rule threw the bill wide open to amendments. Under its terms no final House vote is possible until early next week. The House will simply "debate" the bill today and tomorrow. Monday it will start voting on amendments.

A request by leading members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee for foreshortened debate to make possible passage of the emergency measure this Saturday was rejected in favor of the slower-moving timetable previously okayed by the House Republican leadership.

Running Fire of Queries

A running fire of questions, often hostile to the program, was directed at House Foreign Affairs Committee proponents of immediate aid.

The roughest were put by Representative Clarence Brown (R., Ohio), presidential campaign manager for Senator Robert A. Taft.

Bridling under the examination, Representative Sol Bloom (D., N. Y.), former Foreign Affairs chairman, asked Brown:

"What would you suggest? And what will happen if we don't grant this aid?"

Brown said he was asking the questions, not answering them.

House Foreign Affairs Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) meanwhile told the committee he believes Russia "proposes to conquer the world by infiltration or force of arms" and the United States is the only obstacle.

"What could stop Russia from taking over all of Europe in 24 hours?" asked Representative E. E. Cox (D., Ga.).

"Not a thing," replied Eaton. Later Eaton and Representative John Davis Lodge (R., Conn.) said it might take Russia two or three weeks to occupy Europe with conditions as they stand.

Counsels No Retreat

"Why don't they move?" asked Representative John M. Vorys (R., Ohio), "They don't move for two reasons: (1) The atom bomb and (2) United States economic power . . .

"We shouldn't back off an inch anywhere on this planet."

The 590 million dollar House bill, cutting the amount of relief the Administration asked for Western Europe by 67 million dollars but adding 60 million dollars for China, meanwhile was filed with the House with a committee report reading in part:

"The Soviets have a clear and definite policy of attempting to prevent American aid to Europe and Asia, and a further policy of making such aid as ineffective and expensive as possible.

"This plan should not deter us from rendering necessary aid.

"On the other hand, we must not fall into the Soviet trap of bleeding ourselves white economically through extended, expensive and ineffective aid plans.

"We should plan our aid to other countries so as to remain strong at

British See Clashes Sporadic So Far

London, Dec. 3 (U.P.).—Colonial Secretary Arthur Greech Jones told Commons today that Arab-Jewish clashes in Palestine so far have been sporadic and unorganized but that the Palestine government would remain responsible for law and order until the British mandate is surrendered.

The Palestine government will take all possible steps to prevent "such tragic and unhappy conflicts" as are now occurring in the Holy Land, he said. Jones also said that Britain hopes to complete withdrawal of her troops by next August 1. He promised a fuller statement later.

A high government source said that Britain probably will not begin withdrawal of troops until March or April.

The source said that Palestine was just beginning its annual export of citrus fruit and this will tie up the country's harbors for at least three months. Shipment of the vital fruit harvest took priority over troop evacuation.

Hundreds Injured

Jerusalem, Dec. 3 (AP).—Arab and Jewish "border troops" fought a swaying battle along the dividing line between Jewish Tel Aviv and Arab Jaffa with machine-guns and grenades today, raising the toll of two days of Palestine disorder to at least 31 killed, according to unofficial estimates.

The number of injured was believed to run into the hundreds.

The Associated Press unofficial estimate of killed for the two days included 17 Jews and 14 Arabs, but some Hebrew papers said 15 Arabs were killed by "Jewish security forces" in three separate attacks during the day.

Few details of Arab casualties actually were available from Jaffa, however.

Violence Reported In Northern Area; Control of Town In South Seized

BULLETIN

Paris (Thursday) Dec. 4 (AP).—The French National Assembly approved Premier Robert Schuman's antisabotage and strike control bill early today after more than five days of bitter debate on the instrument designed to arm the government against a growing wave of industrial strife.

An unofficial count showed the Assembly approved the measure 403 to 183. Only the chamber's Communists voted against the bill.

The vote came as mass demonstrations and damage to industrial equipment grew in alarming proportions throughout the nation, while leftist-inspired strikes appeared to be declining.

By Louis Nevin

Paris, Dec. 3 (AP).—Debating behind a cordon of steel-helmeted troops and police, France's National Assembly prepared emergency legislation tonight to arm the government against sabotage, mass demonstrations and strikes.

A government communique said French troops in northern France had been fired upon by strikers but that the troops had not fired back.

The communique said the soldiers stood the fire calmly "resisting the pressure of many hundreds of strikers."

The firing was said to have taken place mostly at "small outposts" in the Valenciennes region where striking coal miners have clashed frequently with police and troops in hand-to-hand fights.

Mile-Square Cordon

Warned of a possible demonstration against its government in the Place de la Concord in front of the Assembly, police said, the government stationed troops, mobile guards and police in a mile-square cordon blocking off all traffic while the Assembly was in session.

Florimond Bonte, Communist deputy, denied reports that the Communists had planned to march on the Assembly.

When no demonstrators appeared, traffic was again allowed to pass through the area, but the steel-helmeted forces, estimated at several hundred, remained in place. Their show of strength seemed impressive enough to meet any eventuality.

The rest of France, however, was not as calm.

Strong military forces were required during the day to wrest the southern city of Beziers from the control of several thousand strikers who last night after several hours battle had captured all public buildings except the city hall and the sub-prefecture.

Violence at Grenoble

Grenoble, high in the Alps, was cut off from the rest of France by telephone when several hundred persons broke through two police cordons and forced their way into the postoffice. An undetermined number of postal and telephone employes were beaten up and forced out of the building, the prefect reported.

Despite the use of tear gas, demonstrators still occupied the postoffice.

Railroad strikers also occupied the suburban Juvisy Station early this morning, but were thrown out of the station bodily by a crowd of angry commuters trying to get to their jobs.

Police were obliged to use their tear gas and truncheons to break up mass demonstrations in Toulouse, Marseille, Rouen, Amiens, Vierzon, Bourges, Montlucon and Rennes.

Millers Return to Work

Interior Minister Jules Moch declared, however, there was a general back-to-work movement continuing from Tuesday, especially among post, phone and telegraph workers, railroad men, and gas and electricity company employes. There was also a "timid" movement back to the job in the building industry, he added.

One of the first unions to go out on strike, the Paris flour millers, called off their walkout. It was good news to the house-

Tax-Exempt Pension Law Revision Asked

Treasury Would Cut Disability Payments To Some Servicemen

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Treasury Department yesterday recommended that Congress pass legislation removing part of the tax exemption given officers and enlisted men of the armed services who are retired for disability.

There are 35,005 officers retired from all services for disability, it was reported, and all of these draw pensions completely taxfree.

Approximately two out of every three Army officers and four out of five Navy officers have been retired for disability and thus pay no tax on their pensions, the Treasury said.

The department, in a study of taxation of pensions and annuities, held that current laws allowing tax-free disability pensions are unfair to officers retired for age or length of service who must pay full tax on retirement pay.

The "inequality" in taxing pensions could be remedied, the Treasury said, by restricting the exemption on disability pay to the proportion corresponding to "disability for purposes of civilian employment."

For example, a disability retired officer whose disability for civilian employment is only 50 per cent would be required to pay income

Meat Likely To Skyrocket, Anderson Says

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson yesterday told Congress that price controls on meat will be necessary next spring unless there is "an unexpected falling off of demand."

His testimony on meat came shortly after Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach promised to present Congress next week the draft of a proposed bill to control wages.

The two Cabinet members appeared before the House Banking and Currency Committee in support of President Truman's request for legislation to impose controls to halt inflation.

Anderson declared that without some sort of control meat may soar in the next few months to "fantastic" prices. He later emphasized that he did not propose rationing of meat "at this time."

Anderson also revealed that the Department of Agriculture has virtually dropped its wheat-buying program until after January 1.

This statement came as officials of the Nation's grain exchanges, grain dealers and processors were complaining before the joint committee on the Economic Report that the Government's grain-buying program was "too mysterious."

Several witnesses, headed by Richard F. Uhlmann, vice president of the Chicago Board of Trade and one of the largest grain dealers in the country, declared that Government buying for export was responsible for the recent rapid rise in grain prices.

Uhlmann complained that speculation in grain was being made the "scapegoat" for high prices. He added that the same complaint against speculation was always made in a rapid market whether prices moved up or down.

Meantime, the Commodity Exchange Authority added fuel to the fire the Administration is building under speculation in commodity markets.

CEA declared that a study of speculative accounts indicated many dealers were manipulating their operations in a manner to "avoid income tax on profits."

Dulles to See Paris Leaders For Marshall

Americans Fear French Crisis May Wreck Big 4 Parley

London, Dec. 3.—Secretary of State George C. Marshall, fearing that the French crisis may wreck the Big Four Foreign Ministers Conference and slow his European recovery plan, today instructed John Foster Dulles to go to Paris and consult high French leaders.

Dulles, Republican key member of Marshall's delegation, leaves for Paris tomorrow.

He is under instructions to talk to Premier Robert Schuman and Gen. Charles de Gaulle, but not, it was believed, the Communists.

De Gaulle returned to Paris tonight from his country home in eastern France as soon as Dulles' impending visit was announced.

Bidault Back in London

French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault arrived back from Paris today after consulting Schuman and other government leaders, and attended today's Big Four Foreign Ministers meeting.

At this meeting Russian Foreign Minister Viacheslav Molotov accused the United States of delaying a German treaty and demanded that all Big Four countries submit draft German treaties within two months.

Bidault and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin joined Marshall in chopping him down. Marshall denied Molotov's accusation and said the Ministers should "go ahead with solving problems and eliminating our misunderstandings."

Molotov Withdraws Proposal

Molotov withdrew his proposal for submission of German treaty drafts.

On Dulles' report to Marshall, the entire fate of the conference may hinge. Marshall wants especially to know what chance the present middle-of-the-road government has to stay in office as against the chance that a De Gaullist or even Communist regime might replace it.

The Big Four met here November 25. With the Russians blocking every attempt at progress, and the French in turmoil it will be almost a miracle if this conference is saved from a failure.

Attendance Drops

Parents Picket Two Schools In Protest Over Transfers

A strike by Negro junior high school students which their parents promoted yesterday sharply reduced attendance in three school buildings.

Attendance in the buildings, the Browne Junior High School, 24th st. and Benning rd. ne., and two annexes, was reduced to approximately 50 per cent of normal by afternoon, Harold A. Haynes, a school administrative assistant said.

The annexes involved, the Blow School at 19th and Benning rd. ne., and the Webb School, 15th and Rosedale sts. ne., were transferred from use as white elementary schools Monday.

The Board of Education authorized the transfer over the protest of Negro civic groups to put 1223 students attending Browne part-time on full time programs.

By the end of the school day only 26 students were in classes in the Webb building annex and the Blow building annex was empty.

Picket lines of parents were thrown around the Browne school and the Blow and Webb annexes and the Franklin administration building where the Board of Education was meeting.

Inside the Franklin Building, one of the parents, Gardner Bishop of 1113 Montello st. ne., told board members "we shall withhold our children from use of the Blow and Webb Elementary Schools and the Browne Junior High School until the Board of Education justly performs its duty by designating for the use of our children educational facilities which will be adequate relief from part-time schooling—inflicting no jeopardy on the life, limb or health of our children."

The board accepted a written petition presented by Bishop but took no action.

Parents on the picket lines said that they object to the constant moving of the children from one building to another.

Under the current schedule, 589 children who attend the Browne building in the morning for shop, laboratory and gym work go to the Blow and Webb annexes in the afternoon for academic subjects.

Five hundred and fifty-seven students who have been at Blow and Webb in the morning go to Browne in the afternoon.

In addition there is a group of 281 students who attend the Browne building part-time in the morning and another group of 399 who attend part-time in the afternoon.

Browne students reported to Blow and Webb on Monday and Tuesday. At the close of school Tuesday a group of parents distributed notes to be carried home by students calling on parents to keep children home from all sessions of Blow, Webb and Browne.

3 Judges to Rule on Legality Of Non-Communist Affidavit

Three Federal judges will be named here next week to give the first ruling on whether the Taft-Hartley Communist oath is against the Constitution.

Fast appeals might place the question squarely before the Supreme Court by the first of the year.

Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws of the District Court said yesterday he would ask that two justices be named to sit with him in hearing an attack on the Taft-Hartley Act filed by the CIO National Martime Union.

The chief justice indicated that the hearing would be a speedy one, probably some time next week.

Both the CIO sailors and the AFL Seafarers International Union have been trying to sign up sailors on ships in the Great Lakes. Last April, the SIU asked the National Labor Relations Board for certification as bargaining agent for the sailors of two Cleveland companies—M. A. Hanna Co. and Wilson Transit Co. The CIO union at once went into the case, claimed to speak for a majority of the Hanna and Wilson sailors and asked to be certified instead of the SIU.

The dispute was headed for an NLRB election when the Taft-Hartley Act was passed, on June 23. The act says no union shall have any standing before the NLRB unless it has filed a financial statement and all its officers have sworn that they are not Communists.

Trouble With the Ruble

Voice of America Tells World Of 'Panic Buying' in Russia

By The Associated Press

The State Department's official "Voice of America" radio broadcast overseas in 23 languages last night a report of "a wave of panic buying" in Moscow and other Soviet Russian cities.

"The buying runs were reportedly caused by widespread rumors of impending price increases and changes in Soviet currency," the broadcast said, adding:

"The raids for durable goods reached such proportions that some Moscow stores were said to have been forced to close their doors."

The official radio's dispatch was under a New York dateline and was ascribed to "reports reaching here from Moscow." It was not beamed to Russia.

Authoritative sources here said there were runs on savings banks and that Moscow was swept by rumors the Soviet government was preparing to put out a new currency issue December 5 which would devalue the ruble.

Their was no immediate confirmation in dispatches of Moscow news correspondents, which are subject to transmission facilities under Soviet control. A secretary at the Soviet Embassy here denied knowledge of such developments.

The supplementary reports, which come from persons in a position to know of Moscow developments of the last few days, nevertheless added such details as that a main Moscow department store, the mostorg, had closed its doors.

District See Gets First Archbishop

Washington and Baltimore have been designated separate archdioceses under two newly named archbishops, the Vatican announced early yesterday.

The appointments will bring to the Washington See as its first archbishop, 51-year-old Right Rev. Msgr. Patrick O'Boyle, who is executive director of Catholic Charities in the Archdiocese of New York.

Named as Archbishop of Baltimore is the Most Rev. Francis Keough, 56, now Bishop of Providence, R. I.

Pope Pius XII, in splitting the rich and populous Baltimore-Washington Archdiocese, added five Maryland counties—Montgomery, Prince Georges, Charles, Calvert and St. Marys—to the Washington archbishopric. The appointment also makes Archbishop-designate O'Boyle chancellor of Catholic University here.

While they were actually two archdioceses before the Pope's announcement, Washington has been part of the Baltimore Diocese since its establishment in 1790.

When the Archdiocese of Washington was set up the late Archbishop Michael J. Curley administered the two and remained head of both until his death last May.

Since his death, the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, pastor of St. Gabriel's church here and auxiliary Bishop of the archdioceses, has acted as administrator.

The new and enlarged Washington Archdiocese probably will embrace a quarter million Catholics—church officials had no specific figures yesterday. The 1947 Catholic Directory shows a total of 429,517 Roman Catholics in the Baltimore-Washington Archdiocese. The District has about 200,000.

Subject to Holy See

The Washington archbishopric immediately becomes subject to the Holy See and the archbishop will take part in meetings of the bishops of the ecclesiastical Province of Baltimore.

Creation of a new diocese of Austin, Tex., and appointment of three other bishops were contained in the announcement, issued shortly after midnight.

The other prelates named: Bishop of Belleville, Ill., the Right Rev. Msgr. Albert Rudolph Zuroweste of Sast St. Louis, Ill.; the Right Rev. Msgr. Louis J. Reicher of Galveston to be bishop of the new Austin diocese, and the Right Rev. Msgr. Wendelin J. Nold of Dallas, Tex., who becomes Titular Bishop of Sasima and Coadjutor Bishop. He will have the right of succession to Bishop Christopher E. Byrne of Galveston.

Baltimore is the Primate See of America, and Washington formerly was under the jurisdiction of that archdiocese. Several years ago Washington was made a separate archdiocese, but the late Archbishop Curley of Baltimore continued to administer both.

By a decree of the Sacred Congregation of the Propaganda approved by Pope Pius IX in 1858 the archbishop of Baltimore is given "prerogative of place," and takes the place of precedence of all meetings of the Hierarchy at which Cardinals are not present.

America's first Catholic bishop, the Most Rev. John Carroll, D. D., was consecrated in Baltimore in 1790.

Bishop Keough will have as his parish the Basilica of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary, in Baltimore "Mother Church" of Catholicism in the United States. It dates back to the 18th Century.

Archbishop-Designate Is Noted Social Worker

The new archbishop-designate of Washington, the Rt. Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, is one of the leading Catholic social workers in the United States.

He is a former director of the Mission of the Immaculate Virgin, a Catholic home for dependent children on Staten Island, and of St. Joseph's Union, a world-wide Catholic organization supporting the home.

From 1943 to earlier this year, he served as executive director of the War Relief Services of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, and for several years he has been secretary to the advisory committee of the School of Social Work at Catholic University.

The distinguished clergyman is a native of Scranton, Pa., where he attended parochial schools and was graduated in 1916 from St. Thomas College. He then studied theology at St. Joseph's Seminary at Yonkers, N. Y., being ordained to the priesthood in 1921 by the late Patrick Cardinal Hayes at St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York City.

After serving from 1921 to 1926 as curate at St. Columba's Parish on W. 25th st., New York, his interest in social work began to form.

In 1926, he became director of the Catholic Guardian Society, which is the organization looking after all institutions for dependent children in the Archdiocese of New York. In 1931, he was named assistant director of the Children's Division of Catholic Charities of the New York Archdiocese.

Honored by Pope

He became director of the children's home on Staten Island in 1936 and his renown as a children's worker and organizer spread throughout the Nation and to many other parts of the world.

Pope Pius XII appointed him a Papal Chamberlain, with the title of the Very Reverend Monsignor, in October, 1938, and in June, 1944, His Holiness named him a Domestic Prelate with the title of Right Reverend Monsignor.

Last July, Francis Cardinal Spellman, the Archbishop of New York, named him a consultor of the Archbishop of New York. Since August 1, he has been executive director of Catholic Charities of the New York Archdiocese.

Other Positions Held

In addition to these positions during his 26 years in the Catholic ministry, he has served as assistant secretary to the trustees of the Catholic Charities of the New York Archdiocese; as treasurer of the Catholic Home Bureau of the New York Archdiocese, which is an organization for boarding children in homes; as a board member of Lincoln Hall, an institution for delinquent boys; and as secretary of Institutional Commodity Services for the New York Archdiocese.

His activities have extended into secular welfare work as well that sponsored by the church.

He has served as a consultant on child welfare to the New York State Department of Social Welfare; as a member of the board of directors of the Child Welfare League of America; as member of various committees of the National Conference of Social Work and of the New York State Conference on Social Work and the Welfare Council of New York City; and as a member of the Central Admission and Distribution Committee of the Greater New York Fund.

The archbishop-designate was graduated from the New York School of Social Work in 1931.

In addition to his administrative work with social welfare agencies, he gave courses in child welfare at Fordham University's School of Social Work from 1932 to 1936 and aided at various times the School of Social Work at Catholic University here.

St. Thomas College in Scranton, from which he was graduated in 1916, is now the University of Scranton.

growing up, improving themselves, getting a job and then coming back to see if they could help the others," Msgr. O'Boyle recalled.

"We avoided any such things as regimentation . . . in our vocational high and junior high schools we saw to it that each child was an individual, not a cog in a machine. We weren't concerned particularly whether each child left as a finished product in a craft, as long as he had good habits of work and knew that he had something at the end of his hands."

Active in Charity Work

Both before and after the Mount Loretto work, Msgr. O'Boyle was in administrative positions in the charity field. First he had been assitant director of the children's division of the New York Catholic Charities. He went on from Mount Loretto in 1943 to be the executive director of the National Catholic Welfare Conference's war relief services.

In that position he supervised the collection, in four years, of 102 million dollars' worth of goods and food and their distribution to 41 countries.

In the course of this work he had very extensive dealings with displaced persons and has ben concerned with the problem ever since.

The hope for its solution, he intimated, lies in measures such as the Stratton bill, and emigration programs so that "the DP's can leave Europe and settle where they can be happy and peaceful in other countries — including, certainly, this one."

Msgr. O'Boyle will bring to Washington a conviction that private charities must be continued and strengthened, as essential to the community and as a vehicle for carrying out the gospel mandate of man's concern with the wellbeing of his brother.

"But," he added, with what seemed to be a thought of his responsibilities in the key archdiocese in the Nation's Capital, "private charities are not enough. There must be public social welfare. Some problems are too vast—their magnitude is too great—for private charity to handle alone."

Msgr. O'Boyle, whose war relief offices on the seventy-ninth floor of the Empire State building were practically wiped out when a bomber crashed the building, arrived eight minutes after the catastrophe and administered last rites to the dying.

In a news conference earlier in the day, he stayed generally with biographical information, but replied pleasantly when asked about his parents.

"My father came from County Sligo (Ireland) and my mother from County Mayo," he said. Both parents are dead. A sister, Mary, died when very young, and has no other brothers or sisters.

A frequent visitor to Washington during the war years while he was executive director of the War Relief Services of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, he has never lived here.

He carried newspapers as a boy; worked summers in a textile factory and on farms. He entered social work at the suggestion of the late Patrick Cardinal Hayes.

Maryland Schedules Physical Therapy Tests

Baltimore, Dec. 3 (AP).—The newly formed State board of physical therapy examiners said today it would conduct examinations for practicing licenses annually after the first of the year.

The board was established by the last session of the State legislature to govern the practice of physical therapy in the State.

Persons already practicing physical therapy are entitled to a license without examination, the board said. Persons submitting applications for licenses after January 1 must take an examination, with the exception of those engaged in military service.

Bishop Keough Due In Baltimore Soon

The Most Rev. Francis Keough, Bishop of Providence and Archbishop-designate of the Baltimore Diocese, will take up his new duties "shortly after the first of the year," he told The Washington Post by telephone yesterday.

He said he has heard "many complimentary remarks about the people of Baltimore" and the area over which he becomes titular head and said he was certain "I will be very happy there."

Bishop Keough, notified of his elevation at midnight Tuesday, said he never suspected he was even being considered for the post.

New England-Born

New England-born, Archbishop-designate Keough has been Bishop of Providence since February 10, 1934.

He was born in New Britain, Conn., December 30, 1891, and prepared for the priesthood at St. Thomas Seminary in Hartford. He studied philosophy and theology at St. Sulpice Seminary in Issy, France, and was recalled to this country at the outbreak of World War I.

Ordained June 10, 1916, in Hartford, the new archbishop served as an assistant pastor in Meriden, Conn., and in 1919 was named assistant chancellor of the diocese of Hartford. Six years later he was secretary to the Bishop of Hartford, a post he held until his elevation to Bishop in 1934.

Bishop Keough was responsible for the founding in 1941 of the new minor seminary of our Lady of Providence for youths aspiring to the priesthood. He established the seminary nearby Warwick on the spacious estate of the late Nelson W. Aldrich, U. S. Senator from Rhode Island, purchased in 1939 for 75 thousand dollars.

Held High Posts

During his bishopric in Providence, he was named to positions of prominence in the Catholic hierarchy. In 1935 he became honorary president of the editorial board of the Proparvulis Book Club, national organization to foster good reading habits in children. The following year he was appointed to a committee, headed by the late Patrick Cardinal Hayes of New York, which supervised the work of the society for the propagation of the faith in the United States. The same year he was named by the Pope as a director of the Catholic Near East Welfare Association.

He was elected a member of the board of trustees of the Catholic University of America in 1943 and also was appointed one of the bishops in charge of the education department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference that year, succeeding the late Bishop John B. Peterson of Manchester, N. H. He is a member of the Episcopal Committee on Motion Pictures and has been an active supporter of the National League of Decency.

Truman Waves to Key West Crowd . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Key West, Fla., Dec. 3.—President Truman flew to this southernmost city of the United States for a brief vacation today, and shortly after his arrival took a nap that lasted more than two hours.

"He really needed it," said Charles G. Ross, White House Press Secretary.

Ross explained that Mr. Truman was especially tired because of Tuesday night's diplomatic reception at the White House. He and Mrs. Truman stood in the receiving line for one hour and 20 minutes and shook hands with 1070 persons. This, incidentally, was but the first of a series of receptions ordained by custom and protocol.

Crowds Line Street

The Chief Executive and a party of 10, flying in the old "Sacred Cow," took off from Washington at 8 o'clock this morning, when the temperature in the National Capital was around the freezing mark. Five hours later they were in Key West, where the thermometer registered 74.

Riding in an open car, flying the presidential flag and the Stars and Stripes, Mr. Truman rode into Key West from the Coa Chica Air Field to find the streets lined with nearly all the town's school children and a good many of the adults.

He climbed to the back of his seat, in Lindbergh fashion, and waved to the throngs.

As in his previous two visits here, Mr. Truman and his party moved into the old frame, Commandant's House at the United Sttaes Submarine Base.

Press Secretary Ross said this evening that, aside from Mr. Truman's engagement to dedicate the Everglades National Park on Saturday, no plans of any kind had been made for the five-day vacation.

Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, the White House physician, who is here with the party, wants Mr. Truman to get some sun; but above all he wants him to rest. He has suggested to the President that he try and get the equivalent of six nights sleep during the five nights he will be here.

Mr. Truman was greeted here by Capt. C. C. Addell, commandant of the naval base.

Those in the President's party included Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, his personal Chief of Staff; White House Secretary Matthew J. Connelly, John R. Steelman, Assistant to the President; Clark M. Clifford, special counsel; Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, military aide; Rear Admiral James H. Foskett, naval aide; Federal Judge J. Caskie Collet of Kansas City, and Stanley Woodward, chief of protocol of the State Department.

Move to Probe Negro Problem In U. S. Beaten

Geneva, Switzerland, Dec. 3 (AP).—A subcommission of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights rejected by a vote of 11 to 1 today a Russian proposal to investigate the Negro problem in the United States.

Only the Russian delegation favored the motion before the subcommission on prevention of discrimination and protection of minorities. The resolution proposed "to consider the petition presented to the United Nations twice since 1946 by 15 million Negroes residing in the United States of America, who are subjected to discrimination on racial grounds."

The United States delegation opposed the motion, saying it was aimed at the United States only and did not include consideration of alleged racial discrimination elsewhere.

12 Are Executed by Greeks After Convictions for Spying

Athens, Dec. 3 (AP).—Ten persons convicted of espionage in connection with the guerilla rebellion in northern Greece were executed at Salonika today, and two others were executed on the island of Aegina. One of those doomed in Salonika was a Bulgarian and four were members of Opla, the Communist guerilla organization.

Athens, Dec. 3 (U.P.).— Press dispatches from Jannina today reported that a stiff battle was being fought on the slopes of Djoumergaa Mountain southeast of Jannina following the looting of nine villages in the area.

Heavy rains stalled Greek army operations on Mount Kasidiaris where three guerilla groups were reportedly stationed.

Ban on Codes Between Radio 'Hams' Proposed

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday announced a proposed change in amateur rules which will ban the use of codes in all communications between amateur radio operators.

International radio regulations require the use of "plain language." The FCC said the same rule will be applied on domestic exchanges.

The regulation will not prevent the use of commonly accepted abbreviations "when the purpose and intent are to facilitate communications rather than to obscure their meaning."

House Begins Debate Today On Stopgap Foreign Aid Bill

home, while strengthening free nations for all eventualities."

The report said Russia has 4,050,000 men under arms, including 1,702,400 in western Russia and occupied Europe. It said the estimates were furnished by the War Department and divided Soviet troops roughly in this way: ground forces, 2,600,000; air forces, 450,000; navy, 600,000; security troops (MVD), 400,000.

Much of the Rules Committee questioning turned on anti-Communist objectives of the program.

Cox asked Vorys if one million American troops sent to Europe would "solve" the problem. Vorys said he didn't think that was the answer. He urged the House cut debate short and quickly pass the bill to meet a "ticklish situation."

Repreesntative Lodge said economic aid "may not be enough." He said the United States should be "less squeamish" about using the Communists' own weapon of "internal force."

"Matter of Intervention"

When members urged Lodge to be more specific about what he proposed, Lodge said he could not talk publicly, but the Government now has the necessary authority.

"It's a matter of intervention," Lodge said. "I think it can be done very cheaply and effectively."

Representative Donald L. Jackson (R., Calif.), another legislator who toured Europe last fall, said aid already given has been so effective that communism "has not made one substantial gain in Europe in the last year."

Jackson said even Communists in Greece concede Russia today would control Greece "and the Mediterranean world" if Congress had not voted 400 million dollars in aid.

Cross-examining Eaton and Bloom, Brown criticized past handling of aid funds, questioned how much relief actually would reach Europe's hungry, warned of the impact on prices that "will make us weak at home" and accused the President of advocating anti-Communist aid one week and shipments to Russia the next.

Brown asked if there were any commitments to the Marshall Plan in the interim bill. Bloom said there were none.

"Then you'll be perfectly happy if we knock the ears off the Marshall Plan," said Brown.

"I hope you won't," said Bloom.

When Representative Forest A. Harness (R., Ind.) took over the questioning, Bloom asked: "Did Mr. Brown pass the needle to you?"

Harness, like Brown, stressed the impact of the program on the cost of living. When Bloom asked how he would prevent that, Harness said: "I'd stop some of these exports until we've accumulated a surplus."

Harness also asked if there was a Marshall Plan commitment in the bill and was assured that there was none. But this time Bloom added:

"Don't fool yourself. You will get some more aid legislation later on."

May Run Beyond 4 Years

Cox asked Vorys if he thought a four-year program would be needed.

"I certainly do," Vorys replied, "and it may run longer than four years. We might as well tighten our belts."

Cox at one point said the United Sttaes "is facing a sort of international blackmail."

Rules Chairman Leo A. Allen (R., Ill.), who has announced he who has announced he will vote against interim aid, and Representative Ross Rizley (R., Okla.), joined in the critical questioning.

Some of their questions cued amendments to be offered on the floor to ban Government bidding for wheat at "above market" prices and to limit relief to surplus commodities.

Representative Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.) presented the committee's case for 60 million dollars in relief for China. That item was left out of the Senate bill, nor have State Department plans for aid to China been formulated.

Allen asked if Judd thought "3 cents apiece" for the 450 million Chinese would do them any good.

Judd said it would help China meet exchange needs. He urged surplus war supplies be provided in addition to helping Chiang Kai-shek combat Chinese Communists.

Mine Union Board, Lewis Meet Tuesday

John L. Lewis has summoned the United Mine Workers' 30-man international executive board to a meeting here next Tuesday.

While no explanation for the call was made by Lewis, the board is authorized to pick a successor to the late John O'Leary as vice president of the UMW. O'Leary died in San Francisco in October, after attending the AFL convention there.

Many Lewis lieutenants in the coal-mining districts have been mentioned for the post, but the UMW president has given no inkling of whom he favors for the No. 2 position in the union.

Meat Likely to Skyrocket, Anderson Says

traders were found to contain offsetting purchases and sales in the same futures," Secretary Anderson charged.

These accounts, Anderson added, "apparently were being held open to make it possible to avoid income tax.

"These transactions are being held open in a manner that involves no actual profit or loss to the trader, but provides a way of shifting profit from one year to another, and converting some profit items into what appears to be a loss."

Gain Shows Up as Loss

The report contained an example showing how a short-term capital gain of $18,000 was converted into a net capital loss of $4750 for tax purposes.

"Although only a few of these questionable futures transactions may be in violation of the letter of the Commodity Exchange Act, most of them appear fictitious in nature and should be eliminated, aside from their legality from an income tax standpoint," Anderson said.

The operations, the report said, are mostly for one of the following purposes: "(1) to shift profits from the taxable year in which they are earned to some subsequent year; (2) to convert profits from short-term fully taxable items into long-range capital net gains taxable at a lower rate, or (3) to convert an actually realized profit into the appearance of a net loss for tax purposes."

Anderson's reference to income tax, echoed an earlier reference before the House committee to the influence of taxes in the Government's grain-buying program. The reason grain purchases will be sharply reduced until after New Years, he said, was because many farmers were holding their grain from the market until the next tax year.

"We expect to resume buying in substantial amounts in January," he said.

Schwellenbach did not indicate what his bill for wage controls would contain. During a three-hour appearance, he made no reference to the announcement of Tuesday of a new CIO drive for "substantial" wage increases.

However, that demand caused congressional concern as to its effect upon efforts to cut the cost of living.

Rains Raise Hopes

Anderson's testimony highlighted a day filled with developments in the world grain situation:

1. Widespread rains throughout the great Southwestern winter wheat belt increased hopes that next year's yield from that area would be much better than earlier indications.

Anderson referred to this increased moisture. Experienced observers now hope, he said, that an earlier predicted decline of about 350 million bushels in the winter wheat crop from this year's all-time record may amount to less than half that figure.

2. The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization reported a recent survey revealed that the world food situation is "as critical as at any time since the end of the war."

"Though the outlook for next year is one of continuing critical shortage," FAO reported, "there is some prospect of improvement, given better weather conditions."

3. The new program for food conservation in this county will be discussed this afternoon at a White House news confernce. The Cabinet Food Committee, made up of the Secretaries of Agriculture, Commerce and State, will outline the new program under the direction of James A. Stillwell, food adviser to Secretary of State Marshall.

Distillers to Meet

4. Members of the Distilled Spirits Institute will meet this afternoon to discuss operations after the present shutdown ends December 25.

The meeting was called, it was reported, to consider requests by the Administration for legislation to further restrict use of grain in making beverage alcohol after the present holiday.

Such a program was included in Anderson's testimony before the House Banking Committee. He suggested that the Government allocate wheat to the distilling industry to save grain for Europe.

5. Secretary of Treasury Snyder told newsmen that President Truman would be pleased if Congress produces some ideas of its own on how to "combat inflationary bank credit."

Snyder's statement came after three members of the 12-man Federal Reserve Advisory Council had testified that the council opposes proposals to restore controls on installment buying and require banks to set aside special reserves to limit bank credit. The three who opposed the Administration's program were Robert V. Fleming, president of Riggs National Bank; David E. Williams, Corn Exchange National Bank of Philadelphia, and John H. McCoy, City National Bank of Columbus, Ohio.

Anti-Inflation Plans Discussed by Conferees

House and Senate Republican leaders met secretly yesterday to take the first concrete steps toward drafting a joint Senate-House Republican anti-inflation program in answer to President Truman's 10-point plan.

While those who attended emphasized that they discussed "just preliminaries," the conferees reached at least two conclusions:

1. Senate and House Republican leaders are "not too far apart" and a Republican program is "crystallizing."

2. President Truman's request for extension of the Administration's export control authority, which expires next February 29, was given a priority. Hearings will begin before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee in a day or so.

Murray Announcement Called 'Trial Balloon'

New York, Dec. 3 (AP).—Earl Bunting, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, said today he believes CIO President Philip Murray was "sending up a trial balloon" in announcing that his unions would ask "substantial" pay hikes when present contracts expire.

"I don't think Murray is after a wage increase," Bunting told a news conference at the NAM's fifty-second annual Congress of American Industry.

Italian Unemployed Ask Public Works

Sabotage Blamed

Paris Train Wreck Toll Put at 17

Arras, France, Dec. 3 (AP).—At least 17 persons were killed and 40 others injured today in the wreck of the Paris-Lille night train, which two French cabinet ministers said was caused by sabotage.

Rescue workers at the scene said they thought three other bodies were buried beneath the debris. (Interior Minister Jules Moch, a Socialist, said in Paris that 20 persons, including women and children, had been killed).

It was the eleventh train wreck in France in a week, during which trains have run despite a strike called by the Communist-led General Confederation of Labor (C. G. T.).

The prefecture at Arras said the reason for a track dislocation causing the wreck had not been determined definitely.

Armored Trucks Arrive in Milan To Stop New Riots

Rome, Dec. 3 (AP).—Several hundred jobless marched to the provincial governor's palace in Milan today demanding immediate public works projects to provide work and emergency issues of foodstuffs.

Thousands demonstrated in Milan last week protesting a proposed transfer of the province's prefect or governor. Troops were ordered to stand by. Today 24 light armored cars carrying machine guns and a crew of two arrived at the barracks of the Twenty-third Anti-tank Artillery Regiment.

Possibility of other labor trouble in that city appeared in a breakdown of negotiations between stores and their clerks.

Scattered strikes were reported throughout Italy, especially in southern areas. The newspapermen's union entered a deadlock with publishers over demands for increased pay, and in Genoa factory workers were described as ready to walk out because of slowness in receiving pay envelopes.

During the day Pietro Nenni, leader of the Communist-Allied Socialists, accused Interior Minister Mario Scelba of "fascistic tendencies." The Communist Party earlier charged that Premier de Gasperi was seeking through dictatorship to "enslave Italy to the foreigner."

Poles Accuse U. S. Envoy

Warsaw, Dec. 3 (AP).—The government, opening the trial of five men and two women accused of high treason and espionage, today charged the United States and British Embassies in Warsaw had received information from the underground which sought to overthrow the Polish government.

The indictment named Arthur Bliss Lane and Victor Cavendish-Bentinck, American and British Ambassadors, respectively, here until early 1947, as having acquired antistate information from underground bands. Others named as receiving information were Col. Thomas Gimson, British Military Attache; Maj. Jeter Winton, Assistant British Military Attache; Lieut. Col. Edward J. York of San Antonio, Tex., and Lieut. William J. Tonesk of Fairway Hills, Md., a suburb of Washington.

York formerly was Air Attache of the American Embassy and Tonesk was Assistant Naval Attache.

On trial are Mrs. Maria Martyowska, 54, former translator for the British Embassy; Miss Halina Sosnowska, Wladimierz Marszewski, Adam Obarski, Stanislas Sedziak, Wincenty Kwiecinski and Waclaw Lipinski.

All are accused of working in "contact committees with the Polish underground organization, of having carried on espionage against the Polish state" and of treason.

The group was accused of collecting economic, political and military information, including data on Polish fortifications and troop dispositions.

Leaders of the ring, the indictment said, received large sums of money in American dollars from antigovernment Polish circles in London.

The first defendant called, Kwiecinski, told the court he was guilty of espionage and described in detail how information was collected.

DR. VICTOR CHI-TSAI HOO of China, an assistant secretary-general of the United Nations, has been appointed head of the Korean Independence Commission set up by the recently adjourned 1947 Assembly session according to an announcement yesterday by Secretary General Trygve Lie wives, weary of standing in line at the bakeries.

The National Assembly, after passing the second article of Premier Schuman's legislation providing steep penalties for keeping workers from their jobs, went to work despite a Communist filibuster on the remaining three articles. These double the penalties for sabotage and provide jail sentences for persons encouraging strikes or sabotage by writing or speeches and limit the control legislation to three months.

The vote on the second article was 412 to 183, with the Communists again in the opposition.

Bishop Orders Investigation Of 'Ghosts'

Stockholm, Sweden, Dec. 3 (AP).—Lutheran Bishop Torsten Bohlin ordered tonight a "scientific investigation of certain ghostly disturbances" at a lonely vicarage in Jamtland Province, where apparitions were reported seen over 20 years included a woman in gray and three old ladies knitting on a sofa.

The bishop said five clergymen of the Lutheran State Church who have lived successively in the vicarage, which is near a deep forest, told him the main specter was the woman in gray.

A visitor to the vicarage said he saw the three old ladies, dressed in old-fashioned clothes. The haunts were more apt to appear when the moon was full, the bishop quoted the clergymen as saying, and one old rocking chair frequently was pulled backward with a jerk from under it occupants by an unseen hand.

Bishop Bohlin said the five clergymen, including the present occupant, Curate Erik Indgren, are "very intelligent persons with a critical sense." He added that he believed their reports and "it is is evident that we here have to do wit ha wilderness that science has to penetrate."

The bishop told the clergymen to write down their experiences and submit the records to some scientist for investigation.

American and Other Foreign Establishments Damaged as Egyptians Protest Partition

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 3 (AP).—American, British, Greek and other foreign establishments were damaged today by students demonstrating for the third successive day against the United Nations' decision to partition Palestine.

An estimated crowd of 300, mostly students, pushed through police lines to the American and British embassies. The demonstrators shouted "Down with America!" and some threw stones at American photographers who were on the embassy roof.

Police, wielding clubs, dispersed a large crowd which had gathered before Abdine Palace, shouting against Premier Mahmoud Fahmy Nokrashy Pasha and for former Premier Mustapha Nahas Pasha.

Glass doors and windows of the main offices of the American Trans-World Airlines, on the Nile River, were smashed by youths.

A few windows were broken at the All Saints Anglican Cathedral and at a Greek school. At the Cairo Motor Co., which distributes British automobiles, and at Anglo-Egyptian motors, agents for Ford, windows and cars were damaged.

Press reports from Zagazig, Egypt, said demonstrators set fire to the British Institute, a cultural organization.

The Turf Club here, which has many British members, was stoned and windows broken. Many windows also were broken at the British consulate. The Swiss consulate reported slight damage. The automobile of a French commercial attache was slightly damaged.

Mufti Hailed

Police used their clubs to break up a demonstration by 1000 or more persons who seized a truck carrying American coca cola and tried to push it into Nile.

Demands for a "revolution" were heard among demonstrators. Several small groups of students marched past Shepheard's Hotel, shouting: "Jews are dogs of the earth!" And denouncing the United States, Russia and Britain.

One crowd of several thousand marched to headquarters of the Arab League, shouting encouragement for the exiled Mufti of Jerusalem, and asking for weapons so they could save Palestine "with our blood."

Abdel Rahman Azzam Pasha, league secretary-general, assured them that weapons were being prepared in many places for the demonstrators and that they would soon be trained for fighting.

In Alexandria, workers and student, estimated at 3000, marched through the streets shouting, "We want arms!" They also shouted slogans against the Americans, British and Russians.

At centuries-old Alazhar University in Cairo, teachers undertook to organize the enlistment and financing of a Jihad (holy war), proclaimed for the purpose of "driving the wolves away" from Palestine.

Martial Law in Aden

In Aden, martial law was declared and a curfew imposed for 24 hours in this Arabian coast British colony after one person was killed and 20 were injured in disorders between Arabs and Jews. Arabs started a fire in a Jewish school and warehouses, burned more than 20 motorcars, and plundered some shops.

In Beirut, the Lebanese Education Ministry ordered the closing of all schools after crowds of students attacked the French Freres School.

In Baghdad, Iraq, waves of marchers, many led by women, visited the Council of Ministers, Parliament and the royal palace, some carrying banners which said "Jihad (holy war) for Palestine."

The demonstrations were preceded by parade of the Iraqi army in which mechanical and mobile units participated.

sided markedly at sunset, but tension still was high

So fearsome were the prospects of full scale civil war that Chief Secretary Sir Henry Gurney of the Palestine government was said by Arab leaders to have appealed personally to them to call off the rest of their three-day general strike. Today was the second day of the strike.

Dr. Husseini Khalidi, secretary of the Arab higher executive, said the committee refused.

A Palestine government source said the Arab executive advised Gurney the Arabs were prepared to "take appropriate action" if the government could not maintain order.

Lie Plans Trip to Palestine

Lake Success, Dec. 3 (AP).—United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie said today he was considering a visit to Palestine early next year by himself or one of his chief aides.

Lie also announced the appointment of Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, American Negro formerly with the State Department, as principal secretary to the five-nation commission appointed by the 1947 U. N. Assembly to supervise partitioning of the Holy Land into separate Jewish and Arab countries by next October 1.

At the same time a six-nation working group of the U. N. Trusteeship Council began preliminary work on plans for the government of Jerusalem as an international city. The six delegates, representing the United States, Britain, France, China, Australia and Mexico, met privately for more than two hours on procedural questions. Benjamin Gerig of the United States was elected chairman of the Jerusalem planners and Sir Allan Burns of Britain vice chairman.

Other U. N. developments:

Lie announced the appointment of Victor Hoo of China, an assistant secretary-general, as head of the secretariat for the nine-nation Korean Independence Commission created by the 1947 Assembly. Hoo said he would leave for Korea early in January.

Lie said he would leave for Europe soon after the first of the year to survey prospective sites for the 1948 Assembly.

The selection of Bunche to head the commission's staff had been expected, since Bunche had played an active role in the work of the 11-nation U. N. Special Committee on Palestine last summer during the on-the-scene study which led to the partition plan.

Bunche, 43, is director of the U. N.'s Trusteeship Division. A native of Detroit, Bunche was graduated from the University of California at Los Angeles in 1927 and later received M. A. and Ph. D. degrees from Harvard.

In 1935, he became professor of political science at Howard University. In 1943, he was connected with the Library of Congress, living at that time at 1510 Jackson st. ne. He joined the United States State Department in 1944 and later became associate chief of the department's division of dependant area affairs. He is the grandson of an American Negro slave.

Children's One World

The International Children's Emergency Fund, which expects to be in operation in 12 European countries by the end of this month, has been given a fillip by a ruling of the Comptroller General of the United States. The Comptroller General says that the entire contribution authorized by Congress last May must be kept intact—even though 25 million dollars of it was conditional. Congress, in making a direct allocation of 15 million dollars to the fund, had set aside an additional 25 million to be used in matching other nations' contributions by approximately one and a third. The State Department raised the question as to whether a part of this reserve—since it had not yet been drawn on—could be considered available now for this country's interim aid program, specifically for making up a shortage of 16 million dollars for Austrian aid. The idea, of course, was that Congress later could authorize "matching funds" when and if other countries contributed.

Congressional friends of the fund feared such action would destroy confidence on the part of nations that are yet expected to contribute. They also felt it would weaken international cooperation generally. The Children's Fund is the only international relief operation now in existence, and it is one that allocates on the basis of need without discrimination on account of race, religion or politics. Congressmen who visited Europe last summer were impressed by what it was doing in supplying supplementary meals to undernourished children, a program that will soon extend to 3½ million children in Europe, and later to others in China and the Far East. For this country to have drawn even on a conditional fund earmarked for international purposes would have been another step away from international toward unilateral action. Secretary Marshall, in his opening address to the General Assembly of the United Nations, declared the keystone of American foreign policy was support of the United Nations—which body in 1946 by unanimous vote established the Children's Fund.

Investigative Procedure

The extremely important work performed by congressional investigating committees has sometimes been marred by excesses in the exercise of their authority. Now and then, indeed, as in the case of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, these excesses have amounted to gross abuse of the power delegated by Congress and have resulted in grievous injury to the reputations of innocent persons. Some regularization of investigative procedure has become imperative both for the safeguarding of individual rights and for protection of the prestige of Congress. Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas has sought to provide this regularization in a bill introduced last week which would prescribe the procedures of investigating committees while still permitting them the latitude requisite to their effective operation.

Mrs. Douglas' proposal would impose three elementary restraints upon committee conduct. It would assure every witness, in the first place, "the right to have the aid and assistance of counsel" and "a right at the conclusion of his testimony either to make an oral statement or at his option to file a sworn statement which shall be made a part of the record of such hearing." The legitimate work of committees could in no way be impeded by such obvious concessions to fair play. But the denial of these "rights" by such committees as the one investigating un-American activities have made necessary the stipulation of what ought to be taken for granted.

The same can be said respecting Mrs. Douglas' second provision—in our view the most important in her bill. It stipulates that when the reputation of any person is damaged by any report issued under the committee's imprimatur or by any testimony or evidence presented to the committee, the person referred to shall have a chance to present countervailing evidence and to cross-examine his detractors. This seems a more effectual remedy than that proposed for the same purpose by Representative Price—to make "privileged" the rebuttal statements of persons assailed in committee hearings. Again the House Committee on Un-American Activities must be cited as the outstanding exemplar of the need for protection of this sort. Time and again during its headlined Hollywood hearings, it permitted witnesses to defame persons not present, without requiring a shred of evidence to support the defamation and without affording the victims any opportunity of rebuttal.

The third provision of the Douglas bill is narrower in application, needlessly so in our opinion. It stipulates that a newspaperman should not be called to testify before a committee concerning any publication by him "unless upon vote of a majority of the committee or subcommittee before whom he is called to testify, provided that no such person shall be called before any committee or subcommittee having less than five members." This strikes us as so reasonable a provision that we should like to see it extended to all citizens, whether newspapermen or not. Star-chamber hearings before arrogant committee chairmen acting without the knowledge or consent of their colleagues are an outright perversion of the investigative process.

Apologia

Mr. Humphrey Bogart, the movie actor, has emitted a press release which must certainly be reckoned one of the most remarkable documents of its kind. Apropos of nothing at all, so far as we can discover, he has undertaken to hang his head in a most perplexing sort of shame on account of his participation in a recent trip to Washington in the company of a number of fellow film stars calling themselves the Committee for the First Amendment, organized to protest the Hollywood inquiry of the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

"I went to Washington," says Mr. Bogart's press release, "because I thought fellow Americans were being deprived of their constitutional rights, and for that reason alone. That the trip was ill-advised, even foolish, I am very ready to admit. At the time, it seemed the thing to do. I have absolutely no use for communism nor for anyone who serves that philosophy. I am an American. And very likely, like a good many of you, sometimes a foolish and impetuous American."

Well, of course, there is no reason for Mr. Bogart to apologize for his purpose. Defense of the constitutional rights of fellow citizens is an excellent reason for making a trip to Washington; and on this occasion there was very good basis for belief that such rights were genuinely imperiled. It is rather hard to understand, therefore, why he has become so ready to admit that the trip was ill-advised, even foolish. The Committee for the First Amendment, organized very hurriedly and compelled by circumstances to function in an altogether impromptu manner, rendered a real service to the industry for which it spoke and to the concept of freedom it sought to defend. If it was less articulate than it should have been, if it fumbled somewhat in its public relations, these defects can be set down to inexperience and lack of preparation. But certainly its conduct contributed far more to the dignity and prestige of Hollywood than the conduct of those men who used the Thomas Committee to point accusing fingers at their colleagues and cooperated in that committee's effort to interfere in the making of movies.

One can scarcely help suspecting that what led Mr. Bogart to his interesting apologia and his gratuitous avowal that he has no use for communism was fear of the consequences of being branded a Communist by the Thomas Committee. Here is illustrated the terrible danger of that committee's irresponsibility. An actor, dependent for his livelihood upon popular acceptance, could be ruined by Representative Thomas—and without any redress whatsoever. And it is precisely because the Thomas Committee has this power to intimidate that its interference with the policies of the motion picture industry constitutes an impairment of the freedom of one segment of the press. We are rather sorry for Mr. Bogart. He had nothing at all to be ashamed of until he began to be ashamed.

Money Dilemma

The fundamental cause of the present inflation is an increase in the supply of money in circulation without a corresponding increase in the supply of goods. Money includes credit extended by the banks. But, says Chairman Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board in his testimony before the Joint Committee on the Economic Report, control of credit is only one and by no means the most important method of combating inflation.

In the absence of a comprehensive scheme of controls, he declared, the most effective curb on inflationary demands is afforded by a fiscal policy designed to produce "the largest possible surplus to be used to pay off bank-held Government debt and thus reduce the money supply." On that point Mr. Eccles and Secretary of the Treasury Snyder are in agreement. However, the Treasury head is not in favor of the board's request for legislative authority to restrict further over-all expansion of bank credit by requiring all commercial banks to set up temporary special reserves consisting of short-term Government securities or cash.

The suggestion is also unpopular in the banking world. But, even if it is not accepted, the proposal calls attention to the board's present powerlessness to impose effective restraints on the over-all expansion of bank credit. The reasons for the board's impotence were clearly explained by Mr. Eccles. The Reserve System, as he says, has certain broad powers to influence the supply and cost of bank credit. For instance, through buying and selling Government securities in the open market it can either increase or absorb bank reserves. It can also restrain the banks from borrowing by raising Federal Reserve Bank discount rates. And finally it can limit credit expansion by increasing the required reserve ratios of the banks—a control weapon which, however, is of little use at present, since outside New York and Chicago the maximum legal reserve requirements are already in effect.

Even the raising of discount rates to prohibitive figures would be ineffective, for so long as the system stands ready to buy Government securities in the open market the commercial banks can always replenish their reserves by selling such securities. If only half of their present holdings were to be sold, Mr. Eccles points out that the banks could add about 35 billion dollars to their reserves. And those additional reserves would afford the basis for a potential credit expansion of about six times that sum or more than 200 billion dollars.

And if the Federal Reserve Banks tried to prevent this kind of monetization of the public debt by refusing to buy Government securities, thus leaving the price of Government issues to be determined in an uncontrolled market, the disruptive effects would be extremely serious. Mr. Eccles stated that one very keen bond market analyst predicted that a failure of the Reserve System to support the 2½ per cent rate for marketable Government bonds would lead to wholesale liquidation of all Government bonds, with repercussions that would be "catastrophic." Certainly such action would depreciate the prices of outstanding Government bonds, increase the costs of Government borrowing, and make refunding operations extremely difficult.

For all these cogent reasons, the Federal Reserve System is unwilling—and, in our opinion, rightly so—to employ the credit control instrumentalities now at its command to restrain over-all credit expansion. Congress may apply restraints in one field by reimposing control over consumer credit. But that would still leave a wide uncontrolled field for expansion of commercial bank loans. It is for the purpose of restraining the creation of more purchasing power through general commercial bank loan expansion that the Reserve Board is asking for power to impose special reserve requirements and thereby reduce the volume of potential credit expansion that could be based on a given amount of reserves.

In the board's opinion, the requested special reserve requirement would restrain private credit expansion by making banks less willing or less able to build up their reserves by selling Government securities. Moreover, since short-term Governments could be held as reserves, it would not be necessary for the banks to dispose of earning assets in order to comply with the higher reserve requirements, as would be the case if basic reserve requirements were to be raised. Finally, this method of tightening private credits could, the board believes, be effected without producing instability in the market for Government securities.

The banks prefer to rely on self-restraint in combating undue credit expansion. Whether voluntary restraints imposed on lending by private bankers is adequate to prevent a further inflationary expansion of loans is highly doubtful. The difficulty is that loans that appear to be sound when prices are rising and business booming may prove to be bad if prices suddenly drop. The aim of over-all credit control is to apply brakes to inflation; and no private banker, however conservative he may be, is in a position to arrest a general inflationary movement that may ultimately lead to disastrous deflation. On the contrary, as inflation gains momentum, demands for larger loans and more of them inevitably increase and the resistance of the individual banker to borrower importunities is gradually weakened. That is why some responsible control agency is needed to exert a restraining influence on credit expansion in the aggregate. That sort of agency we simply do not have at the present time.

Food Compromise

The compromise ending the dispute between the U. N. Food and Agriculture Organization and the International Emergency Food Council is probably the best solution that could be expected. Disagreement had developed over the earlier decision of the FAO to absorb the IEFC as of the end of this year. Under the agreement adopted by the FAO Council at its meeting here last month, the IEFC technically will be dissolved, but its personnel and policies are to be taken over almost intact as the new International Emergency Food Committee of the FAO.

This is but another way of saying that the IEFC will continue to meet the practical day-to-day problems of allocating scarce foods to needy nations as a semiautonomous function. It is encouraging that the extremely valuable operation of the various commodity committees will not be impaired. We hope that the FAO will make a determined effort to keep the services of the IEFC's able secretary general, D. A. Fitzgerald, whose wealth of experience makes him a key figure in international food discussions.

GINGER CAT

Highly decorative, and a trifle sinister too,
The amber-colored cat with the sea-green eyes,
Contemplative now and cryptic in shadow of Boxwood,
Inscrutably watchful for fell hour of prize.

For the dispassionate gaze is old and world-weary,
Older than time and these silent shadows of trees,
And the unruffled poise is studied and sculptured
As ancient sandstone cats on Egyptian frieze.

But a trace of the tiger is there and waiting
Beneath the drawing room pose that seems half-asleep.
For now he springs forth in a golden explosion
With eyes of green flame and death in his leap.

Confusion Of History

"See Bee," writing in The Washington Post of November 27, is guilty of a slight confusion of names, which is probably accidental, but also of some confusion of thought. In mentioning Benedict Arnold's tomb in Westminster Abbey he rearranges history in rather a startling manner, but probably had in mind the link between the American traitor and the spy in question, who was, of course, Maj. John Andre, the British counterpart of our own Nathan Hale, who regretted he had but one life to give for his country and had spent the latter years of that life as a spy during the Revolution. We are proud of Hale and the British are proud of Andre.

In The John Book, which records the stories of famous men named John, of every age and country, the authors have this to say of Major Andre: "The word 'spy' is not always one of contempt . . . George Washington himself paid tribute to Maj. John Andre . . . who was captured and met death as a spy but had the respect of his enemies as well as the admiration of his own countrymen . . . A military court found him a spy, and he was condemned to be hanged. He carried himself gallantly to the end. His death was one of the most pathetic of the Revolution. His body was taken to England and buried with all honors in Westminster Abbey in London. There is a tablet to his memory at the spot of his capture, near Tarrytown, N. Y."

It would seem that the lion's tail is being somewhat unnecessarily twisted in an attempt to revive extremely ancient history and bad feeling which even in the days of the Revolution did not exist, in this particular at any rate.

I for one agreed very heartily, however, with the letter writer, who pointed out that one contemporary American was missing from the ceremony at the abbey and believe that almost any country but the easygoing United States would have felt more keenly the absence of the wife of a British member of the royal family, whose long exile has been borne with dignity and entire failure to capitalize on an unrelenting governmental attitude. I feel we could work up more national indignation over the snub to the Duke of Windsor and his wife than over an announcer's allusion to an honored opponent, dead now nearly 200 years.

Negro Schools

A letter published in The Washington Post of November 26 and signed by Alfred P. Brent, prompts me to correct a mistaken impression concerning the complexion of the board of trustees of colored schools of Washington and Georgetown in the early period. The current interest in the origin of segregated schools justifies a clear statement of the facts.

The first school for colored children was opened here in 1864. Alfred Jones, the first colored man appointed to the board of trustees of such schools, served from 1867 to 1870. William Syphax, who served on the board from 1868 to 1871, was president of the board, 1868-70, and treasurer 1870-71. The statement that he was the first colored man appointed, may be traced to the articles in local papers, including The Washington Post of November 1, 1902, on the dedication of the William Syphax School.

The report which Mr. Brent cites, that of Henry Barnard, Commissioner of Education, 1869-70, gives Syphax credit for naming the Stevens School, for which Alfred Jones gave the land. These men and Albert G. Hall served from 1868 to 1870. William H. A. Wormley, the third colored man appointed to the board, served with Syphax and Charles King for the year 1870-71.

Moreover, William Syphax and William H. A. Wormley vigorously protested against segregated schools and endorsed the bill introduced in Congress by Senator Charles Sumner, May 6, 1870, for the abolition of such schools. I have copies of the official reports of Syphax and Wormley, in which arguments for mixed schools are set forth at length.

Communist Threat

Permit me to congratulate you on Herblock's cartoon of November 28. It is notable more for what it reveals but fails to depict rather for the visible contents of the cartoon. Plainly it reveals the fact that the editorial policy of The Washington Post is opposed to any concentration upon the problem of our times—the threat of communism to democracy, even though there may be unanimity on the issue between both major parties.

The Washington Post would invite far more respect if it came out in forthright support of the Communists than it does at present by its method of lending them shamefaced but nonetheless effective support.

It would be rather astounding if The Washington Post permitted this letter to pierce the iron curtain which it has recently established against adverse comment. And you would have us believe that you stand for free speech!

Grain Trading

The column of J. A. Livingston, "Paradox: Grain Market Rises, Yet Trade Bets on Price Drop," appearing in your issue of November 27, adds confusion to an already confused subject. The fact is that grain processors invariably bet on price drops in grain futures markets.

It is the gambling public that bets on price rises. It is not difficult to understand why September, 1948, wheat futures are quoted at 50 cents less than December, 1947, futures. The gambling public has not yet gotten into the September, 1948, wheat futures market. Furthermore, Mr. Livingston would be well advised not to read Boyle, James E., too seriously.

Partition Of Palestine

Please correct a flaw in Robert Bruskin's reporting in the November 30 issue of The Washington Post regarding Palestine partition. It isn't correct that "all of the Holy Land was ordered divided into three parts today—one to Arabs, another to Jews and the third, Jerusalem, to all the world."

The truth is that only one fourth of historic Palestine was ordered divided in three parts. The other three fourths, namely, Transjordan, was in 1922 arbitrarily detached by Britain, the mandatory power, who set it up as an Arab kingdom under Abdulla.

"China's Judd"

As one born in China and long a resident in the interior there, I am deeply troubled at the proposal of aid for General Chiang. It is my belief that the American people would not back such a program if they at all realized the true significance of it. I wish, therefore, to add my voice to that of the writer of your editorial of November 29, "China's Judd," as well as to commend letters by T. A. Hamilton in The Washington Post of November 18 and 29.

Two ideas seem to play into the average American's wish to help the Chinese. The first of these is the wish to support a people long suffering in the war and one like us in many qualities. Everyone likes the Chinese. The second is a fear that only by this help can we save China from Russia.

Help to Chiang, that is given through the Nationalist government, would not help the Chinese people but would only fatten further the Nationalist clique which has recently ousted the only democratic organized group in China—the Democratic League.

Help to China, given in this way, would not affect the strength of Russia's influence in China, for only a truly democratic growth could do that and this will never come through Chiang.

To put through this aid to China would really be to demonstrate United States support of a non-democratic and near-fascist state. It would be to contradict absolutely that we have any interest whatever in the strengthening of the democratic principle in China. We already stand embarrassed enough before the peoples of the Far East for our failure to uphold signs of freedom as they have appeared. Let us not add this to our record.

If, indeed, we wish to demonstrate that we yet have some tendencies to look for democracy in our foreign policy, let us see where its roots are and nourish them. Where but in India! Today India needs our food and our goods and asks for no relief. She wants to pay for what she gets. This very situation may contribute to the difficulty she has in getting anything from us. Because she was not invaded during the war she is not eligible to help as are those countries that were. However, it would seem to me, that goods made available to this great democratic influence in the Far East would far surpass in importance help given to the Nationalist government of China, even though with all our hearts we would like to find a way of helping the Chinese people.

If we must for the time bypass help given to China through political channels, we can indeed find other means of reaching the Chinese people. Money given through the United China Services, which helps in the rebuilding of schools and colleges, hospitals, and in the extension of the Chinese industrial cooperatives, all reaches the people themselves and demonstrates to them the interest of the American people better than any grants to the Nationalist government. The industrial cooperatives include such projects as the Bailey School in Kansu Province, where constructive and democratic living and training are taught to the students. All help to universities, which are partly manned and controlled by American educational groups; the educational and medical and agricultural work carried on by missions; private orphanages; businesses where the integrity of the governing boards is known—all these are channels of real help.

It is time that the people of America reached the people of China, not through doles, but through moral support. We seem to have failed our Chinese friends by coming out on the wrong end, politically. Let us make clear now where we stand.

Taxing Peter To Help Paul

By Malvina Lindsay

Toll On "Luxuries"

THE WOMAN who pays a $1 tax on a $5 handbag would like to get in on some of the promised tax relief. But it looks as if she and all others who pay excises on so-called luxuries will have to continue paying in some degree. Otherwise, who would make up the loss in revenue when and if other taxes are cut, particularly those of upper and middle income couples who pool and split their incomes for tax returns?

New tax proposals, soon to be introduced in Congress, are scheduled to contain the split income provision, as well as a cut in gift and estate taxes, a small increase in personal exemptions, and possibly a cut across the board. But most of the legislators drawing the tax program favor an even broader base of excises. Some would extend these to candy, chewing gum, soft drinks, bank checks and parimutuel machines at race tracks.

Some adjustments may possibly be made on luxury taxes. A fight on behalf of handbags has been made before the House Ways and Means Committee by manufacturers, backed by women's groups. Since more than half the handbags sold in 1946 were $4.95 and less, their 20 per cent tax especially hit the small income group.

IT IS NOW being earnestly argued that a handbag is a necessity, not a luxury. "Tax men's pockets if you tax handbags," say the manufacturers and women concerned. They point out that handbags were part of the uniform issued women in the armed services. They ask, "Who ever saw a woman on the street without a handbag? She may lack hat, gloves, or stockings—but a handbag, no!" Manufacturers warn that consumers' resistance to the handbag and leather tax may depress business.

The handbag situation emphasizes the need of more women on congressional committees. It is generally believed that the increase of the handbag tax from 10 to 20 per cent was caused by men committee members confusing handbags with overnight bags when the tax on leather goods was raised.

But not only is a handbag a necessity, the House Ways and Means Committee has been told—so also are furs, jewelry, cosmetics, luggage, movies, telegrams, transportation, virtually all the 50 items that carry excise taxes. Take fur coats. Only 5 per cent of those sold go to the mink and ermine decked lovelies pictured in magazine advertisements. More than three fourths retail at less than $400.

JEWELRY manufacturers make out a good necessity case for clocks, watches, cuff links, chains, beads, earrings, clips and pins. They say jewelry has become as much a part of the costume as a sleeve or a collar. Yet most of the jewelry bloc would be willing to settle for a tax exemption on sales under $25.

Despite all this, any sizable cuts in excises are unlikely. The leather and handbag business last year brought Uncle Sam around 34 million dollars, the jewelry business nearly three times that amount. In fact, the 8 billion dollars yielded in excise taxes is urgently needed to offset revenue losses proposed new income tax cuts will bring.

What is more, the citizens' committee asked by Chairman Harold Knutson of the Ways and Means Committee to study the tax problem, advises (except for Matthew Woll, dissenting labor member) that excise taxes be continued as an important part of the Federal revenue system to provide more assured revenue in bad times when income taxes fall off. The committee also says they are needed to give other tax relief—though it advises correcting present "inequities."

On the other hand, the Committee for Economic Development advises doing away with excises except for liquor, tobacco and gasoline, because they are sales taxes and hence bear heaviest on low income groups. However, those drawing up the tax program are believed to be listening to their own appointed advisers. Besides, they need the excise money.

Restraints On Liberty

Without doubt the economic troubles which beset my neighbor and me are the result of improper application of the doctrine of liberty. It is not good for certain citizens to have too much liberty. As society is no longer the simple structure it was when this Nation was a Nation of smaller and fewer cities, it will require sincere and earnest action on the part of Government to distinguish the point at which individual liberty infringes on the rights of the many, or the few.

Each day economic measures must be taken for the general welfare—to limit each man's rights against his neighbor's rights. It must be made easier to do right and much more difficult to do wrong toward each other. It is more law that is needed, not less, to uphold the "Golden Rule" if all men are to be given equal opportunity.

There is nothing to fear from wholesome restraint imposed by Government since true liberty—every free man should know—comes of wholesome government. However, the people must see to it, before Government is given too much power to restrain the rights of man—those rights which make it easy to be unjust—that their Government is in the hands of wholesome democratic legislators.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

An American Agenda

MR. MOLOTOV has now made it plain enough that he is not in London to arrange a European settlement at this time. While his agents are using violence against the French and Italian governments, he has shown his own hand by rejecting the French proposal for a compromise on the German assets in Austria, and by announcing that he looks forward to the military occupancy of Germany for an indefinite time to come.

Lippmann

This means that the Kremlin intends to have the Red army remain in the center of Europe. It is to remain there in order to keep its grip upon eastern Europe, which is encircled by the Red army. And it is to act, in military parlance, as a force in being against western Europe. It is to be near enough at hand to encourage the French and Italian Communists while they attempt to prove, on orders from Moscow, that it is impossible to govern western Europe without them.

THE SITUATION is serious. But there is no reason to doubt that we can meet it by a series of measures which we have the right to take, are in a position to take, and are able to take. These measures have all been discussed separately, and on none of them is there in principle a serious division of opinion within the country, or between Congress and the Executive, or among the recognized leaders of the two parties. If now these measures could be decided promptly, definitively, and together, the Soviet Union will certainly not win the campaign which it is now conducting.

FOR THIS campaign, though dangerous and destructive, is in the cold war remarkably like the Battle of the Bulge in the German war. What then are the measures which we could take? They would, I think, include what follows:

1. The first measure is logically in the field of American military policy. Since Mr. Molotov intends to keep the Red army in the center of Europe, we have no choice but to build up and maintain an operational striking force capable, as Mr. Lovett argued the other day, of delivering a sustained assault at long range. That, of course, and not by our token armies on the continent, is how the Red army can most surely be "contained." As long as the Red army holds half of Europe in its grip and threatens the other half, it must be neutralized and checked by American military power designed specifically to reach the vital centers from which that army is directed and supplied.

We should, therefore, make it clear to Moscow and to all the world that until there are peace treaties which result in the military evacuation of Europe, we shall not disarm but shall, on the contrary, rearm.

2. THE immediate passage by the House of the interim aid bill, as it passed the Senate plus the House provision for an advance from the RFC.

3. The submission in the nearest possible future of the full Marshall Plan.

4. A statement by the President that when American troops evacuate Italy on December 15, the defense of Italy against external aggression will remain an obligation under the peace treaty—since Italy is so nearly disarmed—and an obligation under the Charter of the United Nations, and that we shall honor these obligations. In addition, if the congressional leaders think it advisable, Congress could support the President by adopting, as Mr. Sumner Welles has suggested, a joint resolution.

5. AN announcement that we have decided to support the Italian claim to be the trustee of the African colonies which were Italian before Mussolini.

6. A declaration at London that this Government favors putting the coal and steel resources of the Ruhr under an international statute, and that it is prepared to make a binding agreement with France, and with all other interested nations, that the resources of the Ruhr will not be restored to the sovereignty of Germany but will be dedicated to the security of Europe and its common welfare.

7. A positive rejection of the partition of Germany and of a separate peace with the western part of Germany.

8. A positive stand in favor of a German peace treaty with a German government, preferably federal in character, which speaks for the whole of Germany within its post-Hitler frontiers; in favor of the replacement of military government by civilian control; and in favor of a timetable, fixed in the treaty, for the withdrawal of the armies of occupation.

9. AN offer to Poland and to Russia to negotiate about the control of the Ruhr and the allocation of its resources if Moscow will accept a compromise on the Austrian treaty and will negotiate some rectification of the eastern frontier of Germany.

10. A declaration that we regard all the European nations, including of course those in eastern Europe, as members of one indivisible political and economic community; that in so far as we are permitted to do so, we shall treat them as such; that as an evidence of this, we favor the granting of productive credits to Poland, Czechoslovakia, and Yugoslavia when those credits fit clearly into the European Recovery Program.

IT IS possible, I believe, to show that each of these measures separately is necessary and wise. But in the situation which is now developing, the combination of all these measures would, I believe, have specific and extraordinary value. For in combination they constitute a policy of concrete measures which are designed to reassure the frightened and to warn the reckless, to unite Europe, to provide it with security, to promote its recovery, to restore national respect, and to inspire hope.

The combination of these measures would be a policy which has scope and depth, is bold and is magnanimous. It would, I have little doubt, touch the hearts and minds of the peoples of Europe. They would see that in their ordeal we are not only prepared to defend them and to help them but—what would mean the most to the very best among them—that we have lent them our understanding too, have realized what are their vital national interests and what also are their common interests as good Europeans.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

Palestine And The Future

THE DRAMATIC decision in the United Nations to partition tiny Palestine into Jewish and Arab states was a beginning and not an end. No man can pretend to see in detail where that beginning may lead. What follows is an attempt to summarize the conflicting forecasts of the general shape of Palestine's future by two observers thoroughly qualified to speak.

The first forecast is that of a Zionist, a native of Palestine, and one of the most brilliant of the leaders of the Jewish Agency, which will form the heart of the new Jewish government. The second is that of an expert on the Middle East, no Zionist, who has devoted much of his life to a study of the strange complex pattern of Middle Eastern politics.

Both are agreed on at least one point—before there is peace in the Holy Land, there will be more bloodshed. The Zionist agrees that there may even be bloodshed within the Jewish community itself, since he does not entirely rule out the possibility of a violent bid for power by the right-wing terrorist groups. Yet he believes that the Jewish Agency's military arm, the Haganah, can easily deal with any such attempt. And he is confident that by the time the Jewish state is due to come into official existence, the Jewish government will already be a going concern, probably under the leadership of the wise and aging Chaim Weizmann.

The real threat to that government's continued existence will come, of course, from the large Arab minority within the Jewish state, from the new Arab state which the United Nations has brought into existence, and from the surrounding Arab nations. The Zionist leader believes that King Abdulla of Transjordan will almost certainly gain control of the Arab fragment of Palestine. He reports that the British and American governments, and the Jewish Agency as well, have quietly let Abdulla know that his ambitions to add the Arab area to his own somewhat sleazy kingdom will not be viewed with disfavor. Under any circumstances, there is little to stand in Abdulla's way, since he has the only really effective armed force in the Middle East, in the army trained by the fabulous British soldier of fortune, Glubb Pasha.

IF THE WORST comes to the worst, the Zionist believes that a spectacular counter-move by the Haganah, for which tentative plans are even now being laid, will silence the Arabs. The Haganah has already done something of the kind, when Arab attacks against the Jews started last summer. The Haganah immediately put to death 11 Arabs, including the ringleaders of the disorders, and the attacks ceased immediately. Some such determined counter-move on a far larger scale, the Zionist leader believes, will have the same result. Then the Jews will be able to turn to the task of peaceably building their new nation.

THAT IS a Zionist forecast of what lies ahead for the new state. The non-Zionist Middle Eastern expert considers this forecast vastly optimistic. He agrees that an organized Arab military assault on the Jewish state is unlikely. But he believes that the ferocious resentment against partition in the whole Arab world is vastly underestimated in the United States. He is certain that the United Nations Palestine Commission will be confronted with growing chaos from the day of its arrival. Sooner or later the commission will be forced to report back to the Security Council that the situation is wholly out of hand, and that the partition of Palestine can only be imposed by armed force. And what, he asks, happens then?

He is convinced, like most observers of events in the Middle East, that the Soviet Union is determined eventually to control this rich strategic area. He believes that the chaos which lies ahead will present the Soviet Union with its greatest opportunity to fish in the troubled Middle Eastern waters. Already there have been reports that the Soviets have been playing both ends against the middle, supplying the Arabs with arms, and infiltrating agents into Jewish Palestine from Romania. If troops are to go to Palestine, Soviet troops will go too. And there is little doubt that the Soviet contingent would consist of a very special type of soldier. It was for such reasons that one group in the State Department has fought the United Nations settlement.

Only time will tell which of these projections of the future of tragic Palestine is the more accurate. One thing is certain—there is more trouble ahead. The only question is, how much trouble, and for how long?

Boom In The Southwest

TUCSON, ARIZ.—Among the States of the Union, Arizona is a lusty adolescent of 35 years. In the current boom it is shooting up with the surprising speed of adolescence.

Childs

What is happening here is typical of the phenomenal development of the entire Southwest. More or less unobserved, a popular shift of major proportions is going forward. Every day thousands of newcomers are arriving in California, Arizona and New Mexico.

Most of them have come with the wistful hope of finding a permanent place to live in a climate that has been successfully advertised. Tucson has tripled in size in little more than 15 years. The city today has over 100,000 population.

The marks of the old frontier are fast disappearing. Tourists in pursuit of health, happiness and scenery are a major source of revenue and employment. Hundreds of dude ranches have come into being, many of them offering the comforts of civilization in a superb natural setting and the opportunity to play cowboy if you are so inclined.

But adolescence has its growing pains, too. They are reflected in the housing shortage, which is more acute in the Southwest than in almost any other region.

ONE RESULT is the trailer camps which have sprung up in every community. Here in Tucson several thousand families live in trailers, which in some instances house not merely father and mother but also three or four children. The trailer camps of the Southwest may, on the whole, live up to the minimum sanitary regulations. They cannot, however, provide anything like a satisfactory environment for stable family life.

The burden on the community is heavy. Schools must be provided for the children. Too often they are makeshift or intolerably overcrowded.

The present boom, with work available for every able-bodied person who wants to work, is one thing. But what would happen in the new El Dorado of the Southwest with something less than a boom is a question which responsible citizens are beginning to think about.

Arizona has a law requiring three years of residence before a family is eligible for relief. The reason for such a law is obvious—to discourage an influx of the indigent from the East. What it can mean in terms of human misery is clear. Unthinking doctors sometimes recommend a "healthy climate" in the Southwest after a patient has used up all his savings in medical treatment. The pitiful families of these refugees live a pretty shabby existence even now in high prosperity.

IT WAS the hardihood and the daring of the pioneers that built this country. But the pioneer answer will not suffice in a complex civilization with a shifting and expanding population pushing against the natural-resource barriers.

Take the matter of water. While no one in the Southwest talks very much about it, the facts are fairly obvious. The demands of large-scale irrigation for intensive farming are heavy. So are the demands of the swiftly growing cities. Sooner or later the two will come into conflict, since there is not enough water for both.

Perhaps a way can be found to allocate water resources equitably so that the greatest number may live in contentment and well-being in this warm and beautiful part of the world. But that means a willingness to go beyond the jealousies of competing interests and rival States.

It is time to think about these things. Arizona was the forty-eighth State to be admitted to the Union. Now, apparently, a forty-ninth State, Hawaii, is to be admitted, and perhaps a fiftieth, Alaska. There are rumors that this will be the signal for selfish interests to try to break all national controls over resources and public lands.

Exactly the opposite must occur. It must be the signal for a new appraisal and a new approach to the basic wealth that remains. Any other course will be the blindest form of national suicide.

Baby's Blood Test Fails to Clear Meyer in Suit

New York, Dec. 3 (U.P.).—The blood type of Johnny Meyer, free-spending agent for Howard Hughes, and of the 10-month-old son whom Patricia Miles claims he fathered are the same, tests disclosed today.

Results of the test do not prove blonde Miss Miles' paternity claim, but if the blood types had been different, Meyer would have been freed automatically from the charge.

The trial of the suit brought by the former night club cigarette girl is scheduled to start tomorrow in Special Sessions Court.

Miss Miles brought the charge against Meyer last summer when his testimony before a Senate investigation of Hughes' war contract was widely publicized.

Congress Seeking Way to Trap Reds

Registration of Communists as Agents Of Foreign Government Is Possibility

A hunt for methods of setting legal traps for Communists got under way in Congress yesterday.

Representative Nixon (R., Calif.) said one possibility is compulsory registration of all Communists as agents of a foreign government.

Nixon predicted action at the regular session beginning in January on some kind of legislation to stem communism in America. He is chairman of a House Un-American Activities subcommittee called together yesterday to begin looking for the right kind of bill.

"I think, too," Nixon told reporters, "that we should consider legislation which in some way would require Communist front organizations to give full publicity to their true purposes and activities."

He said that might be done through a law similar to the one giving protection to potential purchasers of stock by requiring data to be filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Would Have Names Published

In addition, he said he favors a requirement that the Justice Department publish at regular intervals names of organizations determined by the FBI to be Red fronts.

Before Nixon's committee are various bills to outlaw the Communist Party. But Nixon said he believes these represent an "oversimplification of the problem," that outlawing the party would not be "an effective way to combat Communism."

So far, exposure has been the main weapon the Un-American Activities Committee has used against Communists. Nixon said he and many other members of Congress now feel exposure is not enough, and they want to pass some laws.

Meanwhile, a hint that Communists may be partly responsible for the collapse of the cattle slaughter program in the United States-Mexico campaign against the foot and mouth disease was left with a congressional committee yesterday.

Opposition Followed Pattern

It came as members of a House Agricultural Subcommittee questioned B. T. Simms, chief of the Agriculture Department's Bureau of Animal Industry.

Responding to a question by Representative Worley (D., Texas) whether Communists were carrying on a word-of-mouth campaign to dissuade Mexican farmers and ranchers from surrendering their animals for slaughter, Simms replied:

"We realize that the opposition has had the backing of some organization. At first it appeared sporadically, then we bagn to see it following a pattern."

Simms said that, while he believed only a slaughter program could stamp out the foot and mouth disease, he favored support of the vaccination program as a second best method.

Paper Says Luftwaffe Bombed Own City

Frankfurt, Dec. 3 (NYHT).—An accusation that the Nazi Luftwaffe terror bombed the German city of Freiburg on May 10, 1940 in order to blame it on the French and British and thus justify further terror attacks against their cities, is made today in the "Frankfurter Neue Presse."

The newspaper claims that the late Admiral Wilhelm Canaris, Germany's wartime espionage chief, and Col. Gen. Franz Halder, former chief of staff of the Wehrmacht, had personal knowledge which they disclosed to friends that "the first terror bomb in the spring of 1940 that killed 21 children in Freiburg was dropped by a German plane on orders issued by the Germans."

Curb Pensions, Treasury Asks

taxes on half of his disability pay.

"Disability for purposes of military service may not always involve significant disability for civilian employment," the department pointed out.

The question of tax-free disability retirement became a hot issue when it was disclosed by the Senate War Investigation Subcommittee that Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, retired AAF officer, was drawing $550 a month tax-free after being retired at the age of 50 for "nervous exhaustion."

Without Legal Sanction

After the committee disclosed its sensational evidence that Meyers made large profits out of an aviation accessories company, dealt in aviation stocks, and speculated in Government bonds while he was the wartime second ranking procurement officer in the AAF, the Air Force and the Army abruptly and without legal sanction stopped his pension.

The committee turned its evidence over to the Department of Justice and District Attorney George Morris Fay, who began immediate presentation of a case to the Federal grand jury.

Presently pending against Meyers are charges of perjury and subornation of perjury getting someone else to lie under oath rising from Senate testimony.

Yesterday's witness was Thomas Eugene Readnower, $24-a-week "treasurer" of the Aviation Electric Co., who told the jury of the "kickbacks" to Meyers from his own "executive salary" of $15,000 a year.

Tells of "Phony Story"

Readnower, brother of the attractive brunette Mrs. Lamarre, for whose sake Meyers insisted he founded the company, also told the jury that Meyers, at a hurried breakfast meeting here last summer at the Carlton Hotel, tried to get him to tell a phony story under oath to the Senate committee to account for where the money went.

Assistant District Attorney Edward Molenof said the Government would not present further evidence against Meyers until Friday.

A witness from out of town, still unidentified, may appear Friday, Molenof said.

Readnower has been excused and returned last night to his Dayton home.

The Lamarres, the district attorney's office said, plan to leave today for New York City.

Would Attach Property

Mrs. Lamarre, who has described the general's attack upon her honor as "a desperate lie by a desperate man," said she and her husband plan to consult a New York attorney.

She and her husband, she said, wanted to find out about attaching any real property the general might have pending a civil suit to recover $10,000 which Lamarre has testified he allowed Meyers to use in a war bond deal. Meyers has an $80,000 mansion in Halesite, a dressy Long Island, N. Y., community.

Meanwhile both executive and legislative branches of the Government are making a drive to stop tax-free benefits to officers whose disabilities are such as to make such special treatment unwarranted. President Truman has asked the armed services to give him a list of retired personnel drawing tax-free pay, and a House Armed Services Subcommittee headed by Representative Charles Elston (R., Ohio) is studying the situation.

Elston said the subcommittee voted yesterday to send out questionnaires to all officers retired for disabilities other than battle wounds. The same list which is furnished the President will be given the committee, Elston said, but he added the committee would probably not receive it before December 13.

The committee will meet Monday to consider the form of its questionnaire, Elston said, and before sending it out will probably hear from spokesmen for the armed services. There are two or three special cases involving high officers into which his group plans to inquire, he said.

26 Traffic Policemen To Be Added

The Traffic Division plans to ask for 26 additional men to help patrol the downtown area during the Christmas shopping rush.

Appointed to head the squad to prevent traffic jams is Lieut. Earl P. Hartman who until yesterday was acting captain of the First Precinct.

Last year, some 44 additional men were added to the traffic division during the Christmas rush.

According to Inspector Arthur E. Miller, a study showed a reduction in reinforcements was warranted this year. He said that at one time 60 additional men were used during the rush period, but the number has been pared year by year.

The reinforcements are drawn largely from police rookies undergoing training.

Six men will be detailed from the reinforcements to key downtown corners beginning Saturday. The other 20 will begin their details on December 13.

The traffic detail, for many years, was headed during the Christmas season by Lieut. Joseph Harrington, colorful head of the Hack Inspector's office. He was replaced this year because of the physical strain of running the Christmas traffic.

In addition to the 26 men to be added, 10 regularly assigned traffic division men will aid in directing traffic at the more important corners.

Inspector Floyd A. Truscott will announce within the next 10 days the detail of men to be placed in department stores to watch for pickpockets and package-grabbers. He said he had not decided on the number of men to be used nor the date they will begin work.

Last year, 40 men were assigned to the robbery detail.

German Party Rebuffs Reds On Election

Berlin, Dec. 3,.—The Christian Democratic Party in the Soviet occupation zone has rejected plans of the Russian-sponsored Socialist Unity Party (S. E. D.) for a People's Congress here next weekend to elect delegates to the London conference of the Big Four Foreign Ministers' Council.

The Socialist Unity Party hopes to constitute delegates from the Congress, which will be dominated by itself, as the voice of Germany at London. Most non-Communist parties have denounced the calling of the Congress as a Communist maneuver designed to assure the Russian-sponsored party the role as spokesman for all Germany.

The Socialist Unity Party is the product of the forced merger of Communists with a splinter-wing of Social Democrats in the Soviet zone. The Berlin correspondent of the London Times has described it "as neither Socialist, nor a unity, or even a party."

Cultists Take Off Clothes in Court

Nelson, B. C., Dec. 3 (U.P.).—Women members of the Radical Sons of Freedom—leftwing unit of the Russian Doukhobors—yesterday partially disrobed in provincial court to protest sentences averaging 10 years' imprisonment imposed on cultists for arson and rioting.

Women members were rid of outer garments before they were restrained by police.

The 32 Freedomites were convicted of arson and rioting. The first incident occurred last August 20 when a band of night raiders, led by a naked woman, swooped down on Doukhobor communities, setting fire to homes and threatening residents.

Peerce Leads VA Hospital Artists' List

By Paul Hume

More than a hundred of the biggest names in the world of music—opera, concert, musical comedy, and radio—are signed up for concerts in Veterans' Administration hospitals throughout the country.

First to sign up was Jan Peerce, one of the leading tenors of the Metropolitan Opera, who sang Monday night in Constitution Hall. Yesterday while talking with Acting Administrator Maj. Omer W. Clark of the Veterans' Administration, Peerce enlarged on some moments of his singing at the hospital in Livermore, Calif.

"Now I have sung everywhere," he said. "I had sung in all kinds of halls and theaters, but never before in corridors. But at Livermore, they just wheeled the piano off the elevator in the corridor, and the boys were there waiting to hear us. They even gave us a special dispensation on the surgical ward and we went right in and sang for fellows, some of whom had had lungs collapsed and things like that only three days before."

When Major Clark thanked Peerce for his part in the programs presented in VA hospitals, Peerce said, "I think it is the duty of every artist to do anything they can for the veterans in hospitals. I am sure that you will find artists in every field willing and eager to help in your program."

Artists' Hospital Programs, under which the concerts are given, is a branch of the Musicians Emergency Fund, Inc., of New York City. Miss Jean Tennyson, chairman of the programs, has enlisted 105 headliners for this season. When an artist is on tour and lands in a city near a veterans hospital, arrangements have been made in advance, and the men in the hospitals are treated to some of the best singing and playing now going.

A number of musicians appearing in Washington this year are scheduled for hospital programs, including Patrice Munsel, Claudio Arrau, Jeannette MacDonald, Gladys Swarthout, Eleanor Steber, Christopher Lynch and many more.

These programs are only a part of the total musical schedule under way in veterans hospitals. As a part of special services in veterans hospitals, work in musical therapy, many kinds of class and individual instruction and a variety of forms of music for recreation are maintained, all under the supervision of Ray Green, in charge of music in the VA system. Centered here in Washington, music is going out steadily in both old and new ways, to the veterans hospitals of the Nation, as a new tool in the rehabilitation of the country's veterans.

Drunk, Bribery Charges Face 2 Policemen

A police private will face a charge of taking a bribe from a citizen and another policeman will answer a charge of being drunk on duty at a Police Trial Board hearing tomorrow.

Pvt. Oscar B. Johnson, 37, of the Second Precinct, is charged with conduct unbecoming an officer. He is alleged to have received $10 in hush money from a citizen.

Pvt. Floyd S. Hathorne, 47, attached to the Seventh Precinct, is scheduled to answer a charge of being drunk on duty November 16.

Hathorne, who lives at 4604 4th st. nw., has been on the force 25 years. He has been fined twice.

According to specifications drawn up against Johnson, he arrested two men on November 9 "without just or reasonable cause."

One man arrested was released, the second was charged with being disorderly. Johnson allegedly was offered and paid $10 by a third person not to lodge against the second man an additional charge of a liquor law violation.

A policeman for eight years, Johnson, who lives at 1243 Irving st. ne., has faced the trial board on three previous occasions and was fined twice, acquitted once.

Commissioners Favor West Over Maher in Clegg Case

ered by the Corporation Counsel's investigation."

In the Clegg case, assignment of Corporation Counsel West as prosecutor was accompanied by this statement from Defense Attorney Ford:

"Now that Corporation Counsel West has tried our Police Department in the press, and joined The Washington Post in its serial, 'Divide and Conquer,' it is hoped that he will have at least sufficient courage to personally appear as prosecutor in the proposed trial he has recommended. We are supremely confident that the great majority of our governmental agencies and true American citizens and newspapers will not tolerate a 'Divide and Conquer' philosophy in these United States.

Cites Jury "Exoneartion"

"Our fearless and just United States Attorney George Morris Fay submitted the so-called 'Clegg case' to the District of Columbia grand jury, and they without fear or favor, exonerated our Police Department and its members. When did the Corporation Counsel or The Post become greater than the grand jury?

"Since the arrest in the Clegg case, the Police Department has not received any complaints of women being bothered and attacked in the area of 13 and E and F sts. nw. The public may continue to rely on the Police Department and its fine public servants continuing to protect the lives and property of all District residents, despite any and all campaigns to separate and divide it by falsehoods, intimidation and pressure.

"It will be a distinct honor for me to represent the efficient gentlemen of the Police Department."

Defense Counsel For Two

Ford is defense counsel for Detective Sergt. Alex K. Kapsol and Special Investigator David S. Ennis of the Sex Squad. The third man facing trial board action is Pvt. John C. Gibboney of No. 1 Precinct, who arrested Clegg.

Clegg, a Negro, is an employe of The Washington Post, with a job in the production department, and is a Coast Guard veteran. He was injured during the Normandy landings.

Clegg was arrested in connection with complaints of molesting women in the neighborhood of 13th and E sts. nw. He was not identified when placed in a police line-up. Subsequently, a grand jury declined to return an indictment on his charges that he was beaten by police. The grand jury did not consider the question of the alleged illegal detention of Clegg by police.

West Concedes Precedent

West conceded that it was a new precedent for the Corporation Counsel to be the prosecutor before a police trial board, but that assistant counsels had prosecuted cases when a member of the board was a subordinate in the office.

The decision to send the Clegg case to trial was regarded by officials in the Corporation Counsel office as a feather in the cap for their organization. So concerned had some members been by Maher's new role that there had been intra-office talk of resignations, including West's.

There is now no thought of resignations on the part of either Corporation Counsel West or his aides.

Officials said the West-Maher disagreement was best described as a difference of legal opinion, and in no sense a personal quarrel between the two men. The question west and others of his office might resign was not raised directly with the Commissioners.

Commissioner Young made it clear he does not want West to resign. "I don't think anybody knows his business better than West. He has fine training, a fine backgrourd, and is very competent," said Young.

U. S. Naval Forces Must Be Able to Operate In Mediterranean, Adm. Fletcher Says

Vice Admiral William T. Fecheteler, deputy chief of naval operations, said yesterday that the frontiers of western civilization" are France, Italy, Greece, Turkey and Iran.

In a speech delivered before the Nassau Club at Princeton, N. J., and released here, he stressed the importance of the Mediterranean to the United States and declared that American naval forces must be able to operate there.

"The oil resources of the Near East are not only essential to the peacetime economy of western civilization but constitute the life blood of its war potentials," he said.

"Equally important is the fact that the Mediterranean is a channel through which the superior air and sea forces of the United States could reach the great land masses of Europe, Asia and Africa."

An advance draft of Fecheteler's speech contained a statement that the United States Navy has a "small detachment of shore-based anti-submarine planes" based in the Mediterranean. The text was withdrawn before delivery and the statement was eliminated.

A Navy spokesman said that this was a misstatement of cat. The Navy still retains its wartime air base at Port Lyautey in North Africa, but officials have said this will be turned over to the French. Only a few United States planes are said to be stationed there.

Vepco Land Value Fixed

A Fairfax County condemnation jury yesterday awarded $37,563 to Earl N. Chiles for 40 acres of land needed by Virginia Electric & Power Co. for its proposed new power transmission line in Fairfax County.

The award was the first of seven land holdings involved in the right of way. The jury will hear evidence today on 20 acres, held on the 225-foot-wide right of way by Mason and Omer Hirst, Annandale real estate dealers.

Meanwhile, a hearing scheduled for yesterday on an injunction suit filed against VEPCO by five of the landowners, including Chiles and both of the Hirsts, was continued indefinitely, pending conclusion of the condemnation proceedings. The injunction asks that the company be permanently restrained from erecting the line.

One-Pound Baby Given Good Chance to Live

Exeter, England, Dec. 3 (AP).—A baby weighing only 1 pound is alive in a hospital today, 6 days after her birth. The girl, Marjorie, was born 2 months prematurely to Mrs. Arthur Bastin, wife of a motor mechanic.

A hospital spokesman said the baby has a good chance to survive. She is being fed through a tube and is in an oxygen tent. The Bastins have two other children, both boys.

Italian Loses 'Face', Commits Hara-Kiri

Lustra Cileno, Italy, Dec. 3 (U.P.).—Carmelo Ferrazzano, wealthiest man in this village near Naples, committed suicide by hara-kiri with a razor blade yesterday on his father's tomb, because he had "lost face" at a gay party.

Ferrazzano entertained the town's 1502 citizens at a party last night to inaugurate a new power plant for his big olive oil refinery. At the peak of the party, he proudly threw the starting switch. It didn't work. The crowd snickered and then burst into laughter.

One on the Aisle—

Marlene in Tatters

Her Gypsy Rags Patch Up Story

By Richard L. Coe

MARLENE DIETRICH is charmingly repulsive in "Golden Earrings."

In the Capitol's new picture she plays a swarthy gypsy with eyes like butter plates. She cleans fish in bed—to the icy disdain of partner Ray Milland—and when her hero is in trouble she calls upon the supernatural aids Paramount assumes are the gods of the wandering tribes.

"O spirits of the earth and sky," rumbles Marlene in her woman-of distinction tones, "watch over my beloved and keep him from harm."

Admitting to a second prejudice within two days, we must confess that Marlene is one of our favorite screen personalities. Uttering the absurd nonsense which is her lot in "Golden Earrings," she amused us every bit of the way, something of a triumph for Marlene, because "Golden Earrings," to put it mildly, is not much of a picture.

But it is a vehicle for Marlene and until a better one comes along—another "Destry Rides Again," perhaps—this will have to do. Her role is introduced by Ray Milland, as a British major general (the Empire's most youthful major general, at that) telling Quentin Reynolds—the real, in-the-fleshy-flesh Quentin Reynolds—about how he got two tiny holes in his ears.

It happened, Ray explains, while he was on a secret mission in Germany just before the war. With a pal he'd escaped from the hellish Nazis and was hiding in some bushes, hoping to do away with an incriminating uniform.

So there's Ray, crouching in the bushes, and you watch him in the murky dusk of a German field. The soundtrack picks up a slight sound of humming—humming in tones that are unmistakable to Marlenephiles.

Mission Accomplished!

Then, there she is: a dark-skinned Marlene done up in rags, cooking a fish stew over an open fire, eating the juicy pottage with greasy, dirty fingers, mooning about how the spirits of the waters had told her to wait for the Englishman who had escaped from the Nazis. Inevitably, she sees to it that his mission is accomplished.

Naturally, Marlene's motives are hardly patriotic. She minces no words in declaring that her blue-eyed Englishman is the best piece of human flesh she's ever seen, and some of their scenes together are reminiscent of those torrid ones performed by Vivienne Romance in the French film, "Carmen."

Yes, this is the film which presents that current juke-box favorite, "Golden Earrings," and Marlene moans it in those tones that make you think of an organ's 32-foot bombard stop. Murvyn Vye (the original Jud of "Oklahoma!") is on hand as the gypsy chieftain who introduces "Golden Earrings," and he gets into quite a fight with Milland.

While it is too bad Paramount couldn't have managed to avoid the absurdities and dull patches of "Golden Earrings," it's good to have Marlene back. Her vitality is that rare.

The Capitol's new stage show is headlined by Francis Craig, the "Near You" man. More on Craig and his cohorts later in the week.

TODAY is the day those widely heralded Technicolor films of Britain's royal wedding open at the Warner and Ambassador, which, by the way, are living up to their original promise of showing them exclusively here. The Trans-Lux lost out in its aim to crack into the J. Arthur Rank-Warner contract. Wedding bells also play their part in the feature comedy, wherein Ginger Rogers and Cornel Wilde pursue each other in "It Had To Be You."

THE PALACE has a novelty tomorrow night in an Italian version of Metro's "Honky Tonk," which first appeared in English in 1941. Clark Gable and Lana Turner are still the stars of this one, along with Marjorie Main, Claire Trevor and Frank Morgan, but they'll be speaking in carefully dubbed Italian. It should prove a fascinating example of what our American films look and sound like when a traveler comes across them in the cinemas of Rome, Naples or Milan. The show goes on at midnight and you can get tickets now (at regular prices) at the Palace box office.

"TORMENT" is doing nicely in its second week at the Little, which gives us the chance to answer those telephone calls about the three leads in this Swedish picture. The girl, Mai Zetterling, will soon be seen in "Freida," the British film about a German war bride in England and is under contract to J. Arthur Rank, who has talked of loaning her to his Universal associates in Hollywood. Alf Kjellin, the boy, has been signed by David O. Selznick. Both of them speak English. Stig Jarrel, the Latin instructor, has no Hollywood plans that we know of, but he is an outstanding stage and screen player in his native country.

A KIDDIES' SKATING "clinic," with the "Ice Capades" stars as the doctors, will be held this afternoon at Uline's from 3:15 to 4:45 . . . Donna Atwood, Bobby Specht, Alan Konrad, Rosemarie Stewart, Phil Taylor, Chuckie Stein and the other Icecapeople will show the youngsters their steps and routines and pick out a few youngsters (who've brought their own equipment) as skating partners . . . There's no limit to the number of youngsters invited to attend, but they must get their tickets at Lansburgh's, which is sponsoring the event.

TOMORROW: Richard L. Coe reviews the frivolities of Ginger Rogers in the Warner's "It Had to Be You."

"GOLDEN EARRINGS." Paramount release produced by Harry Tugend. Screen play by Abraham Polonsky, Frank Butler and Helen Deutch. Adapted from the novel by Yolanda Foldes. Directed by Mitchell Leison. Song, "Golden Earrings," by Victor Young, Jay Livingston and Ray Evans. Hungarian folk themes from Liszt, Wagner and Haydn.

Stassen May Seek Delegates In Ohio, N. Y.

By D. Harold Oliver
Associated Press Reporter

Harold E. Stassen's associates said yesterday he probably will decide within a few weeks whether to challenge Senator Taft and Governor Dewey for a portion of Ohio's 53 and New York's 97 Republican presidential nomination delegates.

Earl E. Hart, Stassen's Washington secretary, said he recently completed a survey in Ohio which indicated Stassen stood to win 8 to 20 delegates if he cared to joust with Taft-pledged slates in the big cities.

"If he goes into Ohio he will have to go into New York, too," Hart told a reporter. He said Stassen's friends in New York are now making a survey there to ascertain his chances of picking up some delegates in New York City's districts.

Ohio Primary May 4

Ohio picks 44 district and 9 at-large delegates to the GOP National Convention in a primary May 4. New York selects 97 district delegates in a primary April 6.

Under Ohio law, candidates for delegate are pledged to first and second choices. In filing, they must have the written consent of the man they favor for the presidential nomination.

In New York the delegates go unpledged. In 1940, Dewey received a majority of their votes in the early balloting in the National Convention and four years later he had their unanimous support.

Both Taft and Stassen are announced candidates. Dewey is an undeclared aspirant.

Arkansas Primary Requested

Stassen has said he will enter the New Hampshire, Wisconsin and Nebraska presidential primaries in March and April and has asked that a primary be held in Arkansas. A law there permits a primary should a presidential nomination candidate request it.

Taft so far has limited his entry to his home State primary. Dewey's supporters will enter slates in New Hampshire and Wisconsin and of course the State organization will have a pro-Dewey bloc listed in New York, though not officially pledged.

Stassen, whose field forces now claim 154 delegates of the 547 needed to win a nomination, even before they are named, stands his best chance to win support in the big cities, Hart said yesterday.

His Ohio reports is based on inquiries in Dayton, Cleveland, Youngstown, Toledo and Akron, and a few other cities. He indicated that if the former Minnesota Governor seeks Ohio and New York delegate backing it will be confined to certain districts rather than the whole of each State.

Hart exhibited a telegram from the Toledo Central Labor Union, AFL, urging Stassen to enter the primary there. It said there is "strong sentiment in Ohio both among labor and independent voters against Senator Taft" and a Stassen slate "will furnish the best tests of Senator Taft's strength in his home State."

In other actions yesterday the board:

Transferred 10 salaries for teachers from the white to Negro divisions and approved the transfer of ten more at the end of the school term.

Approved preliminary sketches of floor plans for a new building at 6th and P sts. nw., to replace the Negro Shaw Junior High School, and for additions to the two Negro elementary schools, the Young School, 24th and Benning rd. ne., and the Payne School, 15th and C sts. se.

Approved participation of students in the chest X-ray survey of the United States Public Health Service, the District Health Department and the District Tuberculosis Association.

Bribe Hinted in Parole Probe

By The Associated Press

A House Expenditures Subcommittee has been given the name of a man who "may" have received some money in conection with the transfer of two former Capone gangsters from the Atlanta to the Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary, Representative Busbey (R., Ill.) said yesterday.

Busbey told reporters after a closed meeting of the committee that he and Representative Dorn (D., S. C.) were given the name by Joseph W. Sanford, warden of the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary.

Busbey withheld the name. He said the committee has not determined whether any money actually was exchanged.

Busbey said the prisoners were Paul Ricca and Louis Campagna.

They are two of four former Capone associates whose paroles in mid-August are being investigated by the subcommittee, headed by Representative Hoffman (R., Mich.).

Ricca, Campagna, Philip D'Andrea and Charles Gioe were released after serving about one third of their 10-year sentences for an alleged one-million-dollar extortion conspiracy against the movie industry.

U. S. Relief Attache In Italy Is Relieved

Military to Seek More Funds For Planes, Forrestal Says

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Defense Secretary Forrestal said yesterday that the 1948 military budget now being readied for Congress will call for more money for war planes than the current billion dollar outlay.

In testimony before President Truman's Air Policy Commission, he did not disclose the amount to be asked, but other officials said the boost would be substantial. One high source indicated the over-all air power budget would run between one and two billions more than this year.

Forrestal, himself, declared that the cost of providing America with the kind of defense required today is tremendous and must be accomplished over a period of years.

Long-Range Plan Urged

The greatest present defense need, he stated, is for Congress to adopt a long-range program for air craft procurement, rather than the year-to-year plan now in effect. The aircraft industry "needs the assurance of future orders so it can preserve its engineering and technical skills" and plan ahead on a sound financial basis, the defense chief said.

While the expanded military-naval-air budget will go to Congress December 15, Forretsal indicated that the totals may well be changed before Congress acts on them. The 1948 budget was prepared last summer—before unification—and amendments may be expected when the Joint Chiefs of Staff complete preparation of a new over-all strategic plan for the United States.

That plan will have a cost sheet attached.

Security a Global Problem

Presenting his views on the over-all defense problem as the Commission's final witness in its two months of hearings, Forrestal said that American security now is a global rather than a national problem.

Rebuilding of wartorn nations, and events in India or Iran, are as important to our security as being strong militarily, he said.

"It's no good for us to be a Sparta in an utterly chaotic world," he added.

Talk of disarmament and sharing A-bomb secrets are "premature," Forrestal said. In no case can we reveal the latter without "solid and tangible methods of inspection." Until the United Nations becomes strong, the Secretary added, "we must have military power of the first order."

Proper Balance Difficult

In stressing the need for greater aircraft production, Forrestal said he considered the present level of research outlays to be adequate. They total about one billion dollars a year.

Most perplexing problem facing defense leaders, he said, is to balance the "old and the new," preparation for a war in the near future and the development of guided missiles and jet propulsion for the more distant future.

He noted that while jets "undoubtedly" will be the aircraft power plants of the future, we must rely on conventional piston engines to a great extent for the next five years.

2 D. C. Schools Are Picketed

bart M. Corning said that he had "no comment" on the parents' strike other that to say that the law requires that they send their children to school.

Under the compulsory attendance law a child may be absent for two days before the attendance department of the schools takes action.

The law places responsibility for attendance on the parent and makes it a misdemeanor to keep a child from school. Conviction carries a fine of $10 or five days in jail or both for each two days a child is unlawfully absent.

Mrs. Eulalia C. Matthews of 3944 Bennings rd. ne., leader of pickets at the Franklin School, said that a mass meeting of parents will be held at 8 p. m. tonight at the Jones Memorial Church, 44th and Benning rd. ne. "to decide what steps we shall take."

Given 15 Days, Man Steals Judge's Clock

Highland, N. Y., Dec. 3 (U.P.)—Welden Gravett, 42, sentenced to 15 days in jail on a disorderly conduct charge, suddenly became time conscious today. While being sentenced, Gravett pilfered an alarm clock from Justice Walter R. Seaman's bench.

It wasn't until Gravett was 10 miles en route to the Ulster County Jail that the theft was discovered. Brought before another justice, Gravett received 10 days on a petty larceny charge.

Mihai Denies Plans to Wed

Lausanne, Switzerland, Dec. 3 King Mihai I of Romania, said today there is "absolutely nothing" to reports from Copenhagen of his engagement to Danish-French Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma.

However, his uncle, Prince Nicholas, brother of former King Carol II, indicated the engagement may be announced "in a few days" in Bucharest.

Earlier the 26-year-old monarch said:

"I hear this story everywhere, and everybody knows more about it than I do."

A Danish royal family informant said in Copenhagen yesterday that the betrothal would be announced within a month.

Hyperthyroids Cured by Iodine Atoms

Boston, Dec. 3 (AP).—A few drinks of water containing radioactive iodine atoms made in the Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic ovens in the last year, apparently have been curing nearly all cases of hyperthyroidism in which the treatment was tried.

One hundred of these cases were described to the Radiological Society of North America today by Dr. Earle M. Chapman, Boston, and Dr. Sidney C. Werner and Dr. Edith Quimby, New York.

Hyperthyroidism is the disease due to excess energy, caused by a goiter that produces too much of the thyroid gland hormone. These sufferers may have staring eyes, bodies thinned by internal tensions and often hearts damaged by the excess driving power.

The iodine, emitting X-rays and electron rays, eats away part of the thyroid gland. The treatment is bloodless, and painless except that there may be coughs and sore throats.

Ninety of the 100 cases got well. Ten other appear to require more drinks of iodine and their treatments are too recent to predict the results.

At present all signs point to no cancer risk. As yet this same iodine water has failed as a treatment for cancer of the thyroid gland.

Durocher Signed to Pilot Bums Again, Report Says

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

IF IT HAD BEEN a skillfully-written script providing for a climax of Wagnerian thunder to the college football season, they could not have improved on California's luck of the draw.

The events of Saturday and New Year's Day will decide the national champion when Notre Dame is done with Southern California, and Southern Cal. is done with Michigan. For the first time in years three major, unbeaten teams go to the mat for the undisputed title.

POVICH

If Southern California upsets Notre Dame, then the picture will be clear-cut. The New Year's Day game between the Trojans and Michigan's unbeaten champions of the Big Nine will determine the best college football team in the land.

And if Notre Dame rolls over the Trojans to maintain its unbeaten slate, then Michigan has the opportunity to surpass the showing of the Irish against their common opponent and solidify its claim to the title. And Southern California, of course, is in a spot to slap down both the Irish and Wolverines to claim the title for its own.

THE CALIBER of West Coast football is still under something of a cloud, however, at this point. Last season UCLA was hailed as a wonder team when it won the Pacific Conference crown and supposedly Coast football was on its way back to dominance, but out of the Big Nine came Illinois and Buddy Young to expose California football as no great shucks with a 45-13 victory in the Rose Bowl.

The star of the UCLA team was Ernie Case, who achieved All-American backfield fame, but with the Baltimore Colts in the All-America Conference this season, Case couldn't make a regular job despite his college fame. The Colts, in fact, tried frequently to trade him. Buddy Young, in contrast, became a transcendent pro star with the New York Yankees of the same league.

In the East there is further suspicion that the Trojans are something less than a powerhouse. They operated in a league in which the University of California lost only one game, albeit a 39-14 decision to Southern Cal. But California could barely beat Navy, 14-7, and the Midshipmen scarcely rate with the better teams in the East.

NOTRE DAME is logically the favorite to beat the Trojans Saturday, which, of course, is no guarantee. The Irish have been averaging 34 points a game in a tougher league than Southern California has been playing in, and against Army, Coach Frank Leahy demonstrated that he could mount a running attack if he chose.

Until otherwise proved, there's no football player on the Coast who can match the skill of Notre Dame's Johnny Lujack at directing a team, throwing a pass, and at deadliness on defense. The Trojans can field two clever passers in George Murphy and Jim Powers, but pass defense has never been a Notre Dame weakness. Seven of the Irish opponents this year have been held to one touchdown or less.

Southern California will be showing off its All-American selection, Left End Paul Cleary, who apparently is a tremendous guy at his work. But even at that position, he may not be the best end on the field. Against Army and Navy, I thought that Leon Hart of Notre Dame was the finest end I had seen in a decade, despite the fact he was omitted from All-American selections.

EVEN IF the Trojans scrape past Notre Dame, the odds would seem to be against their title hopes. They still have to meet Michigan in the Rose Bowl, and the Wolverines could be even a tougher opponent than the Irish. Against Pittsburgh and Northwestern, Michigan was a far more impressive team than was Notre Dame which also had those two schools as opponents.

The pity is that it's not Michigan and Notre Dame in a head-on clash before the season is over, for that battle would contain a couple of fascinating battles. With Michigan the best exponent of the single-wing attack and Notre Dame the top T-team among the colleges, you'd have a worthwhile test, plus the individual duel of perhaps the two best football players in the colleges, Lujack and Michigan's Bob Chappuis.

But it's still the most exciting windup of a college football season since the '30s. Any one of the three teams could take it all, but Southern Cal has the biggest job. I'd say the title will be decided on the basis of which team—Michigan or Notre Dame—beats the Trojans by the biggest score.

Chandler Gives Rickey 'Green Light'

New York, Dec. 3 (AP).—The Daily Mirror said in a couyrighted story tonight that Leo Durocher has signed a contract to manage the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1948.

The Mirror said that Durocher flew from the West Coast to Dodger President Branch Rickey's farm at Chestertown, Md., and there penned the contract today.

Rickey made his decision to rehire Durocher, who was under suspension during the 1947 season, after getting the green light from Commissioner A. B. Chandler at a conference in Cincinnati earlier this week, the Miror said it had learned.

In this connection the Mirror said:

"The feeling has been prevalent that Rickey felt partially responsible for Durocher's banishment and was obliged to give Leo the chance to redeem himself.

"Only written confirmation of Chandler's post-World Series comment that "Durocher had served his sentence and was free to regain entry to baseball' was holding up Rickey's verdict. This was disposed of in Branch's visit to the Commissioner."

Durocher was suspended by Chandler for "conduct detrimental to baseball," at the start of the season. The suspension ended with the last game of the World Series.

At the same time, the Mirror said it had learned from another source that Dixie Walker, hard-hitting Dodger outfielder, had been traded to the Pittsburgh Pirates and had already signed his Corsair contract for 1948.

At Chestertown, Mrs. Rickey said her husband had gone to New York, but neither his home or office telephones here answered. Virtually the entire Dodger front office staff is in Miami attending the minor league meetings.

The Mirror said that both Rickey and Durocher left Maryland immediately after the contract signing to come to New York where the Dodger boss was to prepare a formal announcement. Rickey said here last week that he expected to be able to announce his managerial selection by December 10.

USC Planning Few Surprises For Irish

Los Angeles, Dec. 3 (U.P.).—Behind the high walls of Bovard Field at University of Southern California the Trojans were cooking up a surprise for Notre Dame.

The 1947 Southern California football team has been pulling these rabbits out of Coach Jeff Cravath's hat all season against every major foe.

And annually the game the Trojans want to win most is their intersectional clash with Notre Dame. So that would seem to call for the biggest rabbit of all.

The first of these little surprise packages was Gordon Gray. Cravath will deny it as he does everything concerning football strategy, but Gray hardly played prior to the Ohio State game, which Southern California won, largely through the efforts of Gray, by a 32 to 0 score.

Surprise No. 2

Came the all-important clash with undefeated California, gunning for a successful season under a new coach, and Southern California unleashed Don Doll. His 76-yard runback of a kickoff to a touchdown started the Trojans rolling to their 39 to 14 victory.

The next big game on the Trojan schedule was against UCLA.

For weeks Chavath had told sports writers that speedy Jack Kirby just wasn't well enough drilled to do more than get into a game for a few minutes after the regulars had scored.

But Kirby was sent in to ruin the Bruins. Four pass plays in the flat succeeded in drawing UCLA Quarterback Benny Reiges out of position.

It was then that Trojan Quarterback Jim Powers threw his 32-yard pass to Kirby for the only touchdown of the game.

At the start of the 1947 season the top back among the Trojans was expected to be Halfback Ted Tannehill. But before the first game he twisted an ankle, was out for several weeks and thereafter failed to play more than a few minutes a game, but looked great during those few minutes.

He Sounds Like Jim Tatum

Although one of the fastest broken field runners on the squad, Tannehill didn't get in against UCLA at all. When questioned after the game, Cravath, with a straight face, said it was an oversight; that in the excitement of the battle he overlooked Tannehill.

The surprise package may or may not be Tannehill, but there's little question that Cravath had something up his sleeve. He recalls that day in 1930 when the late Knute Rockne unleashed Bucky O'Connor on the Trojans and scored a 27-0 victory. O'Connor wasn't even on the team roster.

Odds on Louis Upped to 10-1 In New York

By Jack Cuddy

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (U.P.).—Several New York bookmakers, impatient at the light betting, today stretched the price to 10-1 that Joe Louis would retain his heavyweight championship against Jersey Joe Walcott at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Despite this break by "wildcat" bookies—as Louis completed training—the New Jersey "clearing house" for fight wagers insisted that the legitimate price still was only 8-1.

Along 49th street, wise-money boys were offering even money that Pappy Walcott of Camden, N. J., does not answer the bell for the fifht round. They were offering 4-1 that he doesn't last the full 15 rounds, and 1-8 that he gets belted out in the first round.

Meanwhile, a representative of the 20th Century Club disclosed that the gate would approximate $230,000, instead of the $270,000 estimated previously. This $230,000 still would beat the Garden record of $201,485.

IT WAS learned that the New York boxing commission will be asked to settle a "tempest in a teapot" that has been brewing in both camps. Louis insists that Everlast boxing gloves be used for the bout; but Walcott is just as insistant that the mittens be of Ben Lee manufacture.

Also, Joe Webster—Walcott's manager—announced at the challenger's camp in Grenloch, N. J., that he would appeal Friday to the boxing commission that some referee other than Arthur Donovan be selected to officiate at the fight.

Webster said, "the commission can name any other referee. I am not questioning Donovan's integrity or ability. I merely believe that Donovan already has handled too many Louis fights, and that a change would be welcome—by the fans, as well as by myself and Walcott."

Walcott, who completed training yesterday, limited his activities today to 3 miles of roadwork and light limbering exercises in the gymnasium.

Indians Buy Fletcher From Pittsburgh

Miami, Fla., Dec. 3 (AP).—Cleveland picked up veteran First Baseman Elbie Fletcher from Pittsburgh and shunted First Sacker Les Fleming to the Pirates' Indianapolis farm today as trading action shoved the official opening of the minor league convention into the background.

The Pirates, who were able to waive the talented, 30-year-old infielder out of the National League, recently acquired Ed Stevens, a first sacker, in a deal that also brought Stan Rojek from Brooklyn to Forbes Field.

Fletcher was overshadowed by Hank Greenbery on the Pittsburgh club after he broke an ankle in one of the final spring 1947 training games. With both Brooklyn and St. Louis interested in a first baseman, the waiving of the veteran came as somewhat of a surprise to baseball men gathered here for the winter sessions.

Pittsburgh earlier strengthened its infield by buying Romanus (Monte) Basgall from Brooklyn's Montreal farm for a reported $35,000 and second baseman Jimmy Bolodworth and third baseman Vic Barnhart.

Both Dixie Walker of the Dodgers and Jeff Heath of the St. Louis Browns appeared headed for new pastures at any minute.

Unconfirmed reports said that Walker, long the peoples' choice in Flatbush, was to be included in another deal with Pittsburgh. Dixie Walker, a $25,000 a year man, does not figure in Brooklyn's youth movement.

Although it has generally been believed that the Pacific Coast's resolution asking provisional major league status was to be the big news of the meetings, it now looked as though the matter would be by-passed, pending action by the majors next week.

Major league owners are said to have been notified from higher up that the Coast league's request cannot be granted. It is expected to simmer out during the New York sessions, eventually to be replaced by a drive to link Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland and Hollywood with the majors in two 10-team leagues.

The minors gave the PCL permission to go ahead and try to become a third major at the Columbus convention two years ago. They probably will stand pat on that attitude, letting the majors apply the ax.

Roller Skating Goes Big Time, World's Championship Here

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Life seems to get more complicated every day, now it's roller skating that's becoming somewhat involved.

Seems there was a time it called for an adjustment of a clamp or two and the kiddies were off. But, in the past eight years, roller skating has gone big time on us.

It's reached the point that a world's championship will be held at the new National Arena, 17th and Kalorama rd. nw., over the weekend.

After a succession of roller derbies, marathons and some other dubious promotions, it was a pleasant surprise to learn that rink operators now seem concerned with good, clean competition.

Briefly, the contest may be described as figure skating on wheels instead of blades. It stars tomorrow and runs through Sunday.

32 Skaters Compete

There are 32 entries, representing the U. S., Italy, Belgium, England and Switzerland, who will compete in four senior classes. These are single men's and women's, pairs and a little item called the dance.

The skaters are required to perform six compulsory figures and then have four minutes to devote to their individual routines. In the pairs class, the time limit is five minutes.

In a word, the compulsory figurges are the fundamentals. For instance, a figure eight is described by following an outline. Form is scored and so also is the accuracy with which the skater stays on the line.

More spectacular, of course, is the optional skating. It's replete with all the whirling twists and turns acquainted with ice skating.

Two veterans, Bill and Eldora Best, explained the evolution of roller skating yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Best won the first national pairs championship in 1939. Since, they've turned professional and are the instructors at Twin City Arena, Elizabeth, N. J.

Copied Ice Skaters

"When we started, the sport was in its infancy," said Bill. "We copied the form of the ice skaters. Some maneuvers were more difficult on roller skates and some were simpler. Now, I think, roller skating is big enough to stand on its own merits and we're trying to cultivate our own style.

"One thing that has helped a lot has been the development of the toe plate which is fastened between the two front wheels. It's a rubber base that enables the skater to pirouette and take off on other acrobatic maneuvers."

Several of the Bests' proteges were working out here yesterday. In all, eight Twin City members won national championships at Richmond, Va., in July. Three of them are entered in the world's championships. They are Violet (Torchy) Gargano and the national pairs champions, Charlotte Ludwig and Jude Cull.

Plenty of Work

Vivacious Violet made it plain that competitive skating isn't all fun. It calls for more than six hours a day of arduous practice. Oddly, Violet has her individual routine down pat and has to spend most of her time on the compulsory figures. It seems it should be the other way around.

Although ordinary shoe skates cost about $20 a pair, Miss Gargano sports a special pair that cost $125. Wheels cost $4 and that toe plate $5.

The contestants are strictly amateurs. Their living expenses here are being paid by the United States Amateur Roller Skating Association which is affiliated with the National AAU. Judges for the weekend competition will represent all the countries with entrants.

The roller skating outfits are making a strong bid for Olympic recognition. They expect to give an exhibition next year and say they will compete in the 1952 games.

Turf Aid Urges Teeth in Rules

Chicago, Dec. 3 (AP).—A plea for teeth in regulations the Thoroughbred Racing Associations have set up to keep undesirables off the Nation's major race tracks was made today by Spencer J. Drayton, president of the Thoroughbred Racing Protective Bureau at the association's sixth annual convention.

Drayton, a former FBI operative, who organized the racing association investigation unit two years ago, recommended race tracks' representatives take aggressive action in passing on cases. He urged they bar from all member tracks persons whose activities are unquestionably detrimental to racing.

"I hold that we of the TRA do not attempt to say who should be licensed, but we do have the right to take a positive and decisive stand against those professional chiselers and crooked gamblers who we believe should not be employed or allowed to race at TRA tracks," Drayton declared.

Drayton's remarks dealt with several phases of the bureau's work. He stressed the fingerprinting program which requires the identification of all racing personal, lip tattooing for horse identification, and careful investigation of all applicants and licensees.

During the past 12 months, Drayton said, TRPA investigations resulted in the suspension or fining of 62 persons.

G. W. Pointing For Deacons

Coach Otto Zahn's George Washington basketball team will meet the Kings Point five in New York tomorrow night, but both coach and quad are much more interested in the Colonial clash with Wake Forest Saturday night.

The Deacon game, to be played in the McKinley Tech gym at 8:30 p. m., will be the home season opener and first Southern Conference tussle for the Colonials.

Wake Forest will show the locals a squad which boasts six returning lettermen led by Center Deran Walters, 6-foot, 5 inch, who paced Deacon scoring last season. Forwards Jack Gentry, Red O'Quinn, Warren Holmes, Jim Patton and Guard Willard Kaylor are the other veterans.

Center Billy Cantwell, second string All-Southern selection last season, will pace a Colonial attack which has been strengthened by the addition of Freshman Johnny Moffat, who was rated All-High with Tech several seasons back.

Coach Zahn will rely mainly on sophomores for additional strength. Len Small, whose 17-point scoring spree upset Navy last year, Arch Cerra and Dave Shapiro are the forwards. Howie Hoffman and Bill McNiff are the guards.

U. S. Olympic Heads Threaten Mid-Winter Games Boycott

Chicago, Dec. 3 (AP).—The United States Olympic committee today threatened to withdraw all of this Nation's teams from the 1948 winter games if the Swiss organizing committee, adheres to its preference for the ice hockey entry of the "professional and commercial" Amateur Hockey Association, but that drastic step seemed unlikely in immediate reactions to the ultimatum.

At St. Moritz, Switzerland, where the winter games are scheduled January 30 to February 8, General Commissioner Carl Nater of the Swiss organizing committee, said the AHA's entry had been accepted by his group at an informal meeting attended by only "five or six" of the committee's members.

Nate said the full Swiss Olympic committee would meet December 13 to take formal action and "do what we can."

Simutlaneously, one member of the Olympic committee, Alfred Lindley of Minneapolis, was in long distance communication with Walter Brown of Boston, vice-president of the AHA whose Olympic entry conflicts with that of the United States Hockey Committee.

Lindley, Olympic ski official, protested the Olympic committee's boycott resolution passed during a day-long session, contending that a compromise could be worked out in which the AHA and the Amateur Athletic Union-National Collegiate Athletic Association bloc could pick an "amateur" Olympic hockey team suitable to both.

Avery Brundage, chairman of the Olympic committee, admitted that there were "solutions" to the problem and that "we all want to see America entered in the hockey competition." However, he emphasized that "the principle of the thing" was the problem of the moment.

The AHA submitted an entry blank for its Olympic team which the Olympic committee, this country's sole certifying body for Olympic entries, returned by mail unsigned today with the comment that it could not approve any entry by "an organization not affiliated with the United States Olympic Association."

Taylor Fills George's Job

Devitt star Gene Taylor will call the signals for the All-Preps in the scholastics All-Star football game at Griffith Stadium Saturday. He replaces St. John's Jack George, whose injuries will keep him out of the game.

Selection of Taylor for the quarterback role gives Devitt two of the starting backfield positions. Fullback Jack Dofford is the other Devitt backfield starter. Starting halfbacks will be Gil Buckingham of Gonzaga and Ken Bergman of Georgetown Prep.

The starting line for the All-Preps includes Bob Beck, Devitt, and Tom Fannon, St. John's, ends; Paul Markham, Georgetown Prep, and Bob Hanraha, Devitt, tackles; Bill Poms, Devitt, and Joe Cardaci, St. John's, guards, and John O'Donnell, Georgetown Prep, center.

Muhlenberg Won't Play in Bowl Game

Allentown, Pa., Dec. 3 (AP).—Officials of Muhlenberg College, the Nation's highest scoring football team, announced today the college would not play in a bowl game this year.

The Mules won nine games and lost one (7-6) to Temple University and amassed 368 points, an average of 37 per game.

West Chester Goes To Cigar Bowl

Tampa, Fla., Dec 3 (AP).—West Chester (Pa.) State Teachers' College, undefeated and untied this year, has accepted an invitation to play in the cigar bowl game here January 1, Rex Farrior, chairman of the selection committee, said tonight.

Gallaudet Beats Out Wilson, 53-51

A fourth-period rally by Wilson Teachers fell short and Gallaudet won a 53-51 basketball victory last night at 11th and Harvard sts. nw.

Girls Can't Play Football Without (Eligibility) Slip

AUSTIN, TEX., Dec. 3 (AP).—Girl football players can't play without a slip—eligibility slip that is.

The Texas Interscholastic League today ruled that Frankie Groves, plunky Stinnett girl who is in love with football, was ineligible when she played this fall.

The executive committee of the league in a meeting here said "she did not have an eligibility slip filed with league officials."

Moreover, they indicated they might bust up Frankie's gridiron romance.

League Director Roy Bedichek said "a prohibition against girls playing in any of these rougher sports" will be written into the rules before the next football season.

Earlier in the day, Frankie wired the league:

"Gentlemen, I make a plea for girl footballers in Texas. We want to continue to play."

After she had played in the game several other girls expressed the determination to get into the lineup next fall.

Interscholastic league heads looked upon it as a publicity stunt—or "that's what lots of people seem to think," said League Director Roy Bedichek.

Frankie, at the time she played tackle for Stinnett against Groom and captured the Nation's headlines, declared she was deadly serious about it.

She had been playing sandlot football all her life. The coach told her, one day in a practice game at a picnic, not to be too rough on his boys. So Frankie, instead of battling them, joined them.

Frankie appeared in the last game of the season and the biggest crowd ever to see a football game in Stinnett turned out.

Said Bedichek: "We feel there should be something done to prevent such publicity stunts from taking place."

At Stinnett, Coach Truman Johnson of Stinnett High School declared the playing of the girl in the game against Groom was not a publicity stunt.

"Frankie Groves' football playing was not a publicity stunt; it was serious business," said Johnson. "The Interscholastic League is mistaken."

He said Frankie was preparing a statement which she would wire to the Interscholastic League.

Compromise

Gulfstream Will Resume Racing Today

Miami, Fla., Dec. 3 (AP).—Gulfstream Park's two days of enforced idleness was ended late today when President James Donn and some 200 horse owners reached a compromise agreement on the increase of minimum purses and daily distribution.

At an open meeting attended by track officials, some 200 horse owners and State Racing Commission members, Donn agreed to boost the minimum daily purse from $2000 to $2400 with the added stipulation that the daily distribution be not less than $22,000—exclusive of stake events.

The compromise—the horsemen originally demanded a minimum purse of $2500—ended a stalemate which began last Sunday when the horsemen voted unanimously to demand the purse increase.

Compromise Reached

If the demand was refused, the horsemen voted, they would not enter any mounts for Tuesday's or any other day's racing.

Donn rejected the ultimatum, contending the anticipated drop in attendance and mutuel play did not justify the increase. A series of closed meetings was held after which each side issued statements devoted primarily to name-calling.

After a day-long session yesterday during which no agreement was reached, the horsemen, headed by Horsemen's Benevolent & Protective Association President Alex C. Dumestre, of New Orleans, invited Donn to attend an open meeting today so that both sides could air their gripes. It was at this meeting that the compromise was reached.

Victory for Horsemen

Gulfstream officials attending the meeting distributed entry blanks for tomorrow's races immediately after it was announced that a settlement was reached, they would make every effort to enter sufficient horses for a full eight-race program tomorrow.

It was clearly a victory for the horsemen. Donn had repeatedly declared he would not increase the purses and if the horsemen wanted to run at Gulfstream they could accept the condition book as offered.

Gulfstream first opened in 1939 under different management but ran only four days before going bankrupt. Donn took over the weed-covered plant in 1944, but a war restriction against racing closed the track only three days after it reopened.

With the exception of the past two days' forced idleness, it has operated uninterrupted since the winter meeting of 1945.

Asaider Triumphs With Ease

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 3.—Jockey Jimmy Baird, Westchester, Pa., boy, rode his 208th winner of the year today. The youngster who learned to ride while with the United States Army in India was aboard the Stevens Stable's Asaider and brought the New York owned filly home two lengths in advance of Bungalese, owned by Mrs. George Fox of Laurel, Md., and a heavily played favorite in the field of eight. In third position came E. A. Nicodemus' Double Duty.

Asaider, long away from the winner's circle, was making her thirty-fourth start of the year and her backers collected an $11.60 mutuel after she went the 120 feet more than 6 furlongs—the Charles Town course—in 1:10 1-5.

Baird Closes Gap

Bungalese, with Jockey George Cardoza seeking his third winner of the day, went to the front without company when Joe's Favorite ran out shortly after the start. Double Duty was closest to the pace in the early running while Asaider was being rated far back in the field.

Approaching the stretch, Baird brought Asaider along but was unable to get between Bungalese and the inside rail. He took the filly out and she gradually wore down Bungalese to win going away. Double Duty held on to be third ahead of Our Bid.

J. E. Crider's Alhalon, a 10-year-old, who has gone off form, refused at the break and was galloped along behind the field.

The victory was the third of the year for Asaider, who hadn't been in the money since late last summer.

Tammaro Back With Winner

Jockey Johnny Tammaro, who broke his leg at this track last winter, rode the first winner, Mrs. E. S. Hineman's Adjacent, a $3.60 favorite.

Jockey M. Pantone piloted the second winner, V. S. McClintock's White Rocket, a $16.80 mutuel. The 7 and 7 combination paid $21.20 in the daily double.

Jockey Cardoza rode his two winners aboard C. F. Hovis' Swami, at $6.80, and O. D. Shank, jr.'s, Belstan, at $27.80, in the third and fourth races.

DEAR FOLKS:

The Feltners, famous fatherson combination, have been visiting their home grounds at nearby Berryville, Va. However, they will start in opposite directions tomorrow. Father C. M., takes Joe Tucci's Incline, winner of the Bryan and O'Hara Handicap, and other horses to Florida. Son Claude entrains for California with the Ridgewood Stable's Double Jay, winner of the Prince Georges Autumn Handicap and The Riggs, in addition to others. Claude used to be the training champion here. He won 42 races at one meeting. Double Jay has cracks at two $100,000 races awaiting him on the West Coast. Both Feltners have in their charge representatives of R. Justin Funkhouser's nearby O'Sullivan Farm. Eddie Morgan, custodian of the jockey's room, reports there are 80 riders registered here. There are plenty of horses around, too. For instance, 1022 entries were made for the first three days of racing. The brothers, Jockey V. Nodarse and Apprentice R. Nodarse, are here, and Harry Treggis is their agent. See you on the rail. BILL

Bear's Luckman Thrown for Loss By White Pony

Chicago, Dec. 3 (AP).—Sid Luckman, the Chicago Bears' passing ace, was thrown for a loss by a white pony yesterday.

During indoor drills at the Chicago Arena, Luckman surprised his teammates and Owner-Coach George Halas by suddenly appearing astride a white polo pony.

Waving a warning to the players to clear out of the way as his mount lazily walked toward them, Luckman lost his balance and fell off.

Wismer Heads Group Bidding For Grid Lions

New York, Dec. 3 (AP).—A usually reliable source said today that a group of Detroit industrialists, in which Harry Wismer, well-known sports announcer, is the prime mover, is negotiating to purchase the Detroit Lions professional football team from Fred Mandel.

Reportedly allied with Wismer are C. T. Fisher, jr., Walter O. Briggs, jr., Edwin Anderson and Arthur Hoffmann.

Briggs, better known as "Spike," is the son of the owner of the Detroit Tigers in the American Baseball League.

Should he become connected with the deal, it would virtually assure continued use by the Lions of Briggs Stadium, which seats 55,000 and is the only big sports arena in Detroit.

This in turn would tend to shut out any future competition by the rival pro league, the All-America Conference.

Sportscaster Would Continue on Air

Admitting that "a deal for the Detroit Lions may be on," Sports Broadcaster Harry Wismer declared yesterday that he would fulfill his five-year contract to air Redskin games even if he became associated with the new Detroit owners.

"Broadcasting sports events is still my chief interest," Wismer told The Washington Post by telephone yesterday at Detroit where reports linked him with a change in the Lions' ownership. "I would not have a leading part in any new ownership of the Lions."

Passing, That Is

Skins Beat Chicago Bears—At That Old Baugh Game

If you're worried whether or not the Washington Redskins are still in the National Football League, cease this moment.

It might be rather difficult to find out if you check the "win" column in the standings, but you won't have any trouble locating them in the batch of weekly statistics released by league headquarters.

Yesterday's figures, for instance, point out that the 'Skins are tops in percentage of passes completed and second to the Chicago Bears in total yards gained.

The Bears are heading the field in total yards gained with 4061 picked up by rushing and passing, in scoring with 328 points, first downs with 212 and are second to Washington in percentage of passes completed.

In scoring their 328 points, 69 more than the Philadelphia Eagles who are pacing the Eastern section, the Bears have scored the most touchdowns, 48, 23 of them by running and 25 by passes. Both methods of scoring also are tops in the circuit.

Washington, with Sammy Baugh's passing as its chief offensive weapon, ranks second to the Bears in total yards with 3817 yards gained on 1027 by rushing and 2790 by passing. The Bears picked up 1610 on the ground and 2450 in the air and 1 on a lateral.

In forward passes completed Washington completed 57.6 per cent of its aerials to the Bears' 51.6 and Detroit's 49.7.

The Los Angeles Rams, however, have a better rushing average, 4.6 to the Bears' 4.5 with the Eagles and Green Bay tied for third with 4.2 yards per rush.

Individually it's Baugh and Steve Van Buren in two of the statistics' most important top spots. Baugh has established a new league mark by completing 171 of 279 tosses for 2437 yards.

Green Bay's punters hold a slight edge in average distance with 43.9 as compared with Detroit's 43.6.

Defensively, Green Bay has allowed the least number of points, 168, with the Eagles in second place with 259. Philadelphia, however, has allowed the least number of first downs by opponents, 150.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Efficiency Rating System Changes Now in Effect

EFFICIENCY RATINGS: The long-debated changes in the efficiency rating system for upward of 150,000 Federal workers in this city became effective yesterday.

They were announced officially by John A. Overholt, chief of Civil Service's rating section, at a conference of rating officials in the Interior Auditorium. Major changes follow:

1. That employes "should be warned" of their shortcomings before rating time to give them a chance to render satisfactory service before they are given unsatisfactory or fair ratings.

"An employe," Overholt said, "is entitled to know where his performance is weak, and he should be given an opportunity to correct it before he's given a penalty rating."

Overholt explained that the "warning" system had been adopted in principle, but is not now a mandatory requirement. He added that "we hope that all agencies will see the justice of this procedure and that they will apply it in their rating programs."

2. Special and probationary ratings are abolished. Hereafter, there will be only two kinds of efficiency ratings, entrance and regular ratings.

An employe who enters Government for the first time will be given an entrance rating of "good." He will be given a regular rating after six months on the job and he'll be rated annually afterwards.

A worker who transfers to a new job will carry his old rating with him. After six months on his new job he'll be given a regular rating and he'll also be rated annually thereafter. However, if the employe's last rating was "unsatisfactory," his rating on the new job will be boosted to fair.

3. The agencies will be permitted to make ratings throughout the year instead of rating all employes annually on March 31 of each year. Any such plan to spread the rating load must be approved in advance by Civil Service. Otherwise, regular ratings will be required after six months in a new position, and annually thereafter on March 31.

Overholt said he anticipated that most agencies would adopt plans to spread the rating workload based on the anniversaries of job changes of their employes. He admitted that this was an experimental step, that only experience would tell whether better ratings are secured by rating all employes at one time or rating them individually over the year.

STORY: The other day a postal letter carrier, Oliver H. Jacob of Kansas City, was injured on the job. Jacob had to fill out an injury report which was forwarded to the Postoffice Department here. Here are three of the questions on the form and Jacob's answers to them:

Q. When did injury occur? A. On delivery route.

Q. Nature of injury? A. Dog bite.

Q. Cause of injury? A. BAD DOG.

PERSONAL: This is an anniversary for me. I'm starting my eighth year as the editor of this column. How time flies.

PAY RAISES: Hearings on the Flanders-Baldwin bill to raise the salaries of Federal officials have been postponed until early in January. A hearing had been set for today, but both Senators Flanders and Baldwin are tied up on anti-inflation legislation.

Meantime, Chairman Langer hopes to introduce his pay raise bills in the Senate on next Tuesday. One bill would give postal employes a flat $1000 pay raise. The second bill would raise salaries of Classification Act employes a flat $1000 each, and corresponding increases would be given daily and hourly workers.

LOYALTY: Civil Service's Loyalty Review Board met yesterday and it will meet again today. After today's meeting it can be expected to make public the list of organizations the Attorney General has declared are "subversive." The board also is discussing proposed rules and regulations to cover all loyalty cases.

Civil Service also has lined up five new members to serve on the board which is now made up of 20 part-time members. The names of the new members will be announced soon.

VETERANS: Civil Service has notified Federal agencies that no war service veterans here are to be fired to make jobs for displaced nonveteran career workers. However, it has given its field directors the authority to order the firings of war service veterans if there are no other jobs available that laid-off career people can qualify for. Also, the regional directors must make certain that no war service nonveterans hold jobs career people are qualified to fill.

Civil Service officials take the position that there are plenty of jobs in this city that are held by war service nonveterans to solve the problem of the displaced career employes.

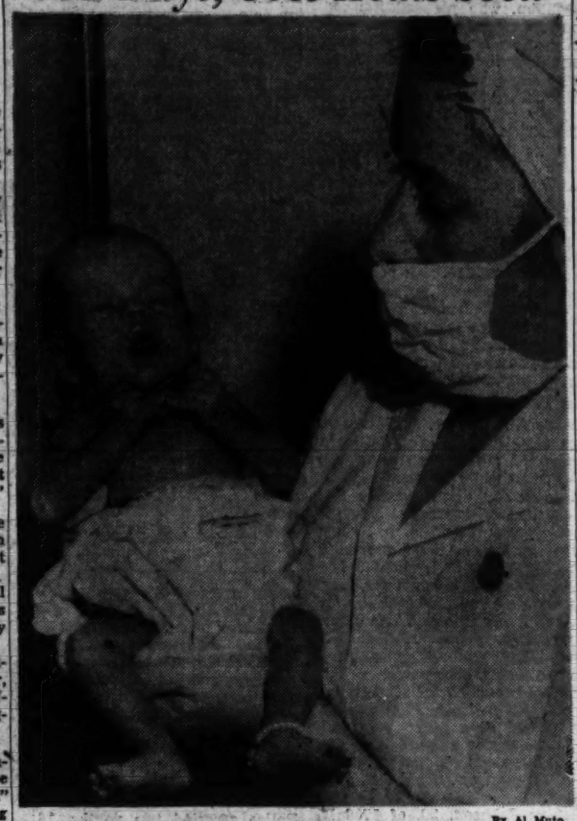
34-Oz. Baby Gains 44 Ounces In 92 Days; Goes Home Soon



By Al Muto

ALMOST A FIVE-POUNDER—Nurse Virginia Carrell of Alexandria Hospital, holds tiny Billie Jean Caslow, who is rapidly growing

A premature Arlington baby, who weighed 2 pounds 2½ ounces at birth September 2, yesterday tipped the scales at a husky 4 pounds 14 ounces after a three-month battle for life.

She is Billie Jean Caslow, 92 days old yesterday, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Caslow, Route 1, McLean, Va.

And hospital officials, who said she was 2 months premature, predicted she'll be able to go home shortly, possibly by this weekend, when she attains the weight of five pounds.

For the first precarious five weeks of her life, tiny Billie Jean never left the incubator. On her seventh day, her weight dropped to 1 pound 12 ounces.

Her physician had her fed a special diluted milk formula by a medicine dropper; gave her two or three blood transfusions and kept her under oxygen to conserve her energy during the most critical period.

Her parents, who already have a 9-year-old boy, said yesterday they were "very, very happy" about their daughter's successful fight to live. Mr. Caslow is a shop manager at the McLean Service Center.

Another premature baby, who weighed only 1½ pounds when she was born November 1, yesterday was "doing very well" at Doctor's Hospital. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Zimmerman, 4713 N. Rock Spring rd., Arlington.

Retrial Ordered In Suit Against Hyattsville Man

Baltimore, Dec. 3 (AP).—Federal Court Judge W. Calvin Chestnut today ordered a new trial of the case again Walter L. Green, former Hyattsville, Md., police magistrate, against whom a jury recently returned a $5200 damage verdict in favor of a Prince Georges County woman.

The plaintiff was Mrs. Melissa J. Rowe, who contended in her original bill of complaint that Green and six others had conspired to have her committed to a mental hospital.

Judge Chestnut had directed verdicts in favor of all defendents except Green.

In granting the new trial, the Judge said much testimony was admitted which would not have been admissable if Green had been the only defendant to the damage suit.

Implicate Others

Three Youths Jailed After Air Joy-Ride

Three District high school youths were jailed in nearby Maryland early yesterday after joy-riding in a stolen airplane for 15 minutes over Greater Washington.

Capture of the trio by Prince Georges County police was no anticlimax to the aerial joyride.

After their stolen air ride, the boys fled the Columbia Air Center, Croome, Md., in a hail of shotgun slugs. Speeding from the scene in a stolen car, they careened down the highway at 85 miles an hour with police in pursuit.

The chase ended when a door of the stolen car opened and one of the boys tumbled into a ditch. His companions leaped from the car while it was still in motion and attempted to escape on foot.

County police identified one of the joyriders as Charles G. Hack, 18, of 513 Newcomb st. se. The other boys are aged 15 and 16. All are students at Anacostia High School.

Police said this was the third "stolen" flight taken by the boys from the field. They said the plane was piloted by the 16-year-old boy, who received about 10 hours of flight instruction but had never soloed.

Police also said that four or five other youths have been implicated in confessions signed by the trio.

The boys sneaked out to the field after midnight the week before Thanksgiving for several stolen rides, according to police, and returned again early yesterday.

They wheeled from the hanger, police said, a former Civil Air Patrol plane, known by the Army as an L-4. The single-engined plane, used during the war for reconnaissance and evacuation of wounded, is a cabin model with two seats.

While the boys were aloft, William Wynhoff, night watchman at the field, called police and summoned Linwood Thames, the day watchman.

When they landed and started to leave in a car, Thames tried to halt them and then fired a shotgun blast at the car. Police were unable to halt the car when they met it on Croome rd., and took up the chase.

When one of the boys was thrown into the ditch as their car turned sharply onto the Crain hgwy., the other two jumped from the still-moving car and hurdled a barbed wire fence. One fell, but the other kept running.

County Policemen J. P. Kearns, J. W. Vincent and F. L. Ridelbarger collared two of the boys and took the third into custody several hours later after his father called police in the District. None of the boys was hurt.

The car abandoned by the boys crashed into a fence. Scarred by shotgun pellets, it was identified as a car stolen from James B. Sims of 115 Trenton pl. se.

After their arrest, the boys were charged with unauthorized use of an airplane. Hack was released in $500 bond for hearing at 10 a. m. tomorrow in Marlboro police court. His companions, also freed in $500 bond each, will have a hearing at 2 p. m. tomorrow in juvenile court.

The Columbia Air Center is operated by John W. Greene, jr., of 2815 12th st. ne., a teacher at Armstrong High School.

Greene said the 16-year-old who acted as pilot is part owner of another plane kept at the field. He said the fledgling flier probably was afraid to fly the plane in which he has an interest because of its power—165 horsepower compared to 75 horsepower of the plane used.

A nearby resident informed him about the previous night joy-rides, Greene said. The plane used by the boys was emptied of gas Thanksgiving night to prevent another flight, the airport manager said. He said the boys came to the field that night and left when they found the plane was without fuel.

Va. Phone Rate Hearing Is Adjourned

A. T. & T. Treasurer First Explains to SCC Details of Loans to C. & P.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 3 (AP).—The State Corporation Commission heard four hours of testimony today from the treasurer of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and then adjourned until later this month its hearing on an application of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. of Virginia for rate increases.

Donald R. Belcher, the A. T. & T. executive, presented evidence which had been previously requested by the SCC concerning "cost of money" to the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. He defined this term as "a broad economic concept" and stated that "the money to which we refer is the capital required by the business."

Generally, he added, this consists of two types—debt, money borrowed by the business, and properietary capital, which is money placed permanently at risk in the business by its owners.

Among the main points he brought out were these:

1. That the Bell System must pay at least 2.91 per cent on its debt capital which it lends to the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. of Virginia for 2.75 per cent.

2. The "over-all cost" of money to A. T. & T., that is the return on total capital required by the A. T. & T. to maintain its credit and to attract additional capital, is at least 6.75 per cent.

3. As of September 30, 1947, and figured on an annual basis, the earnings needed from intrastate operations of C. & P. of Virginia would amount to $4,237,000. This figure is about $567,000 above that presented in a previous exhibit by another witness.

The testimony today was devoted almost entirely to details of the cost of money to A. T. & T. The SCC last month asked for this information apparently to determine whether C. & P. of Virginia is required by the parent corporation to pay an excessively high rate of interest on its loans from A. T. & T.

After hearing from counsel for both sides the commission announced the hearing adjourned with no date set for resumption. However, it is expected that this will be done within a matter of days, probably December 16.

Four Parachute Safely as Army Bomber Crashes

Providence Forge, Va., Dec. 3 (AP).—A burning B-25 medium bomber catapulted into a heavily-wooded section near here today but the four Army Air Force occupants parachuted to safety a few moments before it crashed to the ground.

All received only minor injuries and were taken to Camp Lee, Va., for treatment.

They were Capt. Byron B. Boon of Linden, Texas, the pilot; Capt. Milton L. Widerhold, Brenham, Texas, co-pilot; First Lieut. William J. Cook, Clearwater, Fla., and Staff Sergt. Earl D. Waller, engineer and radio operator.

The four men bailed out of the plane after futile attempts to put out flames which swept through the ship. Trailing smoke as it came, the twin-engine aircraft roared over a farmhouse, narrowly missi gnthe roof and ployed into a wooded area about one mile away.

The plane was a Mitchell bomber en route from Barksdale Field, La., to Langley Field, Va.

October Returns Set Md. Sales Tax Mark

Baltimore, Dec. 3 (AP).—Maryland's sales tax collections for October totaled $2,270,368, the largest monthly "take" since the 2 per cent levy became operative July 1, the State comptroller's office announced today.

Total collections since July reached $7,973,031.

Despite action in the recent special session of the general assembly raising the exemption level from 9 to 14 cents, November tabulations to date indicate the total may exceed October's, the office said.

Repeal of Auto Excise Tax Urged

Roanoke, Va., Dec. 3 (AP).—The Virginia State Agricultural society today passed a resolution, copies of which will be sent to the President of the United States and all members of the Virginia congressional delegation, urging Congress "to bring about an outright and speedy repeal of all federal automotive excise taxes."

Other resolutions passed at the closing session of the society's 52d annual meeting included one petitioning the Assembly to prevent the diversion or borrowing of highway funds, and another will be sent to Clinton Anderson, Secretary of Agriculture, advising that while there is a shortage of cereals, there is a surplus of canned apple products and certain other canned goods, and asking these facts be kept in mind when purchases for European aid are made.

Printer Falls Seven Floors To Death From D. C. Building

Attorney's Wife Hangs Herself In Alexandria Home

Mrs. Walter I. Young, 29, wife of a prominent Alexandria attorney, yesterday phoned a friend she was going to commit suicide and then hanged herself in the basement of her home.

Police found her body about 12:30 p. m. handing from a water pipe by a piece of clothesline in the home at 1219 W. Bradock rd., Alexandria, which the Youngs had purchased only a few months ago. Coroner John A. Sims issued a certificate of death by suicide.

Police said they acted on information from Mrs. R. L. Rand, 1218 W. Braddock rd., who received the phoned suicide threat. Mrs. Rand told police she was visiting in another part of town at the time. She said she called home and her maid found Mrs. Young's body hanging in the basement.

At the time of her death, Mrs. Young's husband was trying a case in Alexandria District Court. Her 6-year-old son, Stephen, was at school.

No notes were found. Young could not account for her suicide aside from saying she had been in ill health for several years.

Motor Line Seeks High-Court Ruling On Va. Gas Tax

Richmond, Va., Dec. 3 (AP).—The Attorney General's office here today was notified that the United States Supreme Court will be asked to rule on the constitutionality of the law taxing non-Virginia motor carriers for the gasoline they use in this State—even though it is bought elsewhere.

Counsel for Atlantic States Motor Lines, Inc., a North Carolina trucking concern, asked the nation's highest tribunal for a writ of certiorari fro ma Virginia supreme court decision upholding State corporation commission action against the Atlantic firm.

The SCC found that the company should pay $6510.40 in taxes and a $325 penalty for gasoline its trucks used in Virginia but bought in another State.

The commission's finding was based on an 1942 act of General Assembly which said that an out-of-State carrier must buy in Virginia the same amount of gasoline that the carrier used in Virginia—or else pay the equivalent of Virginia taxes on this amount.

District Cab Driver Given 12 Months For Fatal Crash

John E. Robb, 29-year-old District cab driver, was sentenced in Prince Georges County Circuit Court yesterday to 12 months in the Maryland House of Correction for manslaughter in a fatal auto crash last March.

Robb was found guilty in the circuit court after having previously been acquitted in Hyattsville Police Court. His trial proceeded yesterday after Judge Charles C. Marbury overruled a defense plea of double jeopardy, based on a contention that the State could not appeal a police court acquittal.

Victim of the fatal accident was Lewis Carter, 30, 1003 V st. nw., a passenger in Robb's cab when it left Defense Highway near Crain Highway and crashed into another car.

Tattooed Lady's Mate Gets Year For Slaying Her

Baltimore, Dec. 3 (AP).—Larry Riemer, the meek little piano player who amazed everyone by marrying the tatooed lady and then did it again by killing her, got a year for it today.

Judge Joseph Sherbow said it all goes to show what a woman can do to a man.

A jury convicted the 37-year-old husband of manslaughter last week. The evidence was that Agnes Riemer, 57 and covered from head to toe with exotic needlework, badgered him into taking her out on the town the night they had been married four months. Riemer spent most of the evening trying to keep her decently quiet. Finally he strangler her with his belt. He said he didn't remember it.

F. Bryan

Fred A. Bryan, Fairfax County Republican chairman, yesterday was held for a Fairfax County grand jury on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the traffic death of Lemuel B. Morris, Republican candidate for county supervisor from Providence District.

Morris died October 27, two days after his car, being driven by Bryan, collided with another car on Route 123 between Vienna and Tyson's Corner, Va.

Bryan, in Fairfax County Police Court yesterday, was fined $100 and sentenced to 60 days in jail on a charge of drunken driving which also was placed against him as result of the accident.

His attorney, T. Brooke Howard, noted an appeal to circuit court. Bryan was released under $1500 bond pending disposition of the cases.

Explorer's Death Held Due to Natural Causes

Danbury, Conn., Dec. 3 (AP).—Medical Examiner John D. Booth reported today that Comdr. Fitzhugh Green, retired naval officer, author and explorer, whose death was under investigation, had died of natural causes.

Dr. Booth announced the verdict after performing an autopsy on the 59-year-old Green, who died yesterday.

Green recently admitted illegal narcotics purchases for himself and his wife, and he was put on probation by a Federal judge. His wife was never arraigned.

Commander Green served in the First World War and was wounded on Guadalcanal in the Second.

2 Coworkers Report Seeing Linotyper Dive Out Window

A 34-year-old linotype operator yesterday leaped to his death from the ninth floor men's room of the Star Building at 11th and Pennsylvania ave. nw.

He is Huett F. Cofield, who lived with his wife and two small children at 254 Portland st. se. An eyewitness to the incident said Cofield's last words were "I still love you, Mother."

Cofield's plunge at about 4:30 yesterday afternoon ended when his body hit the second story roof of the Raleigh Hotel employes' building at 426 11th st. nw. He was still alive when he was taken to Emergency Hospital, where he was pronounced dead at 5:15 p. m. by Dr. John Wilson.

Was Hospital Patient

Cofield has been admitted for treatment at Gallinger Hospital four time since 1938. On October 16, 1938, he was admitted after he attempted suicide by gas, hospital admission officer said. The hospital diagnosis of his case was "alcoholic psychosis and schizophrenia."

FUTILE AID—An unidentified man administers to Cofield after the plunge. The printer was taken to Emergency Hospital, where he was pronounced dead at 5:15 p. m.

He had been admitted to St. Elizabeth's on September 15 as a "very acute case," according to Dr. Winfried Overholzer, hospital superintendent, and was released as cured on November 5. Dr. Overholzer said Cofield had been "obsessed with fears." He said he "had had acute episodes including depression" and that such attacks can reoccur.

Two men who were in the men's room, Thomas Gross, 4612 Lee st. ne., and Edward Ferguson, 1007 23d st. nw., said they noticed Cofield standing near the window, smoking a cigarette. They saw him drop his cigarette on the floor and then jump from the window, diving out, they said, as though he were going off a diving board. Ferguson said that the last thing Cofield said was "I still love you, Mother."

Plunges 80 Feet

Detective Sergt. George Cook, who investigated the incident, said that Cofield fell approximately 80 feet to the Raleigh roof.

A native of Anniston, Ala., Cofield had at one time worked at the U. S. News. He worked at The Star from 1935 to 1941, and then went to Birmingham, Ala., where he was employed in similar work until about 1946, when he returned to The Star.

He had been expected to report to work yesterday, fellow employes said.

Cofield is survived by his wife, Mrs. Loretta Cofield, who is employed in the hat-check concession at the Pall Mall Room in the Raleigh Hotel, and two boys, Hugh, 8, and Weyman, 5.

Driver Asks New Trial in Traffic Death of Wife

A motion for a new trial for Rodney G. Darneille, convicted November 2 of negligent homicide in the traffic death of his wife, was filed in Municipal Court yesterday by his attorney, Milton Kaplan.

Darneille, 38, 2720 Ordway st. nw., was in collision with another car on Memorial Bridge last April 20. The crash resulted in the death of his wife Ruth, 38.

Darneille told the jury that his wife leaned over against him as he drove and that when he pushed her back the car rolled over to the wrong side of the street, striking the other car.

Kaplan based his appeal on the grounds that the Municipal Court jury verdict was contrary to the evidence.

Nearby Md. Folk Appear At Transit Rate Hearing

Vigorous Protests By Montgomery And Prince Georges Residents Heard

Baltimore, Dec. 3 (AP).—Residents of Montgomery and Prince Georges County entered vigorous objections today to a proposal by the Capital Transit Co. that it raise bus and trolley fares on December 11 in the Maryland suburban area just outside Washington.

The objections came at a hearing before the Public Service Commission on the company's proposal to institute a new "uniform 5-cent zone tariff" in the two Maryland counties served by the Washington transit line.

Most of the day was devoted to technical testimony on rates, earnings and operations of the company, given by J. Edward Herberle, Capital Transit vice president and comptroller.

Postponement Asked

In an introductory statement, read by F. G. Awalt, Capital Transit counsel, the commission was told that the company lost $450,000 on its operations in Maryland for the 12 months ended November 1.

When Awalt concluded his statement, several opponents asked that the hearing be postponed 30 days.

Roscoe Walter of Rockville and Louis A. Day of the Federation of Civic Associations of Prince Georges County claimed the rate question came under jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Charles B. Bosley, PSC chairman, said the commission would take the jurisdictional question under advisement.

Philip H. Dorsey, jr., people's counsel for PSC, said he would ask the commission to postpone another hearing affecting the Capital Transit Co.—to abandon its Branchville - College Park - Beltsville car line. That hearing is scheduled for December 9.

Service Criticized

Other opponents included P. Frederick Dryer, Hyattsville; Frank J. Lastner, counsel for the town of Greenbelt, and Hiram L. Lawrence, representing the Hyattsville City Council.

Dryer said service was 50 per cent below prewar standards and that the company "proposed to further curtail the service and at the same time increase the fares."

Lawrence said the Hyattsville Council had adopted a resolution opposing any fare increase unless there were improved service.

A Greenbelt Council resolution declared the present fare was "adequate for the type of transportation, which has been curtailed within the past year."

Veterans Hurt In Service to Get Hospital Priority

The Veterans Administration announced yesterday that, effective January 1, it will be necessary for veterans to show service-connected disabilities to receive first priority for admittance to veterans hospitals.

The new regulations call for elimination of the "presumed service-connected disabilities" classification, which has been in effect for a year. The Veterans Administration said this was enough time for veterans to establish whether their disabilities were service-connected or not.

At present, there are three priorities — service-connected, presumed service-connected and non-service-connected.

Coincidentally, chairman Edith Nourse Rogers, R., Mass., said that her house veterans committee had agreed informally that conditions in veterans hospitals are now much better than two years ago. Mrs. Rogers, said however, that her committee was not satisfied with veterans insurance operations and will ask veterans Administration officials to testify in them next Wednesday.

3 Freed in Calvert Gambling Trials, 44 Cases Put Off

Prince Frederick, Md., Dec. 3 (AP). Trails of 44 persons indicted on gambling charges were postponed today at the State attorney's request after a Calvert County Circuit Court jury acquitted the first three defendants.

The indictments, 56 in all, were returned by the November grand jury after an order by Chief Judge William M. Loker to investigate "unscrupulous activities of gambling interests." Eleven of those named pleaded guilty.

Swindlers Get $200

J. P. Morgan definitely does not live at 1612 8th st. nw., Miss Lelar Hampton, 29, of 1111 Harvard st., learned yesterday.

She told police she met two men yesterday who told her they had found $1000 in war bonds and were willing to divide with her. She said she gave them $200 as security. This sum was put in an envelope, she said, and addressed to J. P. Morgan at the 8th st. address. She was to go there and collect her share.

When she found no man of that name at the place, she opened up her "security" envelope, and found, instead of her money, just a few bits of newspaper.

Check Passer Freed

A 22-year-old Washington woman received a six-month suspended sentence in Philadelphia yesterday after she admitted passing 65 worthless checks, totaling $3329, in the District and various States.

The woman, Mrs. Eileen Robins Profitt, was arrested in October with her husband, Harold Profitt, 27. The Federal Bureau of Investigation charged them with forgery and cashing forged checks, the Associated Press reported. The FBI here gave their last local address as 220 13th st. ne.

In suspending Mrs. Profitt's sentence, United States District Judge James P. McGranery said an investigation indicated "her case may be the fault of a broken home." The FBI said she admitted her guilt in a signed statement, but her husband has denied the charges against him.

Numbers Head Guilty

Wilburn E. Morrow, 52, formerly of Silver Spring but now a Hanover, Md., resident, yesterday was found guilty of accepting racing bets after police testified he threw $2100 in a gutter just before his arrest.

Police quoted him as saying he "wanted to leave some money so my friends could bail me out." The defendant, who was described by police as the "kingpin" of gambling in Montgomery County, claimed he was in South Carolina at the time of the alleged offenses.

Detective Corpl. Edward Barber testified he placed bets on horses with Morrow on at least two occasions.

In another Montgomery Circuit Court case, Peter H. Hill, 33, of 8010 Eastern ave., Silver Spring, was also found guilty of accepting racing bets. Sentence was deferred on both defendants.

Cigarette Jump Unlikely

Despite reports of a cent-a-pack increase in price of popular brand cigarettes in New York, local wholesale and retail tobacco merchants yesterday said no immediate increase in cigarette prices is planned here.

They pointed out that the New York and Washington cigarette prices are based on different markets, and that a situation which exists in New York cigarette prices would not control local customer costs.

Noted Flag 'In Hiding'

The famous flag which flew over the Capitol on Pearl Harbor Day, Representative Harrison (D., Va.) said yesterday is "hiding around" in an Army office and should be placed on exhibition.

Harrison told a reporter he located the flag in an Army Public Relations office only after considerable search.

"I was informed," he said, "that it is being held in the Army office pending a check to make sure of its identity."

Chest Relieves Prince Georges Growing Pains

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

The fastest growing section of the Greater Washington area these days is Prince Georges County, Md.

And that's fine if you think about it from the standpoint of just growth. But this expansion is presenting the county communities with all kinds of problems.

And each of these problems is felt in some measure by the Community Chest and Planning Council of Prince Georges County.

First and foremost problem is the fact that families living in Prince Georges County are, in the main, middle or lower income groups. Montgomery County, for instance, has a three times greater average income level than Prince Georges County.

The Prince Georges Community Chest all too frequently is called upon to help families in the lower-income brackets if the wage earner is "between jobs" and has failed to save enough money to tide the family over.

Idle Farmers a Problem

Then there is the question of seasonal employment on the farms. In the southern part of the county, where tobacco growing is the farmers' principal occupation, there are many tenant farmers and sharecroppers who hope to live on the tobacco crop and what they can raise with truck farming.

When the price for tobacco is not up to expectations, then the farmers suffer. In 1945, when the Maryland tobacco crop was seriously damaged by blue mold, tenant farmers and sharecroppers were "on their uppers" with no funds even to meet grocery bills, much less plan for a new crop. Yet, technically, the farmer or sharecropper is "employable" in the sense that public welfare uses the term, and therefore not eligible for regular forms of public relief.

The question of the extent to which public welfare assistance benefits residents of Maryland presents another problem in the county. Recently, the State Department of Public Welfare had to adopt a new budget plan for aid to the needy, which allows $13.75 a month in food money for a moderately active woman, $17 for a 13-year-old boy and $15.70 for a 13-year-old girl.

Health, Recreation Headaches

The Prince George County Community Chest and Planning Council has attempted, where it can, to aid the needy until public action can be taken. The effect of $500,000 additional funds for the Department of Public Welfare, granted in the recent assembly session, is yet to be appreciably felt.

Then there is the problem of hospital facilities. There are only two hospitals in the county—Prince Georges General Hospital, the county hospital, and Leland, a private hospital. Last year, 569 county residents used Health Security Administration resources, through the county chest, to get necessary hospitalization. And for many of these ill persons, only hospitalization available was in Washington institutions.

Another headache is recreation. The coounty has a school enrollment of 22,000 this year as compared with 17,745 in 1940. And there are five recreation agencies—the YMCA, Boy Scouts, Girls Scouts and Camp Fire Girls, all Community Chest agencies, and Boys Club, Inc., which is not Chest supported. These agencies manage to reach 24 per cent of the county's youth, and the need is great for their expansion so that a greater proportion of Prince Georges young people can be served.

Social Workers Travel Far

Prince Georges County itself has a summer playground program, and there is enabling legislation under which the county can have a year-round recreation program, supported by county funds. This program has not yet been put into effect, however.

Last year, social workers under the Community Chest and Planning of Council of Prince Georges County traveled 12,000 miles in their case work. That was not easy to do. In one case alone, they had to transport a county resident who was ill from Acquasco to Freedmen's Hospital—90 miles each way—because no other transportation was available. And the county is 486 square miles big.

Many of the roads are poor. Workers have to go up country lanes with cattle gates and streams running across them—and be sure to close each gate after themselves—each way.

So far as the Chest and Council of the county are concerned, immediate problems are the expansion of existing agencies to serve more people, and the need to provide new services, such as legal aid to residents. Prince Georges County is getting one of three phychiatric, or mental health, centers, which will relieve some pressure on chest agencies in that field.

The Community Chest and Planning Council of Prince Georges County is a member of the Community Chest Federation, which you help to support with your contribution to their campaign.

School Dental Funds Increased

Leesburg, Va., Dec. 3.—The Loudoun County Board of Supervisors voted an additional $1100 for school dental work for the current fiscal year at their meeting here.

The board again postponed action on approval of a sales tax to increase teachers' salaries. It approved budgets submitted by Treasurer S. Reed Galleher for $11,600, Commissioner of the Revenue R. L. Nixon for $10,770, and Sheriff S. Paul Alexander for $11,935.

Mullen, who pleaded innocent, was sentenced after two other youths involved in the same robbery drew indeterminate reformatory sentences after pleading guilty. They were George Neal, 18, and Robert E. Brinn, 22, both of 1422 Harvard st. nw.

In pronouncing the sentences, Judge Charles C. Marbury said he took into consideration the "honest confessions" of the two younger men and the fact that Mullen had a previous criminal record. More than $300 in cash and jewelry were reported stolen from the home of Mrs. Emma S. Trainor, 3714 Garfield st. nw. She told police $250 was missing from a bureau drawer, and a roomer, Bill Houston, told police a pair of pearl and diamond cuff links were missing from his room.

A trap door on roof of Highland Theater, 2533 Pennsylvania ave. se., was forced by thieves who stole $80 in nickels from a desk in a second-floor office. An attempt to enter waif safe was unsuccessful, Albert V. Pohl, manager, reported.

Jewelry and coins valued at more than $200 were reported stolen by Edward Stackhouse from 461 Delafield pl. nw. A rear porch door was forced and a kitchen window jimmied. The coins were part of a collection of old and foreign coins.

Police arrested two youths, 16 and 20, in connection with theft of two overcoats valued at $60. Police said the overcoats were snatched from a display rack in front of a store at 617 D st. nw., owned by Frank Chasin, 1300 Saratoga ave. ne.

Lieut. Charles Hoar, jr., USN, 30 of Roxbury, Mass., reported an electric portable sewing machine valued at $50 and a grey Navy parachute bag containing clothes were stolen from his car parked in 1700 blk Harvard st. nw.

Arlington Hospital, Fairfax Make Deal

One 3-Cent Return

'47 State Tax 20% Higher In Arlington

A 25 per cent increase in Virginia State taxes levied in Arlington County for 1947 over last year was reported yesterday by Harry K. Green, Arlington County commissioner of revenue.

State taxes levied in the county in 1946 totaled $1,177,483, while this year's amounted to $1,571,664, Green reported, for a total increase of $394,180.

The greatest boost was in State income taxes, which increased $336,138, or 37 per cent. Other classifications for State taxes showed increases from 14 to 20 per cent.

According to Green, there were 31,475 State income tax returns filed from Arlington, an increase of 2490 over 1946. Largest income tax was $2324, the smallest 3 cents, with an average income tax of about $38.

County to Pay Full Charity Case Costs Pending Contract

Fairfax County, which has no hospital, yesterday agreed to pay Arlington Hospital the full cost of its charity patients treated there until a satisfactory contract could be signed.

Payments will be retroactive to August 6 when the county board of supervisors authorized the county's Welfare Department to negotiate the "best possible" contract with some hospital in the vicinity.

The Fairfax board acted after Karl York, administrator of the Arlington Hospital, asserted the hospital was losing money on the Fairfax patients and that "the solvency of the hospital "was at stake." He placed the cost of charity patients at about $15 a day. Under a contract which expired July 1, Fairfax indigents were treated at Arlington Hospital at a $5 daily rate.

Welfare Superintendent Miss T. Mary Beacham said offers from hospitals in the area to care for the Fairfax patients range from $10 to $17.05. Arlington Hospital offered to sign a contract at $12.92, she said.

Pleasing Voice Wins $10,000 Senate Post

The Senate got itself a new reading clerk yesterday with a voice so nice it even sounds good while reading an appropriations bill.

Edward E. Mansur, jr., a 30-year-old Jefferson City, Mo., lawyer and former OPA enforcement attorney, was picked after what must have been one of the most unusual goings-on in United States Senate history.

All doors to the Senate chamber were shut. And then, one after another, 40 candidates for the $10,000 a year job stepped up and read a passage from an appropriations bill.

A committee or Republican Senators stuck out the ordeal, compared diction, and narrowed the field to three.

Wins Over Former Governor

Mansur won over C. A. Bottolfsen, former Idaho Governor, and a third candidate whose name was not disclosed for fear it might jeopardize his present job.

In Washington, Mansur lives at 5117 Connecticut ave. nw. He is married and has two children. He is a graduate of the University of Missouri and of its law school, where he led his class for three years. During the war he was an aerial navigator for the Navy with the rank of lieutenant and served on antisubmarine patrol in the Atlantic.

At the Capitol Mansur will step into a unique position—one that was held for 40 years by John Crockett, resigning at the age of 82.

He will route the Senate's paper work, read the bills and call the roll.

Tryouts Are "Dull"

Crockett endeared himself to all by skipping duller sections of the bills. Would Mansur continue this custom?

"I don't know," he told a reporter.

How had the tryouts been?

"Dull," he said.

This may be the understatement of 1947.

For, to give you an idea of what an appropriation bill can be like, let's look at the Government corporations appropriations bill for the fiscal year 1948, beginning on page 24:

"Funds made available by this act for administrative expenses shall be available, in addition to objects for which such funds are otherwise available, for personal services and rent in the District of Columbia; printing and binding; examination of the budgets and estimates of appropriations in the field; travel expenses in accordance with the standardized Government travel regulations," and so on for another 151 words which lead us to the end of the first sentence.

The interview ended on a note of desperation.

Asked Mansur, in the tone of a man who sees 40 long years ahead: "It can't all be this dull, can it?"

Your reporter, a kindly soul, thought it more merciful not to answer.

Mrs. Watson and Mrs. Coolidge Are Hostesses

By Marie McNair

LADIES' parties CAN be fun! It WAS fun yesterday at the tea given by Mrs. William H. Watson, wife of Captain Watson, USN, for Mrs. John Steelman, wife of the Presidential Assistant.

"I think it's refreshing," said one, as she sipped her tea. And indeed, it was, judging from the gay voices of the 200 or more women gathered in the pleasant apartment at the Shoreham. Guests admired each others hats, chatted over the gossip of the day, the party the night before given by Mrs. Truxton Beale following the diplomatic reception at the White House.

The youthful hostess and guest of honor, both fair, had both elected to wear black, whether by accident or design. Mrs. Watson's gown was of filmy chiffon, with full skirt and high-necked bodice set off with a big necklace of antique gold. Mrs. Steelman wore velvet with a graceful skirt built over hoops and a tight bodice to accent her wasp waist.

Among the Guests

Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice, smiled prettily over the candlelit tea table, in spite of the fact that she hasn't been up to par recently and told me that instead of being at a party she should have been in bed.

Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, came in wearing the much discussed Dior great coat, almost ankle length, with a pleated taffeta scarf. Mme. Dendramis, wife of the Greek Ambassador, and Signora Tarchiani, wife of the Italian Ambassador were there and Senora Fernandez-Davila, whose husband is Charge d'Affaires of Peru.

I met Mrs. George Mesta on her way out, and Senora de Munilla, bound for another party. And coming in as the crowd had begun to thin was Miss Frances Perkins, former Secretary of Labor, who rarely attends anything as frivolous as an afternoon tea.

Mrs. Stanley Hornbeck, wife of our Ambassador to the Netherlands, was in the gathering and others were Mme. Thors, wife of the Icelandic Minister, and Mrs. James F. Byrnes, a neighbor of the hostess at the Shoreham.

Film Fling Recalled

Nina Lunn, whose fling in pictures turned her auburn hair blonde, came in with her fiance, Nat Luttrell. Mrs. Donald Dawson made almost every other woman green with envy with her paradise trimmed hat; Mrs. Peter Ansberry made a quick circuit and was soon on her way, and lingering longer were Mrs. Constantine de Stackelberg, Mrs. Elonzo Tyner, smartly turned out in a leopard trimmed black tailleur; Baroness Rosenberg, Mrs. George Malone, wife of the Nevada Senator, and Mrs. Gordon Young.

River Boat Is Scene Of Cocktail Party

MON LEI, fabulous Chinese river boat, was strung with colored lanterns last evening for the cocktail party given by Mrs. Harold Coolidge. Guests were invited to board the craft at Pier 5 between 5 and 7 "to partake of the waters of long life."

The boat's owner, Robert (Believe-It-Or-Not) Ripley, was on hand to explain the wonders of his rare and beautiful yacht. Structurally it is typical of boats with butterfly sails that ply between Shanghai and Hong Kong. It was originally built for a war lord, who sold it when war broke out, and in 1940 it was sailed across the Pacific specifically for Robert Ripley.

The decks are covered with oriental rugs which are taken up in bad weather. Below are two spacious cabins luxuriously furnished with carved teakwood screens and interesting curios such as a smiling Buddha and the longest executioners sword in the world.

Mme. Koo, wife of the Chinese Ambassador, attended the party with Mme. Joseph Koo and the latter's small daughter. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Elliston were on board, and Mr. and Mrs. Gale McLean, former Ambassador and Mrs. Nelson Johnson, Count Guy de Carmoy and Admiral and Mrs. John H. Towers.

Mrs. McCook Knox Gives Dinner Party

MRS. McCOOK KNOX entertained at dinner last evening at her home in Georgetown in honor of Senator and Mrs. Edward Martin of Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Joseph Mauldin Gives Surprise Party

MRS. JOSEPH MAULDIN'S surprise cocktail party yesterday afternoon for her husband, also turned out to be a celebration of the wedding anniversary of their good friends, Capt. S. H. K. Spurgeon, Naval Attache of the Australian Embassy, and Mrs. Spurgeon.

So, Patty Mauldin made it a double order at the caterer's for two deep frosted and gayly decorated cakes.

Among those offering felicitations to the guests of honor were the Spanish Ambassador and Senora de Vallarino and their daughter, Hilda; the Charge d'Affaires of Peru and Senora de Fernandez-Davila; the retiring Guatemalan Ambassador and Senora de Garcia Granados; Admiral and Mrs. Richard Cruzen, Admiral and Mrs. Arthur Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Murphy, the Assistant Naval Attache of the British Embassy and Mrs. Charles Evans; the Charge d'Affaires of Pakistan and Mrs. Baig; the Naval Attache of the French Embassy, Capt. Pierre Lancelot, Representative and Mrs. Jay LeFevre and Representative Sid Simpson.

Philippine Ambassador Gives Dinner Party

THE Ambassador of the Philippines, Joaquin M. Elizalde, entertained last evening at a dinner in honor of the Chinese Ambassador and Mme. Koo. A company of 24 were invited, including the Chinese Minister and Mrs. Tan, the Undersecretary of the Interior and Mrs. Oscar L. Chapman and former Ambassador and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt.

Jacques Balsans Honored At Dinner Party

MRS. ARTHUR FOWLER entertained at dinner last evening in honor of Mr. and Mme. Jacques Balsan who are spending a few days at the Mayflower on their way to Palm Beach for the season. Mme. Balsan, the former Duchess of Marlborough was before her first marriage Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt of New York.

Mrs. Woodward Gives Luncheon Party

MRS. CLARK WOODWARD entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Army and Navy Club having among her guests, Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower, Mrs. Conger Pratt, Mrs. George Mesta, Mrs. Harold Walker, Mrs. Curtis Shears, Mrs. Thad Brown, Mrs. George Holmes, Mrs. Burke Summers and Miss Emma Perley Lincoln.

Mrs. Lloyd Gives Tea At Mount Vernon

MRS. GEORGE W. LLOYD, headmistress of Mount Vernon Seminary, entertained at tea yesterday at the refectory for parents of the day scholars to meet the faculty.

Mrs. Charles W. Lindsay and Miss Florence Carter presided at the tea table.

Capital's Colorful Institution

Old Decatur House Glows In Gaslight for 'At Home' After White House Fete

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

MRS. TRUXTUN BEALE'S "At Home" after the Diplomatic Reception has become the most colorful of Capital institutions. Her lovely Decatur House, on Lafayette Square, is lit only by gas and candles, the Victorian furniture is charming, the maids wear cherry-colored uniforms, all of which makes a fitting background for gilt-embroidered uniforms and elaborate evening gowns.

MRS. BEALE

Tuesday was meatless day, so the hostess served turkey on rice, stuffed eggs, orange sherbet and very special cookies.

Mrs. Beale, in ice-white satin, topped her new, close-curled hairdo with a diamond bandeau. In the tight press, dresses were hard to see but definitely two of the handsomest were purple and worn by Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins and Mrs. Robert L. Bacon. Mrs. Robbins' crepe had a sari-like scarf to throw over her shoulders, Mrs. Bacon's taffeta panniered over a full underskirt.

Mme. Jacques Balsan was in silver-white brocade, Mrs. David Bruce's emerald earrings hung in wreaths of tiny diamonds, Mme. Francois Charles-Roux's topless black tulle had a skirt yards and yards wide.

Those Handsome Men

THE MORE decorative gentlemen were the new Portuguese Ambassador Pereira, the French Minister Armand Berard who sprayed crosses, ribboned decorations from his high embroidered collar, trailed other crosses from a cross-chest sash; and Camille Gutt of the International Monetary Fund, who had pie-plate sized stars pinned to his coat, a fuchsia sash across his shirt.

It was wonderful to see how women reacted to the men's glamorous get-ups—some giggled apologetically, others pointed out decoratiens with the skill of a Cook's guide, others ignored the fancy plumage.

UNLESS something funny or unusual occurs, there is really not much of a story in the White House reception for the Diplomatic Corps. It's just the same people one sees daily, only lumped together and rigged their fanciest. The last hilarious crisis on record occurred back in the '20s when French Ambassador Paul Claudel turned up at the White House coatless! Doyen of the Diplomatic Corps and first to be received—he could scarcely lead the line in his shirt sleeves! While a thousand-odd diplomats shifted restlessly in their party shoes, the late Warren Delano Robbins, then Chief of Protocol, sprang into action.

M. CLAUDEL

M. Claudel explained his diplomatic uniform had grown a bit tight. It was a warm evening, he decided it would be more comfortable to slip on an overcoat, place his dress coat on the limousine seat during the drive from Embassy to White House. After the automobile had scooted off, the Ambasador realized the coat had gone, too.

Mr. Robbins enlisted police aid. In vain, motorcycle cops scoured the route from White House to Embassy. Coat, car, chauffeur had vanished. The minutes were ticking by relentlessly. The Ambassador called the Embassy's butler who coyly hazarded the chauffeur might be with his girl friend and, fortunately, remembered her address. The motorcycle cops whizzed off, routed out the astonished chauffeur and, with sirens screaming, escorted M. Claudel's gold embroidered coat back to its owner.

A few seconds later, the Ambassador, suitably garbed, led his weary colleagues down the line! And, we are glad to report, M. Claudel's son, Henri, a French Embassy attache, was at the White House Tuesday night completely covered from tip to toe!

Holton Arms and Radcliffe Groups Raise Funds

By Genevieve Reynolds

Fund raising projects occupied various alumnae groups in the city yesterday. For the first time in years graduates of Holton Arms School and Junior College met over a luncheon table in the Parrot Restaurant. Drawing card, in addition to the speaker, Mrs. Jesse Moon Holton, was to pool reports on the Moon Memorial plan. Meantime, members of the Radcliffe College Club "chop sticked" Chinese food at the Good Earth Restaurant while they discussed the college's current financial campaign.

Mrs. Holton, founder and president of Holton Arms School and Junior College, traced women's struggle to be admitted into colleges during the nineteenth century.

Discussing the pros and cons of progressive education, she said that when initiated progressive education was a challenge to the complaceny of regular schools. "Progressive schools emphasized teaching students," she explained, "whereas regular schools used threats and punishment to teach subjects.

Draw Back Told

"A drawback to progressive education," she continued, "is that it often omits the basic fundamentals such as reading, writing and arithmetic. Also it places too much emphasis on individual's whims of permitting them to study what they want and skipping other subjects."

Each day people have to do something they don't want to do, according to Mrs. Holton, who questioned whether or not the progressive school method prepared people to perform the unwanted tasks life presents.

Miss Laura Cresse Bunch, alumnae secretary, reported that $48,000 had been raised for the Moon Memorial Fund, which is gathering the wherewithal for a recreational center on the newly acquired land adjacent to the school. The memorial will commemorate Mrs. Holton's father, Clinton Abher Moon, who pioneered in education and women's suffrage.

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, who heads the club's local fund drive, reported that more than one fourth of the national alumnae's objective to raise $400,000 for Radcliffe had been obtained.

What's going on at Radcliffe today was depicted by Mrs. Arcnangelo D'Armore, who recently attended a two-day conference on the campus.

Your Questions on Homemaking

Can you suggest the best type of pan to buy for frying? We now have an aluminum one which is impossible. No amount of fat seems to prevent sticking. We would prefer an inexpensive type if possible. I would rather not have to season it, as I fear it would be unsuccessful. Is there any way to recondition the old one? MRS. K.

There are many types of frying pans on the market—cast iron, aluminum, stainless steel and chromium. All of them will give good performance if seasoned before using. In buying a frying pan, be sure to get one that is thick enough to hold a constant, uniform heat and one that has a very flat bottom. However, I think that with seasoning, your present pan has lots of good use left in it. It is really a very simple thing to season a frying utensil. First, scour it with household cleaner and steel wool; then wash, rinse and dry thoroughly. Now brush melted vegetable shortening or vegetable oil all over the inside of the utensil. Do not use a fat containing salt. Place in a warm oven, 250 degrees F., or on top of the stove over a very low heat for several hours. Be sure to keep the heat low. For this reason I prefer using the oven for the seasoning. Be sure to look at the pan occasionally and add more fat when necessary. If your pan has a removable handle, take it off before putting it into the oven. When well seasoned, the pan doesn't have to be washed in soap and water after every use if used frequently. Just wipe it out and cover tightly to prevent dust getting into it between uses. In this way you will continually season the pan as you use it. You will have less trouble with foods sticking to your pan if you avoid high heats and heat the pan well before putting in the food.

Will you tell me whether it is advisable to wash an angora sweater (about 70 per cent angora and 30 per cent wool) or have it dry cleaned? Should it be done by a professional (in the case of washing)? If it should be washed at home, what is the proper method for doing it? Should I use a special sweater soap flake or a regular good soap flake? M. F. L.

I see no reason why your sweater cannot be satisfactorily washed by hand at home. Before washing, trace the outline of the sweater on a large piece of paper so that you can pat it into the right shape before dying. For this, I would suggest you use a piece of white wrapping paper so that you can dry the sweater flat on the paper. Now, fill a basin with luke warm water and make a good suds, using a mild soap or one of the new soapless flakes. If your water is inclined to be hard, the soapless cleaners are preferrable because they do not leave a scum and can be rinsed out easily. When you have a good suds, squeeze the sweater in the suds gently, trying not to agitate it unnecessarily. Leave the sweater in the bowl rather than lifting it in and out of the water to avoid stretching. If the sweater is very soiled, remove it from the first suds, prepare a second bowl of suds and wash it the second time. When clean, squeeze the water out gently. Never wring. Rinse the sweater until the rinse water remains clear. Squeeze out the rinse water. Now spread the sweater onto a large bath towel, fold dry edges of the towel over the sweater and roll. Squeeze and pat the roll together to remove as much moisture as possible from the sweater. Remove from towel and place on the previously made pattern, patting and easing to the exact shape. Place it where it can be dried undisturbed. When thoroughly dry, brush lightly.

I am planning an adult birthday party for the end of December. Could you suggest appropriate games to "break the ice," so to speak? This will be an early evening affair. What shall I serve? Do you have a good recipe for punch? S. S.

Here are several "ice-breaking" ideas: As each guest arrives provide him with a paper and pencil and tell him to get the autograph of each of the other guests. The one getting the most gets a small prize. Another idea along this line is to tie a paper bag on the right hand of each arriving guest and ask him to shake hands with everyone present. Or, when all guests have arrived, pin the name of a well-known person on each person's back. Do not allow anyone to know what name is on his own back. One at a time, ask each guest to stand before the group and turn around so that all may see the name. Then, by asking questions of the group, he is to guess the name on his back.

You may also divide the group into two teams. Each team goes into a different room and selects a proverb. Each word of the proverb is assigned to one or more of the players. When the team returns, and at a signal, each shouts his word. The other team must guess the proverb. When they have done so, they take their turn at shouting a proverb.

For refreshments you could serve a birthday cake and ice cream. For a little different birthday cake idea, and since you won't be serving at a table, place a cup cake with a lighted candle on each plate with the ice cream. With this serve a hot drink, mints and nuts. If you would like more elaborate refreshments you could serve a salad, assorted sandwiches and birthday cake with a hot drink.

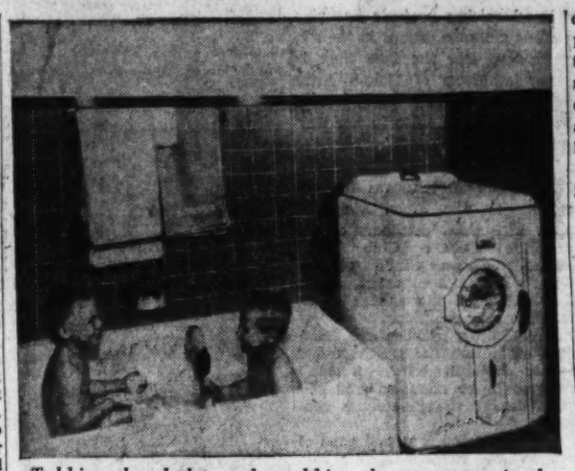
4 quarts of ginger ale

Place orange ice in the punch bowl and pour the chilled ginger ale over it. No ice will be required as the ice chills as it melts. Approximate yield—20 punch cup portions.



Tubbing the clothes and scrubbing the youngsters in the same room of your house is a good idea, say laundry experts of one of the largest automatic washing machine companies. The bathroom is the logical place for home laundry, they say, since approximately 80 per cent of the family's weekly washing comes from the bedroom area of the house

It's Goin' to Be a Long, Warm Winter

PRACTICALLY any girl can own a fur coat in America. She finds it on the rack for $50 and up. Of course, it isn't mink, sable, ermine or Persian lamb. But it is sewn of good, substantial skins and it looks and is as warm as the $5000 article.

Native ingenuity is responsible for making fur coats available to so many in this country. Endless experiments have produced soft, pliable furs from inexpensive pelts. Designers and manufacturers have combined their efforts to offer coats of these skins in the latest styles and at amazingly low prices.

The two coats pictured above are among the best of their kind. They present a good investment for the junior miss, the Government girl, college student, or any young woman seeking a fur luxury at down-to-earth prices.

Both are considered fur ensembles, including coat, hood and bag. At left is a three-piece set of mouton lamb dyed to silvery brown tones. Billowing sleeves accent the new fuller coat silhouette. A detachable furred hood covers the head or drapes back in a shawl. The smart owner will find that the hood and bag can be worn to "dress-up" other wardrobe items such as cloth coat or suits.

At right is a stroller-length coat with billowy push-up sleeves, detachable hood and bag, all made of coney in mutation-milk colors.

Army Wives Club Plans Supper and Dance for Dec. 17

Among the early holiday parties for which plans are nearing completion will be the buffet supper and dance for Transportation Corps officers and wives at the Army War College Officers Club the evening of December 17.

The TC Wives Club is sponsoring the affair, which is under the general cochairmanship of Col. and Mrs. Ross B. Warren of the Broadmoor Hotel.

The party will begin at 6:30 with cocktails, followed by the buffet supper and dancing. All TC officers stationed in the Washington area and their wives have been invited.

Although the TC Wives Club has been holding regular meetings since last spring, this will be but the second affair in which the husbands will join.

Reservations may be made by December 10 with Colonel Warren, Maj. Joseph McNally or Maj. Richard St. John at Room 3B 476, Pentagon; or with Mrs. Warren at the Broadmoor or Mrs. Donald A. McGuire, West End Apartments.

Expert Tells About Ski Attire

The novice on the ski run can be spotted by her heavy, bundlesome clothes, bought "to keep her warm," says Ernest Engle, professional skier and designer of ski clothes, writing in this month's Charm magazine. "To skim over the snow like a bird in flight," says the authority, "one needs to be as lightly appareled as a bird."

He suggests light, strong fabrics such as poplin and gabardine for ski suit. The fit, he says, should allow freedom of action. Boots, he points out, will stretch in width but not in length and should be bought long enough for comfort over woolen socks.

Husband Challenges Wife to Get Third Party Opinion on Their One Point of Difference: She Adores Sentiment; He Thinks It's Silly

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband has challenged me to get your opinion on our one point of difference. He is 35, I am 34, and we have been very happily married for six years. He is a wonderful man, faithful and kind, and I have much to be thankful for, I know.

However, he thinks sentimental flourishes are silly and unnecessary and should be dropped after a few years' marriage. He says we are sufficiently sure of each others love that we don't need "trappings" to prove it.

By trappings he means celebrating each others birthday with gay festivity, or sending sentimental cards on special occasions, or sharing together a song that is "our very own."

I agree that these things aren't absolutely necessary, for I am always sure of his love, which he shows in other ways. But I do contend that, though perhaps silly, they make all the difference between a prosaic marriage, in which two people take each other more for granted every year, and the rare love-matches I've too seldom seen, in which the wife is terribly happy, not just dutifully reminding herself how lucky she is to have a faithful husband.

Gives Flowers With a Scowl

ON JIM'S birthday, I always arrange to have friends in. There is always a big dinner, a cake with candles, and much laughter and singing to him. During the day, I "surprise" him at intervals with gifts, and more gifts, inexpensive and otherwise. In other words, it's a big day—and he loves it! I love it, too, because he is happy.

My birthday is a different story. He always asks me ahead of time what I want, then bestows it dutifully. He always provides a cake, then always explains he did it to keep out of my bad graces.

Once when I said I'd like to celebrate with guests, he invited another couple to go dining with us, but never mentioned "birthday" to them. It was just another evening out.

Another time I said nothing at all, hoping he would plan a surprise. At the last minute he came in with a bunch of flowers and a disgusted look. He presented the flowers with these words, "Here; I still think birthdays are silly,"—then sat down to read the paper.

I certainly won't make an issue of such small things. But I must admit I'll always listen with envy to women who tell of the surprise party their husbands planned for them; or watch with envy when husbands dance away with their wives as the orchestra plays "their song." I just won't show it any more. Am I silly to pine for such attentions? R. R.

Wife's Credo Is Juvenile

DEAR R. R.: See 1 Corinthians 13: "Love envieth not, vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked . . ."

Of course you're silly, to a degree that bores your husband stiff, and invariably makes him feel like a fool on his birthdays and a heel on yours.

At the rate you're carrying on, clawing at him for sentimental flourishes as if his honest-to-God devotion were not enough, you'll be lucky if, 10 years from now, you can dutifully congratulate yourself that you've still got a faithful husband.

She Is Taking The Wrong Tack

YOUR concept of love is pathetically junvenile, whereas your husband's seems markedly more mature. Those birthday celebrations you foist on him would be more appropriate for a 5-year-old, considering the gag-gifts and all,—and what you mistake for pleasure on his part is doubtless a gallant effort to "grin and bear it."

In those rare love-matches you talk about, the secret of perennial joy is usually this: the wife's conjugal purpose, first and last, is to make her husband happy on HIS terms, and for her success in this, he repays her by being always her tender grateful lover. So if it's that kind of marriage you want for yourself, you're certainly going the wrong way about it.
M. H.

Rubber Treads

One housewife has rubber treads on her cellar steps. Not only do they look attractive when she opens her cellar door, but they save dirt being carried from the cellar to the clean linoleum in the kitchen, and the beauty of them is they can be washed just as you would the plain boards.

Loving Parent Can't Go Far Astray in Caring for Baby

The brand new mother is certain, when she brings her baby from the hospital, to feel a terrible sense of bewilderment and a lack of knowledge. There is so much to be known and so little that she does know. She fears that every move she makes may be a wrong one.

It is at this moment that she should fortify herself with the soothing conviction that what she does have in abundance is love for this baby. If she will express this in a natural way she will not go far astray. This does not mean, mercy no, that she is to hover over the child and cater to his every whim. This would grow too arduous for her, and would be unfair to the child. He could not live up to such emotional demands.

But, there is no reason, either, why she should be afraid to pick up the baby, to hold or cuddle him, to sing or rock, if the occasion demands it, though not as a regular preliminary to sleep. This baby is no small toy to be stuffed into some mold of the mother's construction, but a child with a personality all its own, even from birth, whose personality should receive attention and admiration from the parent.

All of this runs somewhat counter to old-time advice which was to make the baby comfortable and leave him alone. Such advice is representative of modern methods of which the self-demand schedules for eating and sleeping, the rooming-in programs in some hospitals are examples.

D. C. Utilities' Ten-Month Net Declines 33%

By S. Oliver Goodman

Combined net incomes of Washington's four utilities nosedived 80 per cent in October as compared with the same month last year. For the first 10 months this year the aggregate net earnings were 33 per cent lower than for the like 1946 period.

In their monthly statements filed with the Public Utilities Commission, the four companies showed combined nets of $98,681 for October as compared with $472,158 in the same 1946 month. Combined 10-month nets were $5,057,758 in 1947, against $7,582,589 in 1946.

Biggest single factor in the October slump was a $257,522 deficit reported by Capital Transit Co. due to a retroactive wage increase award. Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. and Potomac Electric Power Co. both showed sharply reduced monthly nets. Washington Gas Light Co. was the only one of the four to display improvement, but it managed only to cut its red ink figure for the month.

Soaring operating expenses were evidenced in all utility reports for the first 10 months. Operating revenues so far this year, with the exception of Capital Transit, were at all-time high levels.

The statistical picture for each of the local utilities compares as follows for the last two years:

Business Outlook

Will Rate Commissions Pity ATT 'Widows & Orphans'?

By J. A. Livingston

RIGHT NOW, this very minute, hundreds of widows, orphans, doctors, lawyers, dentists, school teachers, carpenters, mechanics, Government workers, and investment specialists are in a quandary. They're stockholders of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., the world's largest industrial enterprise. They've just been propositioned by the company to put more money into the business.

Livingston

Holders of each six shares of common stock have the right to subscribe to $100 of 2¾ per cent convertible debentures by investing $100. Later on the holder of that $100 debenture can add $40 to it and acquire an additional share of common. Time presses. Stockholders must decide before December 15.

During the twenties, ATT shareholders would hardly have given the matter a second thought. ATT flourished. The company absorbed smaller companies, installed more and more telephones, handled an increasing number of long-distance calls. Taxes were comparatively low, labor costs were under control, and profits mounted. When a financial writer of the period wanted a powerful metaphor to indicate solidity, he said, "As safe as the Telephone dividend."

FEW COMPANIES could boast such a record: $7.50 a share paid uninterruptedly from 1900 through 1905; $8 from 1906 through 1920; $8.50 in 1921, and $9 per share thereafter. And, intermittently, the company would offer rights to shareholders—sometimes to buy new stock, sometimes to buy debentures. And why not? The earning power was there to support increased capitalization.

So the widows, orphans, dentists, lawyers et al., put up new money to hold onto their proportionate share of a good financial venture. Hadn't people got well-to-do accumulating Tel & Tel?

The depression shattered the illusion of ATT's economic invulnerability. The Bell System failed to cover ATT dividends in 1932, '33, '34 and '35. For the first time since the First World War, the company actually lost business. The number of telephones and the number of conversations and toll calls declined. In 1932, the stock fell below $100 a share. It was as if Walter Gifford personally had broken faith with the Nation's widows and orphans.

The war emphasized the company's vulnerability. Costs increased. Also taxes. Net dropped per dollar of gross. In 1929 the company earned 200 million on a billion dollars of receipts. Last year it took twice as much gross to net that much.

SO THIS is another, a more skeptical era. ATT is bigger than ever. It has 28 million telephones in service, about three times as many as in 1920. Local telephone calls run to 100 million a day, toll calls to 5½ million. On September 30, orders for 1,900,000 phones were still unfilled.

But the company also has a record number of shares of stock outstanding on which to pay dividends—20,600,000. That as against 13,200,000 shares in '29. Thus, net income in '29 amounted to $15.22 per share, amply protecting the $9 rate. Last year the same amount of net came to only $10.23 per share. And this year, because of a strike, earnings will fall short of the dividend, even as they did in '42, '44 and '45. Yet toll and local facilities are overloaded. To attain comfortable efficiency, the company must continue to expand plant, raise new money and issue new shares.

Rates have become a basic problem. The company, itself, notes: "Prior to December, 1946, there had been no substantial changes in basic rates for local service since the adjustments which followed the First World War and there had been a number of reductions from time to time in intrastate toll rates. However, in view of the mounting costs of furnishing telephone service, most of the company's subsidiaries have found it necessary in recent months to apply . . . for approval of rate increases."

AND THAT'S the element that now makes the widows, orphans, and other shareholders pensive about taking up their rights. During the 20's, ATT earnings grew with the country. Expansion was semiautomatic. Gross receipts outdistanced increases in wages, salaries, and other costs. But now the company is in the clutches of rate-making commissions. Utility commissions have a habit of weighing the interests of the community as well as the interest of the investors.

Will the utility commissions take care of ATT's widows and orphans? Will they award sufficient boosts to preserve the $9 dividend? Not only this year, but the next and the next? On the answer depends the future market price of ATT stocks, debentures and bonds.

We're still tightening our BELTS!

THE day the October 30th Arbitration Award added more than $2½ million annually to Capital Transit's wage bill, we set out to do a job.

We're still at it. Trying to cut expenses. Just to make ends meet, over $5,000 a day must be shaved off!

That's a lot of money . . . and we're trying to save it without too much effect on our patrons or their service. The dollar here, dollar there, that can be saved doesn't make much of a dent in 5,000 dollars.

But we're proud to report some progress, and the job is not over yet.

We've always given you just what the Nation's Capital should have . . . a transit service and equipment second to none! And we want it to stay that way. We think you do, too.

But one fact remains: we've been forced so far in the red that we've failed to earn the interest charges on borrowed money. No business can long maintain a high standard on that basis.

We want your help and understanding of the problems involved . . . for a sound, efficient transit system is the foundation of a prosperous and progressive community.

★ This message is published to keep you informed of our affairs and problems . . . for Capital Transit serves everyone—business, public, employes and stockowners.

Wreck Photos Help Speeders To See Light

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

Pictures of broken bodies and smashed-up automobiles are being shown Maryland motorists convicted of traffic offenses as lessons in safety.

When a Free State driver is found guilty of a violation, he receives a letter from the State Department of Motor Vehicles: "You are directed to appear . . . and show cause why your license should not be suspended or revoked."

Want to Retain Permits

When the violators appear they are sheepish, indignant, angry or fearful and in the words of the man who hears their excuses: "They'll say anything to keep their permit."

After an unusually long session yesterday in the Rockville Courthouse, W. D. Rudy, motor vehicle license reviewer, who holds the hearings in 22 Maryland counties, sighed and put away his pictures and forms.

"Speed and liquor," he said, "they are my two best customers."

A majority of more than 30 persons who faced Rudy yesterday were guilty of speeding. He showed each of them pictures taken at the scenes of fatal accidents.

Pictures Tell Story

"Take a look at these people who were speeding and were not quite so lucky as you," Rudy told the offenders. The speeders gulped, reddened and stared almost fascinated by the grim evidence. "After seeing the burned or bloody corpses," Rudy said, "the speeders are visibly impressed."

Many permits were handed back to the relieved offenders with a probation. Others were suspended for a brief period or revoked. Still others with a first offense after long years of good driving received no penalty, but as Rudy remarked: "It's a good record knocked down."

Loyola College Inaugurates Father Talbot

Baltimore, Dec. 3 (AP).—The Rev. Francis Xavier Talbot, S. J., former editor of the Jesuit weekly magazine America, was inaugurated today the twenieth president of Loyola College of Baltimore.

Delegates representing 160 colleges, universities and other educational organizations were in the academic procession, which was led by the Rev. Harold C. Gardiner, official representative of Cambridge University, England.

The very Rev. Martin Cyril D'Arcy, provincial of the Jesuit order in England, made the principal address and accepted the honorary degree of Doctor of Literature for Evelyn Waugh, British novelist and a Catholic convert.

Honorary degrees of Doctor of Laws were conferred on the Rt. Rev. Thomas J. McDonnell, auxiliary bishop of New York, and Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, Maryland superintendent of Education.

Officer Missing With Checks Is Promoted

Camp Lee, Va., Dec. 3 (AP).—The Army came through today with a promotion for First Lieut. Edward P. Kelly, the Camp Lee officer who picked up 37 pay checks for fellow officers Monday and never returned.

A spokesman at the post said the promotion was made because of the Denville, N. J., officer's "service and aptitude" and that Lieutenant Kelly could become Captain Kelly—any time he could be found to raise his hand and take the oath.

Even as the promotion was announced, the FBI, Army MP's and State and county officers were pressing a search for the missing officer.

Kelly apparently vanished after he picked up checks totaling more than $14,000 at the request of fellow officers. A short time later, a bank in nearby Petersburg reported Kelly's check and two others had been cashed. Eight hours later, the remaining checks reached Camp Lee by mail, but Kelly hasn't been heard from since.

Marylander Wins Agricultural Prize

Chicago, Dec. 3 (AP).—C. Z. Keller, Somerset County agricultural agent since 1917 and dean of the Maryland farm agents, today received the "distinguished service award" of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents.

He was voted the honor at the agents' annual convention, being held here in connection with the international livestock exposition.

Keller is a native of York, Pa., and graduated from Penn State College in 1915. He became farm agent for Somerset County after teaching two years at Vienna, Md., High School. For a time in 1939 he was a State executive officer at the AAA farm program.

Punchboard Gambling Irks Hagerstown

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 3 (AP).—State's Attorney Martin L. Ingram of Washington County ordered a crackdown today on gambling in the form of punchboards.

He said parents have complained their children were spending their pennies and nickels on the boards and warned they will not be tolerated.

Ingram said a warrant had been issued against a restaurant proprietor accused of keeping punchboards on his counter.

Hopkins Head Asks Md. Aid For School

Baltimore, Dec. 3 (AP).—Dr. Isaiah Bowman, president of Johns Hopkins University, proposed today a fiscal control program for the university's school of engineering that would make it State policy to pay annual deficits in the school's operating costs.

Dr. Bowman made the recommendation to the legislative council in his second appearance to comment on the report of the Marbury Commission on Higher Education.

He again protested the commission's proposal that the engineering school, only branch of the university with a State tie, come under the same fiscal controls that apply to all State-controlled institutions.

He said his plan would increase State appropriations to the school to about $200,000. The State has allotted $127,000 annually since 1944, much of it for scholarship aid.

Proposal Hailed

William L. Marbury, chairman of the education commission appointed by former Governor O'Conor, later called the Johns Hopkins proposa la "statesmanlike advance." But he advised an exhaustive study of plan, adding:

"The State should be tied to no commitment to pay costs unless it has something to say aboue determining those costs."

The Hopkins president also advocated a system of scholarship awards based on the number granted before teh war, with increases which could be justified by each institution.

Marbury urged that appropriations for colleges be separated clearly from scholarship aid, and that students be permitted to select the schools they wish to attend.

Junior College Urged

He again proposed establishing a junior college at Cumberland, then abandoning the Frosbturg State Teachers College.

In a general discussion of legislative problems, Dr. Bowman urged a "state yardstick" for determining how indigent a patient must be to receive free hospital treatment.

The council meets again tomorrow to consider questions of State insurance laws, jurisdiction of the Baltimore people's court and the possibility of a constitutional convention.

New Sanitary District Urged In Fairfax Area

A petition asking Fairfax Circuit Court Judge Paul E. Brown to establish a sanitary district in the McLean-Langley area was circulated yesterday.

O. V. Carper, leader of a movement to set up the area as a special district for water and sewage systems, said he hoped the petition with the 50 necessary signatures and a boundary map of the 1-square-mile region would be ready for filing with the judge by the end of next week.

The petition was drawn up following a meeting Tuesday night when the newly formed Taxpayers Advisory Association launched opposition to the plan.

If the judge decides to establish the district, an election on a bond issue to construct the proposed water and sewage facilities will be called. Estimated initial cost has been placed at $1,700,000.

Lane Supports Further Wicomico Dredging

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 3 (AP).—Governor Lane will act as agent of the board of public works today in its efforts to assure further work on dredging a channel in the Wicomico River at Salisbury.

The city has requested the State to allocate $25,000 to compensate for damage to oyster beds which may be caused by dredging during operations conducted with Federal funds.

The Governor said Senator Wallace White (D., Wicomico) had requested quick action in order to permit the city to qualify for the Federal aid. The Federal Government makes no appropriation for damage to oyster beds caused by dredging.

Show Cattle Reach New High Prices

Chicago, Dec. 3 (AP).—Breeding cattle buyers at the Forty-eighth International Livestock Exposition today set new sales records for shorthorn bulls and females at the big show.

A harvest of cash went into the pockets of shorthorn exhibitors as buyers from 22 States swept all previous averages at the international to take home 90 head of cattle for an average of $1002 each.

Forty-four bulls sold for a total of $53,580, an average of $1218 each, with the top sale bringing $9100, a new shorthorn record for the show. The two high selling females were bought for $2000 each.

Biggest sale of the day was made by Richardson Stock Farms of Winnipeg, Canada, which sold Kelburn Banker Royal, the grand champion shorthorn bull, for $9100 to two Illinois breeders, Dr. A. H. Welland of Pawnee, and Alfred Miller of Sharpsburg.

'Finest Offering' Ever Judged

Sellers of the top-priced females were Robert Holz of Ripley, Iowa, who sold Clara Belle 23d to H. B. Reilly of Sergeant Bluffs, Iowa, and Clausen Brothers of Spencer, Iowa, who sold Violet's Princess 25th to Merryvale Farm, Grandview, Mo.

John C. Burns of Fort Worth, Tex., judge of the shorthorn sale cattle, said the animals sold today represented the "finest offering of shorthorn cattle for sale" he has ever judged.

In other activities today, Ohio State University's three-man judging team won the intercollegiate meat judging contest, scoring a total of 2416 out of a possible 2700 points to overwhelm teams from 15 other colleges and universities.

Oklahoma A. & M. College finished in second place with 2397 points, and Iowa State College was third with 2396.

Wisconsin Ram Wins

In the breeding Hampshire sheep division the champion ram was shown by William F. Renk & Sons of Sun Prairie, Wis., and the reserve champ by the University of Wyoming. The champion ewe award also went to William F. Renk & Sons and the reserve championship to the University of Wyoming.

Area winners in preliminary competition at the international livestock exposition included:

Breeding Aberdeen-Angus (pair yearlings, one bull and one female)—Cold Saturday Farms, Finksburg, Md., third.

Junior bull calf (calved between January 1-April 30, 1947)—Ellerslie, Charlottesville, Va., second.

Summer junior bull (calved between May 1-August 31, 1947)—La Baron Farm, Warrenton, Va., third.

Bull (calved between May 1-December 31, 1945)—Ellerslie, Charlottesville, Va., second.

Junior bull (calved between January 1-April 30, 1946)—Glinockie Farms, Haywood, Va., second.

Md. Brother, Sister Win 4-H Scholarships

Chicago, Dec. 3 (AP).—A brother and sister from Forest Hill, Md., pulled off a rare accomplishment when they both were awarded $200 college scholarships at the National 4-H Club Congress in session here.

The scholarships went to John and Mary Wysong. Eighteen-year-old Mary won hers for canning activities and 15-year-old John for gardening projects.

Other Marylanders who were honored at the National 4-H Congress were Kenneth T. Bosley, 18, of Sparks, Baltimore County, a student at the University of Maryland, who won an electrical contest with plans for a corn elevator; Gulielma Keller of Frederick County, named safety champion; Howard Streaker, jr., of West Friendship, named health improvement winner; William Dorsett, 18, of Sellman in Montgomery County, meat animal winner.

Fred Fry, Montgomery County, dairy production; Barbara Young, Frederick County, clothing; Clifton Giddings, Anne Arundel County, soil conservation.

In the livestock judging, Maryland's 4-H team placed third among 26 teams entered. Boys were Percy Shortall, Easton; Thomas Meredith, Queen Anne; Frank Patrick, Easton, and James Clark, Easton.

The scholarship awarded Mary Wysong will help her at Salisbury State Teachers College where she is a student. John, a high school junior, expects to use his at the University of Maryland.

The brother and sister have put their 4-H membership to profitable use in the past. Mary estimates her projects, which include making her own clothes, have been worth $5500 and John figures his have been worth $6600.

Mary launched her canning busines five years ago when several of her exhibits won prizes at the Maryland State Fair in Timonium. While gardening has been the principal activity in the six years of John's 4-H work, he also raises chickens, dairy heifers, turkeys, and swine.

Lanes Entertain Maryland Grange

Governor Praises Work at University, Citing Poultry Medicine, New Strawberry

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 3 (AP).—Hundreds of men and women of the Maryland State Grange attending the seventy-third annual meeting filed into the Government House today to be greeted by Governor and Mrs. Lane.

The grangers relaxed after a round of business sessions earlier which included talks by the Governor, Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, State superintendent of education; Mrs. Caldwell, director of public relations of the North Carolina State Grange, and Paul W. Walker, University of Maryland tax expert.

In his morning address, Governor Lane declared he believed the people of Maryland "in spite of some grumbling" were willing to make the necessary sacrifices to gain the objectives of better health schools, roads and agriculture.

Tells of New Strawberry

In praising the work of the College of Agriculture at the University of Maryland, the Governor said a new strawberry had been developed "that holds great promise for pushing this crop to new heights on the Eastern Shore" as well as "a new serum, which, it is believed, will immunize poultry against the devastating Newcastle disease."

Dr. Pullen said recent innovations in the State education system were giving it much higher standards.

Among the advances he listed were plans to curtail elementary school classes to 30 pupils by 1951, and compulsory attendance up to 16 beginning in 1949.

Mrs. Caldwell told the grangers, "the whole world is looking to the American farmer to meet world food needs today. We have the land resources, the most machinery and technical knowledge. We must not fail"

Discussing taxes, Walker declared, "too many of us have the impression that somehow we can have governmental services we want without helping to pay the bill. This false concept could be partly corrected eventually by appropriate instruction in the grade and secondary schools. . . ."

The report of the executive committee was given by D. G. Harry, sr., of Highland, who predicted a "banner year" for the Grange in 1948. The meeting will conclude tomorrow.

Foresters Help Md. Woodlots Fetch More

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 3 (AP).—Most Maryland farmers are overlooking one of their best cash crops in failing to utilize properly their woodlands.

Karl E. Pfeiffer, assistant director of the department of forests and parks, said today that only a few farmers are taking advantage of the department's forest survey and marking service.

"Maryland has approximately 2,700,000 acres of woodland. That means about 40 per cent of the State is covered with forest and yet we are importing a lot of timber and timber products," he declared.

He said Maryland woodlands could produce more than twice as much commercial lumber at present.

Eight assistant district foresters in the State are ready to help private timberland owners select proper trees for marketing and plan long-range use of woodland. During the last year these foresters examined 24,250 acres of woodland and marked 5750 trees for marketing.

Pfeiffer said in virtually every case they helped the timber owner to obtain more money for his trees.

He cited the specific case of J. Edward Smith of Frederick, who had a woodlot of 60 acres for which he was offered $1300 for a cutting by a sawmill operator. After this lot had been examined and the trees marked, $4500 was realized for the same lumber.

The State will order its assistant district forester to survey any woodlot free of charge to determine the type and value of trees.

The forester will mark trees for marketing one day without charge and for $15 a day thereafter. The forester should be provided with two helpers to mark and measure the trees. These may be supplied by the owner or the State will furnish men at their actual salary, plus travel expenses and board.

With two experienced men, the forester can cover between 30 and 40 acres a day. He gives the owner a full report on marked trees and a plan for selling the timber under best terms.

Luray to See Premiere of Va. Film Today

Luray, Va., Dec. 3 (Spl.).—Virginia notables will gather here tomorrow to celebrate Luray world premiere day and to see one of the Old Dominion's finest natural wonders.

These notable, headed by Gov. William M. Tuck, will include Chairman William Wright of the State Conservation Commission, associate members of the commission, Virginia Chamber of Commerce officials and representatives of the motion picture industry.

After a tour of the world-famous Luray Caverns, premiere guests will be entertained at 6 p.m. at a reception at Limair Second, home of Mrs. Henry W. Graves. At 7 there will be a dinner at the Hotel Mimslyn, followed by a parade, led by the Luray High School Band, to Page Theater where "Visiting Virginia" will be shown.

Ceremonies at the theater are expected to get under way about 8:30. Governor Tuck will address those at the premiere. The technicolor film "Visiting Virginia," a James A. Fitzpatrick MGM Traveltalk, features scenes from the Luray Caverns and Natural Bridge, in addition to those from Richmond, Roanoke and Danville, harvesting peanuts and tobacco, and commercial fishing in the Tidewater section of the State.

Virginia State Library Obtains Books of Old Valley Toll Road

Richmond, Va., Dec. 3.—Complete records of the Valley Turnpike Co., a corporation that operated a toll highway between Winchester and Staunton from 1838 to 1919, have been acquired by the Virginia State Library, Librarian Randolph Church announced today.

The Valley Turnpike was built of crushed limestone at an estimated cost of nearly $4000 per mile. The corporation was capitalized at $375,000, representing 25,000 shares of stock sold at $15 per share, of which the State of Virginia had subscribed two thirds.

Originally, the 92-mile highway had toll gates at intervals of 5 miles, but the spacing of the gates was changed from time to time. The advent of the automobile made it advisable to space the toll barriers farther apart.

The State acquired complete ownership of the Valley Turnpike and turned it into a public road by authority of an act of the General Assembly of 1918. At that time the stock of the company was rated at $425,000. Private stockholders were reimbursed at a rate of 25½ per cent on their holdings out of a surplus of $45,000 existing when the company closed its books.

The minute books of the Valley Turnpike Co. disclose that its surplus on hand at the beginning of the Civil War was invested in Confederate bonds. After the war the company had tough financial going, with its surplus destroyed and the road in a bad condition owing to military movements and lack of repairs.

However, the turnpike continued to be a main Shenandoah Valley artery, and the present United States Route 11 closely follows the route of the old toll road.

Maybe Tom Should Shave the Night Before

Credit Mrs. T. B. Blevins, jr., of 1308 Park rd. nw. with the best bit of word juggling of the week.

As her husband was trying to rub the sleep from his eyes the other morning, Mrs. Blevins remarked:

"Tom, you're really a fright for sore eyes this morning."

Bertie Chudnow of 812 Quintana pl. nw. says that our own dramatic critic, Dick Coe, has coined a new word which should find a permanent place in our vocabulary.

Richard spoke of "general-meyerizing the statistics."

BLIND LEADING THE BLIND

William F. Reckert of 3130 Dumbarton ave. nw. had just gotten off a bus at 31st and O sts. nw. and was heading for home when he heard an elderly lady say:

"Can somebody help me across the street, please?"

"Sure," said Bill, "Take my arm."

As they made their way across the intersection the lady confided:

"I really appreciate this, because I'm totally blind."

Bill Reckert is 19 years old and a sophomore at Georgetown University. After he's graduated, he hopes to get into social welfare work; but right now, his sideline is piano tuning.

RECKERT

On learning that Bill doesn't use a Seeing Eye dog, I asked whether he depended instead on his sense of hearing. He replied cheerfully:

"Oh, no—I depend on my sixth sense, and save my ears for my piano tuning. It's a wonderful sideline; it keeps me in 'date' money."

FLUMMOX THE COW

Flummox was a lummox
Who slept upon his stommox
This is quite a paradox—
A cow that is a dummox.
(Thanks to Matt McKavitt)

'TIS TRUE, 'TIS PITY

Our recent items regarding the rental policies of several local housing units brings this observation from a lady who shall remain anonymous because she's still on a waiting list:

"My husband and I are both Marine Corps veterans, and supposedly we're being given 'priority.' But at our present rate of progress I suspect that, ere we get an apartment, our infant son will also be a veteran."

ENGLISH LESSON

L. Weatherby of the Navy Department's Bureau of Ordnance reports that a dispute recently developed in his office over the spelling and pronunciation of certain words. The controversy's end brought with it the birth of the following limericks:

A man of few words was Will Blore
His wife said, "Will, you're a bore;
To be so darn tacit
Is surely one facet
Of your personal traits I deplore."

Said Will, "I admit I am mute
When engaged in a general dispute;
But I find it an asset
On the whole to be tacit—
It makes people think I'm astute."

PEOPLE ARE NICER THAN ANYBODY DEPT.

Edgar Graham of 1717 R st. nw. gave me this story about S. A. Freas "in acknowledgement of his generosity to a loved one of mine."

But when I tried to check the facts with Mr. Freas at his wholesale fruit house at 1221 Maine ave. sw. I found him most reluctant to have the matter publicized.

He takes the "you-shouldn't write-about-things-like-that" approach. But I'm going to tell the story anyhow.

Because this month will mark the seventh anniversary of Mr. Freas' weekly trips to Glenn Dale Sanatorium, and on each of those trips he has distributed fine, fresh fruit to hundreds of the institution's patients.

In the seven years, he has given away more than a hundred thousand gifts of fruit—each gift enough to last a patient for a week.

"The inclosed token for Children's Hospital was donated by my laundryman," writes Mrs. Kenneth J. Cosimano of Beverly Park Gardens, Alexandria, Va.

"As he was counting out my change, I noticed the token and asked for it. He wanted to know what I was going to do with it, and I told him I was going to send it to Bill Gold.

"He handed over the token with a puzzled look on his face and asked, 'Who's Bill Gold?'"

Not a very observant fellow, is he? Some of the fanciest laundry bundles in town are wrapped in this column.

Justice William O. Douglas went to Harvard Law School a few days ago, to preside over the moot-court session at the Ames Competition. Just before the Supreme Court Justice entered the room where the moot-court was to be held, he asked one of the officials: "Brief me on what is expected of presiding judges here. Am I supposed to ask questions from the bench? Normally, I don't ask many questions" . . . "Justice Douglas, ask questions," he was told, "but, please, not as many as Felix does."

A veteran political reporter, discussing the Eisenhower boom, said: "I've never seen this happen before: When I mention Eisenhower's name to Republican leaders, their faces get pale. And when I mention Eisenhower's name to Democratic leaders, their faces get pale too."

Lina Romay was just released from her $1000-a-week contract with M-G-M studios. M-G-M signed her away from Xavier Cugat three years ago. Cugat had been paying her $250 a week. Her principal screen role during those three years was in the movie, "Weekend at the Waldorf," where she was shown singing with Xavier Cugat's orchestra.

Composer Richard Rodgers will conduct the orchestra at the 2000th performance of "Oklahoma" tonight.

Some American actors who worked in London in that period before Philip Mountbatten began wooing Princess Elizabeth, tell of the night they saw Elizabeth arrive at a night club where Princess Maragaret Rose was sitting with a group of her own friends. When Elizabeth was ready to leave she walked to Margaret Rose's table and invited her to come home. And Margaret Rose was overheard replying: "You go home and take care of the Empire. I'm staying."

Army Brass Demotes Dissenters

By Drew Pearson

This is the story of Brig. Gen. Ray Aloysius ("Mike") Dunn, and what happened to him when he bucked the top brass.

Gen. Dunn

Mike Dunn is a square-jawed, sharp-tongued, persistent Irishman, whose habit of speaking doesn't help him with his superiors, but who has spent a large part of his life working on airborne infantry. Long before Hitler dropped paratroopers on France's allegedly impregnable Fort Ebensmael and thus turned the Maginot Line, Dunn had argued that dropping troops behind enemy lines could save the terrific loss of beachhead landings by boat.

However, Dunn made the mistake of being too vigorous about his ideas for protecting paratroopers. Result: He was demoted from the rank of brigadier general to colonel and transferred to the then less active South Pacific.

Here is the inside story of his demotion.

Two Generals Argue

During the African campaign, Mike Dunn was in command of the 51st Carrier Wing of the North African Air Force where he first tangled with his top boss, able, hardworking Gen. Carl "Tooey" Spaatz, now Commander of the Air Forces. Their first difference was over using Dunn's paratrooper transport planes for freight haulage at a time when Dunn wanted to use his planes for training troops.

Second and much more serious row was over adequate protection for troop-carrying planes. By that time, the top command was sold on airborne infantry and Dunn had been given the job of preparing for large-scale operations over Italy.

However, Dunn, even then, foresaw the danger of having transport planes shot down. With his paratroopers flying in C-47's, they were protected by no armor plate around the pilot's seat and no self-sealing gasoline tanks. And because these planes had to fly slow and low, he feared they would be easy targets for enemy antiaircraft. And once a bullet pierced a gasoline tank—unless equipped with self-sealing lining—the whole plane burst into flames. Paratroopers would have no time to bail out.

At that time—well before the Sicilian campaign—Gen. F. A. M. Browning, airborne adviser to General Eisenhower, wrote a report supporting Dunn. Browning reported that pilot morale was low due to the lack of armor around the pilot's seat and the absence of self-sealing gasoline tanks. Accordingly he recommended that the B-24 replace the C-47 as a vehicle for carrying paratroopers. (The B-24 had self-sealing tanks and some armor.)

But General Spaatz, the over-all air commander, didn't agree. The persistent, sometimes disagreeable Dunn had several conferences with him, urging at least self-sealing gas tanks, but Spaatz wouldn't budge. He argued that there wasn't time to install self-sealing tanks and that armor plate plus tanks would cut down the range of the troop transports. At one meeting, attended also by other Air Force officers, Spaatz banged the table and proclaimed:

"I don't want to hear any more about it. There will not be any change."

Dutch vs. Irish

Dunn, however, had his Irish up. He wrote a formal request to General Spaatz urging self-sealing gas tanks for paratroop-carrying planes. Spaatz, a Pennsylvania Dutchman, just as stubborn as Dunn, returned this request with an abrupt veto.

Dunn then went over Spaatz's head and wrote a report direct to Washington urgently recommending protection for troop-carrying planes. This report is dated May 13, 1943.

And it was on July 13—exactly two months later—that the first wave of United States transport planes carrying about 400 paratroopers was shot down over Sicily. The next night another wave of like number was shot down.

And although trigger-fingered gunners of the United States and British Navies got the blame, a board of inquiry, appointed to establish the cause of the tragedy, made the pointed recommendation that in the future self-sealing gas tanks be installed in troop-carrying planes.

Dunn Gets Demoted

After the Sicilian tragedy, Mike Dunn, then a brigadier general, started back to Washington to make sure this tragedy was not repeated. He was met with a request that he step down to the rank of colonel for reasons of health. Dunn went to Miami for a physical exam, was given an O. K., but despite that, was reduced in rank and sent to a quiet sector of the South Pacific.

This old Army habit of penalizing anyone who dares differ with the top brass is one of the things the Army should straighten out before it asks the Nation to adopt peacetime military conscription for the first time in history.
